¶The fyrst Chapter.

¶Howe Heuen and earth, the lyght, the firmament, ỹ sũne, the moone, the sterres, and all beastes, foules, & fyshes in the see were made by the wozde of God. And howe man also was created.

IN the begynning* God created Heauen & erth. The erth was voyd and empty & darckenes was vpon the face of the depe, & the spirite of god moued vpon ỹ face of the waters.

And God sayde: let there be made lyght, and there was lyght made. And God saw the lyght that it was good. And God made a diuision betwene the lyght and darcknes. And God called the lyght, daye: and the darknes called he, night And the euenynge and the mozning was made one daye. And God sayde: let there be a fyrmamente betwene the waters, & let it make a diuysion betwene waters & waters. And God made the firmament, and set a diuision betwene ỹ waters which were vnder the fyrmament, and the waters that were aboue the fyrmament. And it was so. And God called the fyrmament heauen. The euenynge also and the mozning was made the seconde daye.

And God sayde: *let the waters vnder Heauen be gathered together into one place, that the dryge lande maye be sene. And so it came to passe. And God called the dryge lande, Earthe and the gatheringe together of waters caled he the sees. And God sawe that it was good.

And God sayde: lette the earthe bryng forth grene herbe, whiche maye engendre seede: and frutefull tree, yeldynge frute after hys kynde, whose sede maye be in it selfe vpon the earth.

And it came to passe. And the earth brought forth grene herbe, makyng sede after his kynde: and tree yeldyng frute, whose sede was in it self after hys kynde. And God sawe ỹ it was good. The euenyng also and the mozning was made the thyrde daye. And God sayde: * lette there be made lyghtes in the fyrmament of Heauen, and lette them make a dyfference betwene the daye and the nyght, and lette them be vnto sygnes: and vnto appoynted seasons, and vnto dayes, and vnto yeres.

And lette them be vnto lyghtes in the fyrmament of heauen: that they maye geue lyght vpõ the earth. And so it came to passe.

And god made* two great lyghtes: a greater lyght to rule the daye, and a lesse lyghte to rule the nyghte. (And he made) sterres also. And God set them in the fyrmament of Heauen that they might geue lyght vpon the earth, and that they myght rule the daye and the nighte, and to make a difference betwene the lyght and ỹ darknesse. And God sawe that it was good. And God created great whales, and euery liuing and mouing creature, which ỹ waters brought forth after theyr kynde: & euery fethered foule after theyr kynde. And God sawe that it was good. And god blessed them, sayinge: Growe and increase, and fyll the waters of the see, and lette fethered foules be multiplyed in the earth. The euenyng also & the mozninge was made the fyfte daye.

And God sayde: let the earth bryng forth lyuynge creature after hys kynde: catell, wozme, and beaste of the earth after his kynde, and so it came to passe. And God made the beaste of the earth after his kynde, & catell after theyr kynde, and euery thyng that crepeth vpon the earth after his kynde. And God sawe that it was good. And God sayde, let vs make man in our ymage after our lykenesse, and let them haue rule of the fyshe of the see: and foule of the ayre and catell, and all the erth and of euery creppyng thyng that crepeth vpon the erth. These are the generacyons of the heauens & of the earth, when they were created, in the daye when the Lorde God made the earth & the heauens, and euery plant of the felde, before it was in the earth: and euery herbe of the felde, before it grewe. For the Lorde God had not caused it to rayne vpon the erth, nether was there a man to till ỹ grounde. And there went vp a myst frō of the erth, & watred ỹ whole face of ỹ grounde.

B The Lorde God also *shope man, euen dust from of the grounde, and ‡ breathed into his nostrelles the breath of lyfe, and Adam was made a lyuynge soule. And the Lorde God planted a garden eastwarde from Eden, and there he put man whome he had made. Moreouer out of the grounde made the Lorde God to growe, euerye tree that was pleasaunte to the syght, and commodyous for meate. The *tree of lyfe also and the tree of knowledge of good and of euyll was in the myddes of the garden.

And oute of Eden there went forthe a ryuer to water the garden. And from thence it was deuided, and became into foure heades. The name of one is *Pison: The same is it that compasseth the whole lande of Hauilah, where there is gold And the golde of the lande is good. There is also Bdellium, and the Onix stone. The name of the seconde ryuer, is Gihon: the same is it that compasseth the whole lande of Ethyopia. The name of the thyrde ryuer is Hidekell, and it goeth towarde the Eastsyde of Assiria: And the fourth ryuer is Euphrates.

Ec. xxxiii.c.

C The Lorde God also tooke Adam, and put hym into ỹ garden of Eden, that he might dresse and kepe it. And the Lorde God commaunded Adam sayinge: Eatyng, thou shalt eate of euery tree of the garden. But as touching the tre of knowledge of good and euyl, thou shalt not eate of it. Els, in what daye soeuer thou eatest therof thou shalt dye the death.

And agayne, the Lorde God sayde: It is not good that Adam shulde be aloone, I wyl make hym an helpe, which maye be present with him. And so out of the grounde shope the Lorde God euery beaste of the felde, and euerye foule of the ayre, and brought it vnto man: that he myght se howe he wolde call it. For lykewyse as man hym selfe named euery lyuynge thynge, euen so was the name thereof.

The Lord God also caused a slombre to fal vpon Adā. And he slept. And he toke one of his rybbes, and closed vp the flesshe in stede therof. And the rybbe whiche the Lorde God had taken fro mā *made he a womā, & brought her vnto mā. And mā sayd: This is now bone of my bones, & flesh of my flesh. For this cause shal man leaue his father & his mother, & shalbe ioyned wō his wife, & they *shal becom one flesh, & they were both naked, ỹ mā & his wife, & were not ashamed.

C The. vi. Chapter.

C The cause of the floude. God warneth Noe of the commynge of the floude. The preparynge of the Arke.

A AND it cam to passe, that man began to be multiplyed in ỹ vpper face of ỹerth and there were doughters borne vnto them. The sonnes of god also saw the doughters of men that they wer fayre, and they toke them wyues from among al ỹ they had chosen. And the Lorde sayde: my spyrete shall not alwaye, striue in man, because he is fleshe, and his dayes shalbe * an hundred & twenty yeres. But there were giauntes in the earth in those dayes: yee, and after ỹ the sonnes of god came vnto the doughters of men, & they had gendred vnto thē, the same became myghtye men of the worlde, & men of renowne. But god sawe ỹ the malyce of man was great in the earth, and all the ymagynacyon of the thoughtes of his * hert was onely euyl euery daye. And it ‡ repented the Lord, that he had made man in ỹ earth, and he was touched with sorowe in his hert. And the Lorde sayde: I wyll (from the vpper face of the earth) destroye man, whome I haue created: both man, catell, worme and foule of the ayre, for it repenteth me that I haue made them.

But Noah founde grace in the eyes of the 25 Lorde. These are the generacyons of Noah, * Noah was iuste and perfecte in his generacyons, and ‡ walked wyth God. Noah begat thre sonnes: Sem, Ham, and Japheth. The earth also was corrupt before God, and the same erth was fylled with crueltye. And God loked vpon the earthe, and beholde, it was corrupte: for all fleshe had corrupte his waye vpon earth.

Ec.xl. ‡Gene

And God sayde vnto Noah: The ende of all fleshe is come before me, for the earth is fylled wt cruelty from the face of them. And behold I wyl destroye them with the earth. Make the an arke of pyne trees. Habitacyons shalt ỹ make in the Arke, and shalt pytche it within and without wt pytche. And of this fashyon shalt thou make it. The length of the Arke shalbe thre hundreth cubites: The bredth of it. L. cubites, & the heygth of it thyrty cubytes. A wyndowe shalt ỹ make in the Arke, and in a cubite shalt thou fynysche it aboue: but the doore of ỹ Arke shalt thou set in ỹ syde therof. With thre loftes one aboue another shalt thou make it. And beholde, I, euen I, do brynge a floude of waters vpon the earthe, that I maye destroye all fleshe wherin is the breth of lyfe vnder Heauen: And euery thynge that is in the earthe shall dye.

With the also wyll I make my * couenaunte and thou shalt come into the Arke thou and thy sonnes, thy wyfe and thy sonnes wyues with ỹ: And euery liuyng thing, and of all fleshe, a payer of euery one shalt thou brynge into the Arke, to kepe them alyue with the. They shalbe male and female. Of fethered foules also after theyr kynde, and of all catell after theyr kynde, of euery worme of the erth after his kynde: two of euery one shal come vnto the, that thou mayst kepe them alyue. And take thou with the of all meate that is eaten, and thou shalt laye it vp with the, that it maye be meate for the and them. Noah therfore dyd accordyng vnto all that God commaunded hym: euen so dyd he.

C The. vii. Chapter.

C The entraunce of Noe, and of them that were with hym, into the Arke. The rysynge of the floude, where thorowe all thynges dyd perysshe.

And

A ND the Lorde sayde vnto Noah: come thou and al thy house into the vii.Pet.ii.b. Arke for the haue I sene *ryghteous before me in thys generacyon.
Leui.xi.a. Of euery ‡ cleane beast thou shalte take with the seuen and seuē: The male and his female: But of vncleane catell, two, the male and his female. Of foules also of the ayre, seuen and seuen, the male and the female, to kepe sede alyue vpon the face of all the whole earth. For yet after seuen dayes I wyl rayne vpon ꝑ earth foure dayes and foure nyghtes. And all substaunce that I haue made, wyll I destroye from the vpper face of the earth. Noah therfore dyd accordyng vnto all that God cōmaunded hym.

B And Noah was syxe hundreth yeres olde, and ꝑ
Mat.xxiiii.d Luke.xvii.c *floude of waters was vpon the earth. And Noah came (and his sonnes, and his wyfe, & his sonnes wyues with him) vnto the Arke, because of the waters of the floude. Of cleane catel, and of vncleane catell and of flyinge foules, & of euery suche as crepeth vpon the earth, there came two and two vnto Noah into the arke, the male and the female, as God had commaunded Noah. It foretuned also after seuen dayes, and the waters of the floude were vpon the earth.

In the syxe hundreth yere of Noes lyfe in the seconde moneth, the seuententh daye of the moneth. In the same daye were all the fountaynes of the great depe broken vp and the wyndowes

In ꝑ selfe same daye entred Noah, Sem, Ham, & Japheth, the sonnes of Noah, & Noahs wyfe, and the thre wiues of his sonnes, with them into the Arke: They, and euery beast after his kynde, & all catel after their kynde: yee and euery worme that crepeth vpon the earth after his kynde, and euery byrde after his kynde, and euery flyinge & fethered foule. And they came vnto Noah into ꝑ Arke, two & two, of all flesche wherin is ꝑ breth of lyfe. And they entrynge in, came male and fe-

And the *floude came forty dayes vpon the earth, and ꝑ waters were increased, and bare vp the Arke, which was lyfte vp aboue the earth. The waters also preuayled, and were encreaced exceadyngly vpon the earthe, and so the Arke wente

And the waters preuayled exceadyngly vpō the earth, and all the hye hylles that are vnder ꝑ whole Heauen, were couered. Fyftene cubytes vpwarde dyd the waters preuayle, so that the mountaynes were couered.

And all flesche dyed that moued vpon ꝑ earth in foule, in catell, in beast, and in euery worme ꝑ crepeth vpon the earth: yee, and euery man also (what soeuer was in whose nostrels the brethe of lyfe dyd brethe all these in the drye lande dy-

And *euery thynge was destroyed, that remayned, and that was in the vpper parte of the grounde (both man, and catell, and worme, and foule of the ayre) they were euen destroyed from of the earthe. And Noah onely remayned alyue, and they that were with hym in the Arke. But the waters preuayled vpon the earthe an hundreth and fyfty dayes.

C The. viii. Chapter.

After the sensyngre out of the Rauen and the Doue, Noe goeth forth of the Arke, and offereth sacrifyce. The naturall corrupcyon of mans harte.

A ND God remembred Noah, and euery beaste, and all the catell that was wyth hym in the Arke. And God made a wynde to passe vpon ꝑ earth, and the waters ceassed. The fountaynes also of the depe and the wyndowes of heauen were stopped, and the rayne from heuen was restrayned. And the waters from the earth were returned, goynge and commynge agaynde. And after the ende of the hundreth and fyftyeth daye, the waters were abated.

And in the seuenth moneth: in the seuententh daye of the Moneth, the Arke rested vpon the mountaynes of Armenia. And the waters truly were goyng and decreasyng vntyll the tenth moneth: For in the tenth moneth, and in ꝑ fyrste daye of the same moneth, were the toppes of the mountaynes sene. And after the ende of the fortyeth daye, it happened that Noah opened the wyndowe of the Arke which he had made. And he sent furth a rauen, whyche went out goynge furth and returnyng agayne, vntyll the waters were dryed vp vpon the earth. And agayne he sent furth a doue from hym, that he myght se yf B the waters were abated from the vpper face of the grounde. And the doue founde no rest for the sole of her fote, & she returned vnto hym agayne into the Arke: for the waters were in the vpper face of the whole earth. And he when he had put furth hys hande, toke her: and pulled her in to hym into the Arke.

And he abode yet other seuen dayes, and proceadynge further, he sente furth the doue out of the Arke. And the doue came to hym in the euen tyde, and lo, in her mouthe was an Olyue leafe that she had plucte: wherby Noah dyd knowe, that the waters were abated vpon the earthe. And he abode yet other seuen dayes, and sente furthe the doue, which proceaded not to returne vnto hym any more.

And it came to passe in the syxe hundreth and C
one yere, in the fyrste moneth, and in the fyrste daye of the Moneth, the waters were dryed vp from the earth. And Noah remoued the couerynge of the Arke, and loked, and beholde, ꝑ vpper face of the grounde was dryed vp. And in the seconde moneth, in the seuen and twenty day of the moneth, was the earth dryed.

And God spak vnto Noah saying: Go furth of the Arke, thou and thy wyfe, thy sonnes, and thy sonnes wyues with the. And bryng furthe with the, euery beast that is with the: of all flesh (both foule and catel, and euery worme that crepeth vpon the earthe) that they maye gendre in the earthe, and bryng furthe frute, and * encreace vpon earthe. And so Noah came furthe, Gene.i.c.d and.ix.a. and his sonnes, his wyfe, and his sonnes wyues with hym. Euery beaste also and euery worme, D euerye foule, and what so euer creepeth vpon the erth (after theyr kyndes) went out of the Arke.

And Noah buylded an alter vnto the Lorde, Leui.vi.a. and toke of euerye * cleane beaste, and of euerye cleane foule, and offered sacrifyces in the altare. And the Lorde smelled a swete (or quyet) sauour And the Lorde sayde in his hert: I wyl not proceade to curse the grounde any more for mannes Gene.viii.a. sake, for the * ymaginacyon of mannes herte is euell euen from his youth. Neyther wyll I adde to smyte any more euery thynge liuynge, as I haue done, yet therfore shall not sowynge tyme and haruest, cold and heate, Sommer and wynter, daye & nyght ceasse, all the dayes of ỹ earth.

¶ God blessed Noe and his sonnes. He forbyddeth to eate the bloude of beastes, and to shed mans bloude. The lawe of the swearde. He maketh a couenaunt that he wyll destroye the worlde nomore by water, and geueth the raynbowe for a token and confirmacyon of the same. Noe is dronken. Ham vncouereth hym, and getteth his curse.

And God * blessed Noah and his son- Gene.i.c.d and.viii.d. nes. And sayde vnto them: Bringe ye furthe frute, and multiplye, and replenesshe the earth. The feare of you and the drede of you shalbe vpō euery beast of the earth, and vpon euery foule of the ayre, in all suche as the earth bryngeth furth and in all the fysches of the see.

In to your hande are they delyuered. Euery thynge that moueth it selfe, and that lyueth shal be meat for you: Euen as the grene herbe haue Leui.vii.c. I geuen you all thynges. But * flesshe in the lyke and.xvii.d. therof and in the bloude therof shall ye not eate. Elles your bloude of your lyues wyll I requyre from the hande of euery beaste wyll I requyre it, and from the hande of man: From the hande of mans brother wyll I requyre the lyfe of man Mat.xxvi.e Apoca.xiii.e Who so * shedeth mannes bloude, by man shall his bloude be shedde: For in the ymage of God dyd God make man. But bryng you furth frute and multiplye: Gendre ye in the earthe, and encreace therein.

B God spake also vnto Noah and to his sonnes Gene.vi.d. wyth hym, sayinge: Beholde, I set vp my * couenaunt wyth you, and with your sede after you and wyth euery lyuynge creature that is wyth you, both in foule and in catel, and in euery beast of the earthe whyche is wyth you of all that go out of the Arke, accordynge vnto euery liuynge thynge of the earthe. But my couenaunte wyll Esa.liiii.c. I make wyth you, that from * henceforth euery flesshe, be not rooted oute wyth the waters of a floude, neyther shal there be a floude to destroye the earthe any more.

And God sayde: Thys is the token of the couenaūt whych I geue betwene me and you, and euery lyuyng creature that is with you into perpetuall generacyons. I haue set my bowe in the cloud, and it shalbe for a token betwene me and the earthe. And it shall come to passe that when I bryngе a cloude vpon the earthe, the bowe also C shall be sene in the same cloude. And I wyll thynke vpon my couenaunte whiche is betwene me and you, and euery liuyng creature in al flesh and it shall nomore come to passe, that * waters Ec.xliii.e. make a floude to destroye all flesshe. But the bowe shalbe in the same cloude, and I wyl loke vpon it, that I maye thynke vpon the euerlastynge couenaunte betwene God, and euery lyuynge creature in all flesshe that is vpon earthe. And God sayde vnto Noah. This is the token of the couenaunt whyche I haue made betwene me and all flesshe that is vpon earth.

The sonnes of Noah going furth of the arke were: Sem, Ham, and Japheth. And Ham truly is the father of Chanaan. These are the thre sons of Noah, and of them was the whole earth ouerspred. Noah also beganne to be an husbandman, and planted a vyneparde. And he dronkynge of the wyne, was dronken, and vncouered wythin hys tente.

And Ham the father of Canaan seynge the nakednes of hys father, tolde his two bretherne D without. And Sem and Japhet, they two, takynge a garmente, layde it vpon theyr shulders and cummynge backwarde, coured the naked preuities of theyr father: ne[illegible]ly their faces beynge turned awaye, leest they [illegible]se theyr fathers preuytyes.

And Noah awoke from his wyne, and knew what his yonger sonne had done vnto him. And he sayde: Cursed be Canaan, a seruaunte of seruauntes shall he be vnto his brethren. He sayde moreouer: Blessed be the Lorde God of Sem, and Canaan shalbe his seruaunt. God shall enlarge Japheth, and he shall dwel in the tentes of Sem, and Canaan shalbe theyr seruaunte. Noah lyued after the floude thre hundreth and fyftie yeres. And all the dayes of Noah were nyne hundreth and fyfty yeres. And he dyed.

¶ The.x. Chapter.

These are the generacyons of the sonnes A of Noah, Sem, Ham, and Japheth: And vnto them were chyldren borne after the floude. The chyldren of * Japheth: Gomer, and Magog, and Madai, i.Para.i.a and Iauan, and Thubal, Mesech, and Theras. The chyldren of Gomer: Askenas, and Ripath and Thogarma. The chyldren of Iauan: Elisa and Tharsis, Kitthim, and Donanim. Of these were the Iles of the Gentyles deuyded in theyr landes, euery man after his tonge, and after his kynred in theyre nacyons.

The chyldren of Ham: Cusch, and Mizrim, and Phut, and Chanaan. And the chyldren of Cusch: Seba and Hauilah, and Sabtha, and Rahma, and Sabthecha. The chyldren of Rahma: Scheba and Dedan. Cusch also begatte * Nimrod. The same began to be myghtye in B the earthe. For he was a myghtye hunter be- i.Para.i.a fore the Lorde. Wherfore it is sayde: Euen as Nimrod the myghtye hunter before the Lorde. The beginnyng of his kyngdom was * Babel, Gene.xi.b. and Erech, and Accad, and Calne, in the lande of Sinhar. Out of that lande came Assur, and buylded * Ninive, and the stretes of the cyte, & Calah. Resen also betwene Ninive and Calah, Jonas.i.b. and it is a greate Cytye.

Mizraim

Mizraiim begat Ludim, and Enamim, and Lehabim, and Nephthuhim. Parthrusim, also and Casluhim, out of whome came Philistiim and C Capthorim. Chanaan begate zidon hys fyrste borne sonne and Heth, and Jebusi, and Emori, and Girgosi, Hahiui also, and Haarki, and Hassini, and Haaruadi, and Hazmari, and Hahemathi: And afterward were the kynreds of the Cananytes spred abrode. These are the chyldren of Ham in theyr kynredes, in theyr tonges, countres and in theyr nacyons.

Unto Sem also the father of all the chyldren of Eber, (and elder brother of Japheth) there were chyldren borne. The chyldren of Sem:

These are the chyldren of Sem after theyr kynredes and tonges in theyr landes and nacyons. And so these are the kynredes of the chyldren of Noah, after theyre generacyons in theyr peoples, and of these were the nacyons deuyded in the earth, after the floude.

And they sayde: Goto, let vs buylde vs a cytie and a tower, whose toppe maye reach vnto Heauen: and let vs make vs a name, leest happely we be scatred abrode into the vpper face of ỹ whole earth But the Lorde came downe, to se the Cytie and tower which the chyldren of men buylded. B

And the Lorde sayde: Beholde, the people is one, and they haue all one language, & this they begyn to do, neyther wyll it be restrayned from them, what so euer they haue ymagined to do. Come on, let vs go downe, and confounde theyr language: that euery one perceaue not his neighbours speche. And so the Lorde scatred them frō that place into the vpper face of all the earthe. And they lefte of to buylde the cytie. And therfore is the name of it called * Babel, because the Lorde dyd there confounde the language of all the earth. And from thence dyd the Lorde scater them abrode vpon the face of all the earth. Gene.r.b. Confusyon.

Abram and Nahor toke them wyues: The name of Abrams wyfe was Sarai, and the name of Nahors wife was Milca, the doughter of Haran: ỹ father of Milca, and the father of Jisca. ¶ Abzam is blessed of God, and goeth wyth Lot vnto the lande of Canaan, whyche God pzomysed to geue vn to hym and his sede. Abzam goeth into Egypte, and cau seth Sarai his wyfe to call her selfe his syster, foz whom Pharao is plaged.

A Acte.vii.a Hebz.xi.c

AND the Lozde sayde vnto Abzam: *Gette the out of thy countre, and out of thy nacyon, and from thy fa-thers house vnto a lande that I wyl shewe the. And I wyll make of the Ge.xviii.a. and.xxii.c. I wyll also blesse them that blesse the, and curse them that curse the, and in the shall all kynredes of the earthe be blessed.

And so Abzam departed, euen as the Lozde spake vnto hym, and Lot went with hym. And Abzam was seuentye and fyue yeres olde, when 25 he departed out of Haran. And Abzam toke Sa rai his wyfe and Lot his bzothers sonne, and all Ge.xiii.a. and.xiiii.c. theyze *substaunce that they had in possessyon, and the soules that they had begotten in Haran And they departed, that they myghte come in-to the lande of Chanaan: And in to the lande of Chanaan they came. Abzam passed thozowe the lande vnto the place of Sychem, and vnto the playne of Mozethe: And the Cananyte was then in the lande. And the Lozde appearynge vnto Abzam, sayde: Unto thy *sede wyl I geue Ge.xiii.d. xv.d.e.xvii d. de.xxiiii.b this lande. And there buylded he an altare vnto the Lozde, euen where he had appered vnto hym C And remouynge thence vnto a mountayne that was estwarde from Bethel, he pytched his tent hauynge Bethell on the west syde, and Hai on the east. And he buyldynge an altare vnto the Lozde, dyd call on the name of the Lozde. And Abzam went furth goynge and departynge to-warde the south. But there was a derth in that land, and therfoze went Abzam downe into E-gypte, that he myghte sogeourne there, foz there was a soze dearth in the lande. And it happened when he was come nere to entre into Egypt, he sayde vnto Sarai his wyfe: Beholde, I knowe that thou art a fayer woman to loke vpon. Therfoze shall it come to passe, that when the Egyptyans se the, they shall saye: She is hys wyfe. And they shall kyll me, but they shal saue Ge.xx.a.d. the alyue. Saye (I pzay the) that *thou art my D syster, that I maye fare well foz thy sake, and y my soule maye lyue thozowe thy occasyon.

And so it happened, when Abzam was come into Egipt, the Egipcyans beheld the woman foz she was verye fayze. The Pzynces also of Pharao sawe her, and cõmended her befoze Pha rao, & the woman was takẽ into Pharos house. And he truly intreated Abzam well foz her sake and he had shepe and oxen and he asses, men ser-uauntes and mayde seruauntes, she asses, and ca melles. And the Lozde smote Pharao and hys house with greate plages, because of Sarai A-bzams wyfe. And Pharao calling Abzam, sayd Why haste thou done thys vnto me? And before they went to reste, the men of the cytie (euen the men of Sodome) compassed the house rounde about both olde and ponge, all the people from all quarters. And when the morynyng arose, the angels caused Lot to spede hym saying: Stand vp, take thy wyfe & thy two doughters at hand lest thou perysh in the synne of the cytie. And as he prolonged the tyme, the men caught both him his wyfe and his two doughters by the handes the Lorde beyng mercyfull vnto hym, and they brought hym furth and set hym wythout the cytie. Then the Lorde rayned vpon *Sodome & Gomorra, brymstone, and fyre from the Lorde out of Heuen, and ouerthrue those cyties and all the regyon, and all that dwelled in the cyties, & that that grewe vpon the earthe. and laye wyth her father. And he perceaued it not, neyther when she laye downe, nether when she rose vp. And on the morow it happened that G the elder sayde vnto the yonger: beholde, yesternyght laye I with my father. Let vs make hym dronke with wyne this nyght also, and go thou and lye with him, that we maye rayse vp sede of our father. And they made theyr father dronke with wyne ỹ nyght also. And the yonger arose and laye with hym. And he perceaued it not: nether when she laye downe, neither when she rose vp. Thus were both the doughters of Lot with chylde by theyr father. And the elder bare a sõne and called his name Moab. The same is the father of the Moabytes vnto this daye. And the yonger bare a sonne also & called his name Ben Ammi. The same is the father of the children of Ammon vnto thys daye.

¶ The. xx. Chapter.

¶ Abraham went as a straunger into the lande of Gerar. The kynge of Gerar taketh awaye his wyfe.

A AND Abraham departed thence toward the south countrey, & dwelled betwene Cades and Sur, and sogeorned in Gerar. And Abraham sayde of Sara his wyfe: she is my *syster. And Abimelech kyng of Gerar sent and fet Sara awaye.

Gen xii.c. and. xxbi.b.

But God came to Abimelech in a dreame in the nyght and sayde vnto hym: Se, thou shalte dye for the womans sake which thou hast taken awaye, for she is a mans wyfe. But Abimelech had not yet come nye her, & he sayde: Lord wylt thou slaye ryghteous people? sayde not he vnto me, she is my syster: yee, and sayd not she her self he is my brother? with a pure hert and innocent handes haue I done this. And God sayde vnto
B hym by a dreame, I wot it well that thou dydest it in the purenes of thy hert. I kept the also that thou shuldest not synne agaynst me, and therfor suffred I the not to touche her. Nowe therfore delyuer the man his wyfe agayne for he is a prophete. And he shal praye for the that thou mayst lyue. But and yf thou delyuer her not agayne, be sure that thou shalt dye the death both thou, and all that thou hast. Therfore Abimelech rysynge vp by tymes in the morning called all his seruauntes and tolde all these sayinges in theyr eares, and the men were sore afrayde. And Abi-
C melech called Abraham & sayd vnto hym: what hast thou done vnto vs, and what haue I offended the that thou hast brought on me and on my kyngdome so great a synne? thou hast done dedes vnto me that ought not to be done. And Abimelech sayd vnto Abraham: What sawest thou that thou hast done this thynge.

Abraham answered. For I sayde: surely the feare of God is not in thys place, and they shall slaye me for my wyues sake: yet in very dede she is my syster, for she is the doughter of my father though she be not the doughter of my mother: & she became my wyfe. And after God caused me to wandre out of my fathers house, I sayde vnto her: This kyndenesse shalt thou shewe vnto
D me in all places where we come, that thou saye of me, he is my brother. Then toke Abimelech shepe and oxen, men seruauntes and wemenseruauntes and gaue them vnto Abraham, & delyuered hym Sara his wyfe agayne. And Abimelech sayde: beholde, my lande lyeth before the, dwell where it pleaseth the best. But vnto Sara he sayd: Se, I haue geuen thy brother a thousande peces of syluer, beholde: it shall be a couerynge of thyne eyes, vnto all that are with the and thus with all was she reproued.

And so Abraham prayde vnto God, and god healed Abimelech, and hys wyfe and hys maydens, and they bare chyldren. For the Lorde had closed to all the matrynes of the house of Abimelech: because of Abrahams wyfe.

And Abraham was an hundred yere olde: when his sonne Isahac was borne vnto hym. But Sara sayd: God hath made me a laughynge stocke: so that all ỹ heare: wyll laugh at me. She sayde also: who wold haue sayde vnto Abraham, ỹ Sara shuld haue geuen children sucke? for I haue borne him a sonne in his olde age: The chylde grewe: and was wened: and Abraham made a great feaste: the same daye that Isahac was wened. wherfore she sayde vnto Abraham: ‡ put away this bondemayde and her sonne: for the sonne of this bondwoman shal not be heyre with my son Isahac: and this sayinge was very greuous in Abrahams syght because of his sonne. And the water was spente in the bottell, and she caste the lad vnder a bushe and wente and satte on the other syde a greate waye, as it were a bowe shote of: for she sayde: I wyll not se the death of the chylde. Feare not, for God hath heard the voyce of the chylde where he lyeth. Aryse and lyfte vp the lad, and take hym in thy hande, for I wyl make of hym a greate people. And God opened her eyes: and she saw a well of water. And she went and fylled the bottell wyth water and gaue the boye drynke. And God was with the lad, and he grewe and dwelte in the wylderneſſe, and became an archer. And he dwelt in the wyldernes of Pharan. And hys mother gat hym a wyfe out of the lande of Egypte.

D And Abraham rebuked Abimelech for a wel of water, whyche Abimelechs ſeruauntes had vyolently taken awaye. And Abimelech ſayde: I wote not who hath done thys thynge. Alſo thou toldeſt me not: neyther hearde I of it, but this daye. And Abraham toke ſhepe and oxen, and gaue them vnto Abimelech. And they made both of them a bond together. And Abraham ſet ſeuen ewe lambes by them ſelues. And Abimelech ſayde vnto Abraham: what meane theſe ſeuen ewe lambes which thou haſte ſet by them ſelues? He anſwered: For theſe ſeuen lambes ſhalt thou take of my hande, that they may be a wytneſſe vnto me, that I haue dygged this wel. Wherfore the place is called Beer Seba, becauſe that there they ſweare both of them. Thus made they a bonde together at Beer Seba. And Abimelech & Phicol his chefe captayne roſe vp, and turned agayne vnto the land of the Philyſtines. And Abraham planted a wood in Beer Seba, and called there on the name of the Lorde, the euerlaſtynge God: and ſo gouerned in the Philyſtines lande a longe ſeaſon.

¶Sara dyed and is buryed in the felde that Abraham bought of Ephron the Hethite.

SAra was an hundred and. xxvii. yeare olde (so longe lyued she) and Sara dyed in Kyriat Arba. The same is Hebron in the lande of Canaã. And Abraham came to mourne Sara and to wepe for her.

And Abraham stode vp from the syght of his coarse, and talked wyth the sonnes of Heth saying: I am a straunger and a forainer amonge you geue me a possessyon to bury in with you, that I maye bury my coarse out of my syght. And the chyldren of Heth answered Abraham, sayinge vnto hym: Heare vs Lorde, thou art a Prynce of God amonge vs. In the chefest of our sepulchres burye thy deade: None of vs also shall forbyd the hys sepulchre: but thou mayst burye thy deade therein: Abraham stoode vp and bowed hym selfe before the people of the lande of ỹ children of Heth. And he commened with them saying: Yf it be your mynde that I shall bury my deade out of my syght, heare me: and speake for me to Ephron the sonne of Zoar: ỹ he maye geue me the dubble caue whyche he hath, and that is in the ende of hys felde: but for as muche money as it is worth, shall he geue it me in the presence of you for a possessyon to burye in. For Ephron dwelled amonge the chyldren of Heth.

And Ephron the Hethite aunswered Abraham in the audyence of the chyldren of Heth and of all that went in at the gates of his Cytie, saynge: Not so my Lorde, heare me. The felde geue I the, and the caue that therin is geue I the also: and euen in the presence of the sonnes of my people geue I it the, burye thy deade. And Abraham bowed him selfe before the people of ỹ lande and spake vnto Ephron in the audyence of the people of the countrey, saying: I praye the heare me if it please the: I wyll geue syluer for ỹ felde, take it, & I wyll burye my deade there. Ephron answered Abraham saying vnto hym: My lord herken vnto me. The lande is worth foure hundred sycles of syluer: what is that betwyxte the and me? burye therfore thy deade. And Abraham harkened vnto Ephron and weyed him the syluer which he had sayde, in the audyence of the sonnes of Heth. Euen foure hundred syluer sycles of currant money amonge marchauntes. And the felde of Ephron with the doubble caue whiche was before Mamre: euen the felde and the caue that was therein, and all the trees that were in the felde, and that were in all ỹ borders rounde aboute, was made sure vnto Abraham for a possessyon, in the syghte of the chyldren of Heth, before all that wente in at the gates of the cytie. After this dyd Abraham burye Sara his wyfe in ỹ double caue of the felde that lyeth before Mamre. The same is Hebron in the lande of Canaan. And so both the felde and the caue ỹ is therein, was made vnto Abraham a sure possession to burye in, of the sonnes of Heth.

¶Abraham maketh hys seruaunte to sweare, and sendeth hym to seke a wyfe for Isaha. hys sonne, The seruaunte was faythfull and broughte Rebecca, whiche Isahac toke to hys wyfe.

ABraham was olde and stryken in dayes, and the Lorde had blessed hym in all thynges. And Abraham sayde vnto his eldest seruaunt of hys house whiche hadde the rule ouer all that he had. Put thy hande vnder my thyghe, and I wyl make the sweare by the lorde God of Heauen, and God of the earth, that thou shalt not take a wyfe vnto my sonne, of ỹ doughters of Chanaan, amonge whiche I dwell. But thou shalte go vnto my countrey and to my natyue lande, and take a wyfe vnto my sonne Isahac. But the seruaunte sayde vnto hym: peraduenture the woman wyll not agre to come wyth me vnto thys lande, shall I brynge thy sonne agayne vnto the lande whiche thou cammest out of? To whom Abraham answered: beware that thou bryng not my sonne thyther agayne.

The Lorde God of Heauen, whiche toke me from my fathers house, and from ỹ lande where I was borne: And which spake vnto me, and that sweare vnto me saying: vnto thy *sede wyl I geue thys lande, he shall sende his Aungel before the, and thou shalte take a wyfe vnto my sonne from thence. Neuertheles yf the woman wyll not agre to folowe the, than shalte thou be without daunger of this my oth. *Gene. xb.d

Only brynge not my sonne thyther agayne. And the seruaunt put his hand vnder the thygh of Abraham hys master, and sware to hym as concernynge that matter. And the seruaunte toke ten Camelles of the camelles of his master and departed, and had of all maner of goodes of hys master wyth hym, and stode vp: and wente to Mesopotamia, vnto the Cytye of Nahor. And made his Camelles to lye downe without the Cytie by a welles syde of water, at euen: aboute the tyme that wemen come out to drawe water. And he sayde.

Lorde God of my master Abraham, sende me good spede this daye, and shewe mercye vnto my master Abraham. Lo, I stande here by the well of water, and the doughters of the men of this Cytie come out to drawe water: Nowe ỹ damesell to whom I saye, stoupe downe thy pytcher I praye the, that I maye drynke. Yf she saye also: Drynke, and I wyll geue thy Camelles drynke: the same is she that thou haste ordeyned for thy seruaunte Isahac: yea, and thereby shall I knowe that thou haste shewed mercy on my master. And it came to passe yer he had left speaking: beholde, Rebecca came out, the doughter of Bethuel, sonne to Milca the wyfe of Nahor Abrahams brother, & her pytcher vpon her shoulder: The damesell was very fayre to loke vpon, and yet a mayde and vnknowen of man. And she went downe to the well, and fylled her pytcher, and came vp. And the seruaunte runnyng vnto her, sayde: let me sup a lytle water of thy pytcher. And she sayde: drynke my Lorde.

And she hasted, & let downe her pytcher vpon her arme, and gaue hym drynke. And when she had gyuen hym drynke, she sayde: I wyll drawe water water for thy camels also, vntyl they haue dronken ynoughe. And she poured out her pytcher into the trough hastly, and ran agayne vnto the well to fet water, and drewe for all his camels. And ỹ man wõdred at her: But helde his peace, to wite whyther the Lord had made his iourney prosperous or not: And it fortuned, as the camels had lefte drynkyng, the man toke a golden earynge of halfe a sycle weyght, and two bracelettes for her handes, of tenne sycles weyght of golde, and sayde: whose doughter art thou? tell me I pray ỹ, is there roume in thy fathers house for vs to lodge in? She answered him: I am the doughter of Bathuel the son of Milca, whiche she bare vnto Nahor and sayde moreouer vnto hym: we haue lytter and prouonder ynoughe, and also roume to lodge in.

D And the mã bowed hym self, and worshipped the Lorde, and sayde: blessed be the Lorde God of my master Abraham, whiche ceasseth not to deale mercyfullye and trulye with my master, and hath brought me ỹ way to my masters brothers house. And the damsell ran and told them of her mothers house these thinges. And Rebecca had a brother called Laban.

And he ran out vnto the man, euen to the well for assoone as he had sene the earynges, and the bracelettes in his systers handes (and herde the wordes of Rebecca his sister, saying: thus sayd the man vnto me) he wente oute vnto the man. And loo: he stoode with the camels by the well syde. And he sayde: come in thou blessed of the Lorde. Wherfore standest thou wythoute? I haue dressed the house, and made roume for ỹ camels. And then the man came into ỹ house: and he vnbrydled the camels, and (Laban) brought lytter and prouonder for the camels, and water to washe hys feet and the mennes feet that were with him, and set meate before him to eate. But he sayd I wyl not eate, vntyl I haue sayde mine errande. And he sayde: saye on. And he sayde: I am Abrahams seruaunte, and God hath blessed my mayster oute of measure, that he is become great, and hath gyuen hym shepe, and oxen, syluer and golde, men seruauntes, and mayde seruauntes, camelles, and asses.

Gene.xxi.a And *Sara my masters wyfe bare hym a sonne, when she was olde, and vnto him hath he gyuen al that he hath. And my master made me sweare, saying: thou shalte not take a wyfe to my sonne amonge the doughters of the Cananytes in whose lande I dwell.

But thou shalte goo vnto my fathers house, and to my kinred, & take a wyfe vnto my sonne. And I sayde vnto my master: peraduenture the wyfe wyll not folowe me: And he answered me
E The Lorde, before whome I walke, wyll sende his Angell with the, and prosper thy iourneye, and thou shalte take a wyfe for my sonne of my kynrede and of my fathers house. Then shalte thou be gyltlesse of my curse, when thou cõmest to my kynrede. And yf they gyue the not one, thou shalt be gyltlesse of my curse.

And so I came this daye vnto the wel, & sayd O Lorde, the God of my master Abraham, yf it be so nowe that thou makest my iourney which I go, prosperous: beholde, I stande by this well of water, and when a virgyn commeth forth to drawe water, and I saye to her: geue me (I pray the) a lytle water of thy pytcher to drynke, and she say to me: drynke thou, & I wyll also drawe for thy camelles: that same is the wyfe, whome the Lorde hathe prepared for my masters sonne.

And before I had made an ende of speakynge in myne herte: beholde, Rebecca came forth, and her pitcher on her shoulder, and she went downe vnto to the well, and drewe water. And I sayde vnto her: gyue me drynke I praye the. And she made haste, and toke downe her pytcher from of her, and sayde: drynke, and I wyll gyue thy Camelles drynke also.

And I dranke, and she gaue the camels drynke also. And I asked her, sayinge: whose doughter art thou? She answered: the doughter of Bathuel Nahors sonne * whome Milca bare vnto hym. And I put the earynge vpon her face, and the bracelettes vpon her handes. And I bowed my selfe, and worshypped the Lorde, and blessed the Lorde God of my master Abraham whyche had brought me the ryght waye to take my masters brothers doughter vnto his sonne. Nowe also, yf ye wyll deale mercyfully and truly with my master, tell me: and yf not, tell me also that I maye tourne me to the ryght hand or to the left.

Then answered Laban and Bathuel, saying Thys saying is proceded euen out of the Lorde: we can not therfore saye vnto the, eyther good, or badde: Beholde, Rebecca is before the, take her and goo, that she may be thy masters sonnes wyfe, euen as God hath sayde: And when Abrahams seruaunt heard theyr wordes, he worshyped the Lorde flat vpon the earth. And the seruaunt toke forthe iewels of syluer and iewels of golde and rayment and gaue them to Rebecca. And vnto her brother & to her mother, he gaue gyftes, and they dyd eate and drynke, both he & the men that were wt hym, and tarved all nyght. And when they rose vp in the morning: He sayd lette me departe vnto my master. Her brother, and her mother answered: let the damesel abyde wyth vs a whyle, and it be but euen ten dayes, and then shall she go. He sayde vnto them, hynder me not: beholde, the Lorde hath prospered my iourneye. Sende me awaye therfore, that I maye go vnto my master. And they sayde we wyl call the damesel, and enquyre at her mouth. And they called forth Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: wylte thou goo wyth thys man? And she answered: I wyll goo. G

So they let Rebecca theyr syster go and her nurse, and Abrahams seruaunte, and his men. And they blessed Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: Thou art our sister, growe into thousand thousandes * and thy seede possesse the gate of theyr Gen.x

A Nd it came to passe that when Isahac waxed olde, and hys eyes were dymme (so that he coulde not se.) he called Esau his eldest sone and sayde vnto hym. Myn sonne, and he sayde vnto hym: here am I. And he sayde: beholde, I am nowe olde, and knowe not the daye of my deth: and nowe therfore take thy wepens, thy quyuer and thy bowe and get the to the feldes, that thou mayst take me some venison, and make me meate such as I loue, and bryng it me that I maye eate, and that my soule maye blesse the, before that I dye. But Rebecca hearde whẽ Isahac spake to Esau his sonne, And Esau wẽt into the felde, to catche venyson, and to bryng it. ✠ And Rebecca sayde vnto Jacob her sonne sayinge: Beholde I haue hearde thy father talkyng with Esau thy brother and saying: bryng me venyson and make me meate, that I maye eate and blesse the before ỹ Lord, afore my death Nowe therfore my sonne heare my voice in that B whiche I cõmaunde the: get the to the flocke, & bryng me thence two good kyds, ỹ I may make meate of them for thy father, suche as he loueth. And ỹ shalt bryng it to thy father, ỹ he may eat and that he may blesse ỹ before his death. Then said Jacob to Rebecca his mother: behold, Esau my brother is a rough man, & I am smoth. Myn father shall peraduenture fele me, & I shall seme vnto hym as though I wẽt about to begyle him and so shal he bryng a curse vpon me, & not a blessyng: and his mother sayde vnto hym: vpon me be thy curse my sonne, only heare my voyce, & go and fetch me thẽ. And Jacob went & fet them, & brought thẽ to his mother. And his mother made meate suche as she knewe his father loued. And Jacob sayde vnto hys father: I am Esau thy eldest sonne, I haue done accordynge as thou baddest me: vp and syt and eate of my venyson, ꝑ thy soule maye blesse me. And Jsahac sayde vnto his sonne: howe commeth it that thou hastest founde it so quyckly my sonne? He answerered: The Lorde thy God brought it to my hande: Then sayde Jsahac vnto Jacob, come nere and let me fele the my sonne whether thou be my sonne Esau or not. Then went Jacob to Jsahac hys father, and he felte & sayde: the voyce is Jacobs voyce, but the handes are the handes of Esau. And he brought hym wyne also, and he dranke. And hys father Jsahac sayde vnto hym: come nere, and kysse me my sonne. And he went vnto hym and kyssed hym. And he smelled

When Esau heard the wordes of his father, he cryed out greatly and bytterly, aboue measure, & sayde vnto his father: blesse me also my father. And Jacob went in vnto her, and Bilha conceaued and bare Jacob a sonne. Then sayde Rahell. God hath geuen sentence on my syde, & hath also heard my voyce and hath geuen me a sonne. Therfore called she hym Dan. And Bilha Rahels mayd conceaued agayne, & bare Jacob another sone. And Rahel sayde with godly wrestlynges haue I wrestled with my syster & haue gotten the vpper hande. Then went he out of Leas tente, and entred into Rahels tente. And Rahel had taken the ymages and put them in the camels strawe, and sate downe vpon them. And Laban serched all the tente: but founde them not. Then sayde she to her father: my Lorde, be not angry that I can not ryse vp before the, for the custome of women is come vpon me. So searched he but found not those ydols. And Jacob was wroth, & chode with Laban. Jacob also answered and sayde to hym: what haue I trespaced or what haue I offended, that thou folowedest so after me? ¶ Joseph accuseth his brethren. Joseph dreameth and is hated of his brethren, and solde to the Ismaelytes. Jacob bewayleth Joseph.

JAcob dwelt in the lande wherein his father was a straunger, euen in the lande of Canaan. These are the generacyons of Jacob: When Joseph was seuentene yere old, he kept shepe with his brethren, and the ladde was with the sonnes of Bilha and with the sonnes of zilpha, his fathers wyues. And he brought vnto theyr father an cupll sayinge of them. But Israel loued Joseph moze then all his chyldren, bycause he begat hym in his olde age, and he made hym a coote of many colours.

And when his brethren sawe that theyr father loued hym moze then all his brethren, they hated hym, and coulde not speake peaceably vnto hym. Moreouer, when Joseph *had dreamed a dreame, he tolde it his brethren, whiche hated hym yet the moze. ✠ And he sayde vnto them: heare, I prayе you, this dreame whiche I haue dreamed: Beholde, we were byndynge sheues in the felde: and lo, my sheke arose, and stode vpryght, and yours stode rounde about, and made obeysaunce to my sheke. To whom his brethren sayde: shalt thou be our kynge in dede? oz shalte thou in dede haue dompnion ouer vs? And they hated hym yet the moze, bycause of his dreames and of his wozdes.

And he dreamed yet an other dreame, and tolde his brethren, sayinge: beholde, I haue had one dreame moze: me thought the sunne and the moone and .xi. starres made obeysaunce to me. And when he had tolde it vnto his father and his brethren, his father rebuked hym, and sayde vnto hym: what is this dreame which thou hast dreamed? shall I and thy mother, and thy brethren thren come to fall on the grounde before the?

And hys brethren hated hym, but his father noted the sayinge. His brethren also went to kepe theyr fathers shepe in Sichem, and Israel sayd vnto Joseph: doo not thy brethren kepe in Sichem? come, and I wyll sende the to them.

He answered * here am I. And he sayde vnto hym: goo and se whether it be well wyth thy brethren, and the shepe: and brynge me worde agayne. And so he sente hym out of the vale of Hebron, and he went to Sichem. And a certayn man founde hym, and behold he was wandrynge out of hys waye in the felde, and the man asked hym: what seekest thou? He answered: I seke my brethren, tell me I pray ỹ where they kepe shepe And the man sayde, they are departed hence, for I heard them saye: let vs go vnto Dothan.
Thus went Joseph after his brethren, & founde them in Dothan. And when they saw hym a far of before he came at them, they toke councell a-D gaynst hym, for to sleye hym. For one sayde to

✠ he myght rydde hym out of theyr handes and delyuer hym to his father agayne. ✠

And it happened that when Joseph was come vnto hys brethren, they strypte hym out of hys
E coate, hys party coloured coote that was vpon hym, and they toke hym and caste hym into an emptye pytte: Wherein was no water. And they sat them downe to eate bread. And as they lyfte vp theyr eyes and loked about, there came a companye of Ismaelytes from Gilead, & their camels laden with spycery, baulme, and myrre, and were goynge downe to carry it into Egypt.

And Juda sayde vnto hys brethren: what auayleth it yf we slaye our brother, and kepe hys

Acte.vii.b the Ismaelytes, and let not our handes be vpon

And when Ruben came agayn vnto the pyt and founde not Joseph there, he rent his clothes and went agayne vnto his brethren sayinge: the lad is not yender, and whether shall I go? And they toke Josephs coote and kylled a goate, and dypped the coote in the bloude. And they sente
G that partye coloured coote, and brought it vnto theyr father and sayde: This haue we founde: se whether it be thy sonnes cote ozno. And he knew it sayinge, it is my sonnes coote, a wycked beast hath * deuoured hym, Joseph is rent in peces.

about hys loynes, and sorowed for hys sonne a longe season. But all his sonnes and all his doughters rose vp to conforte hym. Neuertheless, he wolde not be conforted, but sayde: I wyll go downe into the graue vnto my sonne, mourning And thus his father wepte for hym. And ỹ Madianytes * solde hym in Egypte vnto Putiphar a lorde of Pharaos, and his chefe stewarde. Ge.xxxix.a Psa.cviii.f Sapi.x.c.

And Judas gaue Er his eldest sonne a wyfe whose name was Thamar. And Er Judas eldest sonne was wycked in the syght of the Lorde, and the Lorde slewe hym. And Judas sayde vnto Onan: go into thy brothers wyfe, and marye her: that thou mayst stirre vp sede vnto thy brother. And when Onan perceaued that the sede

And the thynge whyche he dyd, displeased the Lorde, wherfore he slewe hym also. And Thamar wente and dwelte in her fathers house.

And in proces of tyme, the doughter of Sua Judas wyfe dyed. Then Judas when he had lefte mournyng, went vnto his shepe sherers to Timnath he and his frende Hira of Odollam.

hath shewed Pharao what he is aboute to do. The seuen good kyne are seuen yeres: and the seuen good eares are seuen yeres also, and it is but one dreame Lykewyse, the seuen thynne and euel fauoured kine that came out after them, are seuen yeres: and the seuen emptye, and blasted eares, shall be seuen yeres of hunger. D Beholde there come seuen yere of great plenteousnes throughoute all the lande of Egypte. And agayne, there shal aryse after thē seuen yeres of hunger. And also the plenteousnes shalbe forgotten in the lande of Egypte. And the hunger shall consume the lande: nether shal the plenteousnes be knowne in the lande, by reason of ỹ hunger that shall come after, for it shalbe exceadynge great. And as concernynge ỹ the dreame was doubled vnto Pharao the second tyme, beholde, the thynge is certaynly prepared of God, and God wyll shortly bryng it to passe.

Now therfore let Pharao prouyde for a man of vnderstandyng and wysdome, and set hym ouer the lande of Egypt. E And the sayinge pleased Pharao and all hys seruauntes. Then sayde Pharao vnto his seruauntes: where shall we fynde suche a man as this is, in whom is the spryte of God? And Pharao sayd vnto Joseph: for as much as God hath shewed the al this, there is no man of vnderstandynge or of wysdome lyke vnto the. Thou therfore shalte be *ouer my house, and accordynge to thy worde shall all my people be ruled, onely in the kynges seate wyll I be aboue the. And Pharao sayde agayne vnto Joseph: beholde, I haue set the ouer all the lande of Egypt. And he toke of his rynge from his hande, and put it vpon Josephs hande, and arayed hym in cloth of raynes, and put a golden cheyne aboute hys necke, & let hym vpon the best charet that he had, saue one. And they cryed before hym: Bowe the knee, and Pharao made him ruler ouer all the lande of Egypte. And Pharao sayde vnto Joseph: I am Pharao, without the shall no man lyfte vp hys hande or foote in all the lande of Egypte.

But Ben Jamen Josephs brother wolde not Jacob sende with hys other brethren, for he sayde: lest some myshortune happen hym. And the sonnes of Israell came to bye corne amonge other that came, for there was derth in the land of Canaan. And Joseph was gouerner in ỹ land and solde to all the people of the lande. And thus dyd he vnto them. And they laded theyr asses with the corne and departed thence. And as one of them opened hys sacke, for to geue hys asse prouender in the Inne, he spied his money: for it was in his sackes mouth. And he sayde vnto his brethren. my money is restored me agayne: for lo, it is e=uen in my sacke. And theyr herte fayled them, & they were astonyed, and sayde one to another:

And they came vnto Jacob theyr father vnto the lande of Chanaan, and tolde hym all that had happened them, saying: The man, euen the lorde of ỹ land spake roughly to vs, and toke vs for spyes of ỹ countre. And we sayde vnto hym: we meane tru lye and are no spyes. We be twelue brethren, & sonnes of our father, one is awaye, and the yon=gest is this daye with oure father in the lande of Chanaan. ¶ The. xlvii. Chapter.

¶ Jacob commeth before Pharao, & vnto hym is geuen the land of Gosan. He maketh his son to swere for his burial.

A Joseph came therfore and told Pharao and saide: my father and my bre thren theyre shepe and theyr oxen, & all that they haue, are come out of ỹ lande of Canaan, and beholde: they are in the lande of Gosan. And Joseph toke of the vtmost of his brethren: euen fyue men, and presented thē vnto Pharao. And Pharao sayde vnto his brethren: what is your occupacyon? And they answered Pharao: shepherdes are thy seruauntes, both we and also our father. They sayde moreouer vnto Pharao: for to * sogeorne Ge. xl in ỹ lande are we come, for thy seruauntes haue no pasture for theyr shepe, so sore is the famishment in the lande of Canaan. Nowe therfore let thy seruauntes dwell in the lande of Gosan.

B And Pharao sayde vnto Joseph: thy father & thy brethren are come vnto the. The land of Egypte is before the: In the best place of the land make both thy father and thy brethren dwel: euen in the lande of Gosan let them dwel. Moreouer, yf thou know any man of actiupte among them, make them rulers ouer my catel. And Joseph brought in Jacob hys father, and set hym before Pharao. And Jacob blessed Pharao.

And Pharao sayde vnto Jacob: how olde art thou? And Jacob sayde vnto Pharao: the dayes of my pylgrymage are an hundred and thyrtye yeres. Fewe and euel haue the dayes of my lyfe bene, and haue not attayned vnto the yeres of ỹ lyfe of my fathers, in the dayes of theyr pylgremages. And Jacob blessed Pharao and went out from hym. And Joseph prepared dwellynges for his father and his brethren, & gaue them possessyons in the lande of Egypt, in the best of the lande: euen in the lande of Rameses, as Pharao had commaunded. And Joseph made prouisyon for his father, his brethren: and all his fathers housholde with breade, euen as yong chyldren are fedde. There was no breade in all the C lande, for the dearth was exceedyng sore: so that the lande of Egypte and the lande of Canaan, were famished by the reason of the dearth. And Josephe brought together all the money that was founde in the lande of Egypte, and of Canaan, for the corne whyche they bought: and he layde vp the money in Pharaos house. When mony fayled in the land of Egypt, & of Canaan all the Egiptyans came vnto Joseph and sayde geue vs breade: wherfore sufferest thou vs to

D And they brought their catel vnto Joseph. And Joseph gaue them breade for horses & shepe and oxen, & asses, and fed them w̄ bread, for all theyr catel that yere. But when ẏ yere was ēded, they came vnto hym the nexte yere, & sayde vnto him we wyll not hyde it frome my Lorde howe that our money is spente, my Lorde also had our catell and beastes, nether is there ought left in the syght of my Lorde, but euen our bodies and our landes. Wherfore letteſt ẏ vs dye before thyne eyes, and the land to go to nought? bye vs & our landes for bread: and both we & our landes wyl be bounde to Pharao. Only geue vs sede, ẏ we maye lyue and not dye, & that the land go not to waſt. And so Joseph bought all ẏ land of Egypt for Pharao. For ẏ Egiptyans solde euery man
E his lande because the derth was sore vpon them and so the lande became Pharaos. And he appoynted the people vnto ẏ cyties, from one syde of Egypt vnto the other: onely the lande of the Prestes bought he not. For the Prestes had an ordynaunce of Pharao, that they shoulde eate ẏ which was appoynted vnto them: which Pharao had geuen thē wherfore they solde not theyr landes. Then Joseph sayde vnto the folke: beholde I haue bought you this daye & your lande for Pharao. Take there bread and sede and sow the lande. And of the encreaſe, ye shall geue the fyfte parte vnto Pharao, and foure partes shal be your owne, for the sede of ẏ felde and for you, and them of your housholdes, and for your chyldren, to eate. And they answered: Thou haſt sauedour lyues. Let vs fynde grace in the syght of F my Lorde, and we wyl be Pharaos seruauntes And Joseph made it a lawe ouer the lande of Egypte vnto this daye: that Pharao shulde haue the fyfte parte, excepte the lande of the Prestes only, whiche was not Pharaos.

And Israel dwelte in Egypt: euen in the coūtre of Gosan. And they had theyre possessyons therin, and grewe and multiplyed excedyngly. Moreouer, Jacob lyued in the lande of Egypte seuentene yeres, so that the hole age of Jacob was an hundred and .xlvii yere. When the time drewe nye that Israell muſt dye, he sent for his sonne Joseph, and sayde vnto hym: Yf I haue found grace in thy syght, Oh, put thy hand now
G vnder my thygh, and deale mercyfully & truely with me, that ẏ burye me not in Egypte, but I wyll lye with my fathers, & thou shalt cary me out of Egypte, & bury me in theyr buryall. And he answered: I wyl do as ẏ haſte sayde. And he sayde *swere vnto me, and he sware vnto hym. And Israel worshypped towarde ẏ bedshed.

And the eyes of Israell were dym for age, so that he coulde not well se. And he brought them to hym and he kyſſed them and embraced them. And Israel sayde vnto Joseph: I had not thoughte to haue sene thy face, and yet lo, God hath shewed it me, and also thy sede, and Joseph toke them away from his lap, & worshipped on the grounde before hym. Then toke Joseph thē both: Ephraim w̄ his right hande toward Israels left hande C and Manaſſes w̄ his left hande, toward Israels ryght hande, & brought them vnto hym. And Israel stretched out hys ryght hande, & layde it on Ephraims hed, which was the ponger, & his left hande vpon Manaſſes hed, guidyng his handes wysely for Manaſſes was ẏ elder. And he blesſed Joseph & sayde: God before whō my fathers Abraham and Jhahac dyd walke, God whiche hath fed me all my lyfe long vnto this day, & the angell whych hath delyuered me from all euell, blesſe the laddes, & let my name be named in thē, and the name of my fathers Abraham & Jsahac and ẏ they may grow into a multitude in ẏ myddes of the earth. When Joseph saw ẏ his father layd his ryght hand vpon ẏ head of Ephraim, it displeſed him. And he lifted vp his fathers hand D to haue remoued it frō Ephraims hed vnto Manaſſes hed, & Joseph sayd vnto his father: not so my father for this is ẏ eldeſt. Put thy ryght hād vpon his hed. And his father wold not, but sayd

I knowe it well my sonne, I knowe it well. He shalbe also a people and shalbe greate. But his yonger brother shalbe greater then he, and hys sede shal be full of people. And he blessed them ỳ daye and sayde: In the, let Israel blesse and saye God make the as Ephraim before Manasses. And Israell sayde vnto Joseph: beholde, I dye. The ende of the fyrste booke of Moses: called in the Hebrue, Bereschyth, and in the Latyn, Genesis.

¶ The seconde booke of

THese are the names of the chyldren of Israel, whiche cam to Egypt with Jacob euery man came with his houshold: Ruben Simeon Leui, and Juda, Isachar, and Beniamin, Dan Nephtali, Gad, and Aser. All the soules that came out of the loynes of Jacob were .lxx. But Joseph was in Egypte already. And Joseph dyed and all his brethren, and all ỹ generacyon, and the * chyldren of Israell grewe encreased, multiplyed, and waxed exceadynge myghtye: and the lande was full of them.

But there rose vp a newe kynge in Egypte, whiche knewe not Joseph. And he sayde vnto hys folke: beholde, the people of the chyldren of Israel are greater and myghtier then we. Come on, let vs playe wyselye with them, lest they multiplye, and lest it happen, that (yf there chaunce any warre) they ioyne them selues vnto our enemies, and fyght agaynst vs, and so get them out of the lande. Therfore dyd they set taskemasters ouer them, to kepe them vnder wyth burdens. And they buylt vnto Pharao treasure cyties: Phiton and Rameses. But the more they vexed them, ỹ more they multiplyed and grewe so that they abhorred the chyldren of Israell.

And the Egiptyans helde the chyldren of Israel in bondage without mercye. Therfore was theyr lyfe bytter vnto them in that cruell bondage, in claye and brycke, & all maner of worke in the feldes. For all theyr bondage whiche they serued them, was full of tirannye.

And the kynge of Egypte sayde vnto the mydwyues of the Hebrues women, of which ỹ ones name was Sephora and the other Phua, when ye do the office of a midwyfe to the woman of ỹ Hebrues and se in ỹ byrth tyme that it is a boye ye shal kyl it. But if it be a doughter, it shall lyue. Notwithstanding the mydwiues feared God, & dyd not as the kyng of Egipt cõmaunded them but saued the men chyldren. And the kyng of Egypt called for the mydwyues, & sayde vnto thẽ why haue you delt on this maner, & haue saued ỹ men chyldren? And ỹ mydwiues answered Pharao, that the Hebrues wemen are not as the wemen of only theyr chyldren, and theyr shepe, and theyre catell lefte they behynde in the lande of Gosan. And there wente wt hym also charets and horsemen: and it was an excedynge greate company. And they came to the corne flore of Atad which is beyonde Jordane, & there they made a greate and excedyng sore lamentacyon. And he *mourned for his father seuen dayes. And when the inhabyters of the lande (euen the Canamites) saw the mournynge in the corne flore of Atad, they sayde: this is a great mournyng vnto the Egyptyans: wherfore the name of the place is called the morynge of the Egyptyans, and it is beyonde Jordane: and hys sonnes dyd vnto hym, accordynge as he had commaunded them. For his sonnes caryed hym * into the lande of Canaan, and buryed hym in the double caue of ỹ felde whiche caue * Abraham bought and the felde also, to be a place to burye in, of Ephron the hethyte before Mamre. And Joseph returned into Egypte agayne, he and hys brethren (and all that wente vp wyth hym to burye hys father,) assone as he had buryed hym.

And when Josephs brethren sawe that their father was deade, they sayde: Joseph myghte fortune to hate vs and * rewarde vs agayne all the euell which we dyd vnto hym. And they dyd a commaundement vnto Joseph, saying: thy father charged vs before his death, saying: This wyse shall ye saye vnto Joseph: forgeue (I pray the) the trespace of thy brethren, and theyr syn: for they rewarded the euel. And nowe (we pray the) forgeue the trespace of the seruaũtes of thy fathers God. And Joseph wepte, when they spake vnto hym.

For hys brethren came vnto hym, and fell flatte before his face sayinge: beholde, we be thy seruauntes. To whome Joseph sayde * feare not. Am I God? Ye thought euell agaynste me: but God turned it vnto good, to bringe to passe as it is this daye, and to saue much people alyue. Feare not therfore. Nowe I wyll norysche you, and your chyldren, and he comforted them, and spake kyndely vnto them.

Joseph dwelt in Egypte, he and his fathers house, and Joseph liued an hundred and ten yere. And Joseph sawe * Ephraims chyldren, euen vnto the thyrde generacyon. And vnto Machir the sonne of Manasses were chyldren borne, on Josephs knees. And Joseph sayde vnto his brethren: I dye. And God wyll surely vyset you and bryng you out of this lande, vnto the lande whyche he sware vnto Abraham, Isahac, and Jacob. And Joseph toke an oth of the chyldren of Israell, sayinge: God wyll not fayle but vyset you, and ye shall cary my * bones hence.

And so Joseph dyed, when he was an hundred & ten yere olde. And they embawmed hym with spyces, puttyng hym in a chest in Egypte.

booke of Moses: called in the Hebrue, Bereschyth, and in the Latyn, Genesis.

THese are the names of the chyldren of Israel, whiche cam to Egypt with Jacob euery man came with his houshold: Ruben Simeon Leui, and Juda, Isachar, and Beniamin, Dan Nephtali, Gad, and Aser. All the soules that came out of the loynes of Jacob were .lxx. But Joseph was in Egypte already. And Joseph dyed and all his brethren, and all ỹ generacyon, and the * chyldren of Israell grewe encreased, multiplyed, and waxed exceadynge myghtye: and the lande was full of them.

But there rose vp a newe kynge in Egypte, whiche knewe not Joseph. And he sayde vnto hys folke: beholde, the people of the chyldren of Israel are greater and myghtier then we. Come on, let vs playe wyselye with them, lest they multiplye, and lest it happen, that (yf there chaunce any warre) they ioyne them selues vnto our enemies, and fyght agaynst vs, and so get them out of the lande. Therfore dyd they set taskemasters ouer them, to kepe them vnder wyth burdens. And they buylt vnto Pharao treasure cyties: Phiton and Rameses. But the more they vexed them, ỹ more they multiplyed and grewe so that they abhorred the chyldren of Israell.

And the Egiptyans helde the chyldren of Israel in bondage without mercye. Therfore was theyr lyfe bytter vnto them in that cruell bondage, in claye and brycke, & all maner of worke in the feldes. For all theyr bondage whiche they serued them, was full of tirannye.

And the kynge of Egypte sayde vnto the mydwyues of the Hebrues women, of which ỹ ones name was Sephora and the other Phua, when ye do the office of a midwyfe to the woman of ỹ Hebrues and se in ỹ byrth tyme that it is a boye ye shal kyl it. But if it be a doughter, it shall lyue. Notwithstanding the mydwiues feared God, & dyd not as the kyng of Egipt cõmaunded them but saued the men chyldren. And the kyng of Egypt called for the mydwyues, & sayde vnto thẽ why haue you delt on this maner, & haue saued ỹ men chyldren? And ỹ mydwiues answered Pharao, that the Hebrues wemen are not as the wemen of

And it fortuned because the mydwyues fea red God, he made them houses. And Pharao charged all his people: saying. All the men chyl dren that are borne cast into the ryuer, and sauc the maydechyldren alyue.

And the Lorde sayde vnto hym: what is that which is in thy hande? he answered a rodde. And he sayde: cast it on the ground. And he cast it on ỹ ground and it became a serpent. And Moses fled from the syght of it. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: put furth thyne hande & take it by the tayle. And therfore he put furth his hande and caught it, and it became a rodde in hys hande. For this thynge (sayeth he) shall they beleue the, that the Lorde God of theyr fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isahac, and the God of Jacob hath appeared vnto the.

And the Lorde sayde furthermore vnto hym thruste thyne hande in to thy bosome. And he thrust his hande into his bosome. And when he toke it out agayne, beholde: his hande was lyperous euen as snowe. And he sayde: put thyne hande into thy bosome agayne. And he put his hande into hys bosome agayne, and plucked it out of his bosome, and beholde, it was turned agayne as his other flesh. Therfore yf they wyl not beleue the, nether heare the voyce of the first token, yet wyll they beleue for the voyce of the seconde token. And ỹ Lord sayde vnto hym: who hath made mans mouth, or who hath made the dōme or the deafe, the seynge or the blynde? haue not I the Lorde? Therfore *I wyl be with thy mouth and teache the what thou shalt saye. He sayde: oh my Lorde, sende I praye the by the hande of hym whome thou wylte sende. Therfore Moses went and returned to Jethro hys father in lawe agayne, and sayde vnto hym: I wyl go nowe, and turne agayne vnto my brethren whiche are in Egypt and se whether they be yet alyue. And the offycers of the chyldren of Israel which Pharaos taskemasters had set ouer them, were beaten. And they said vnto them: wherfore haue ye not fulfylled your taske in makynge brycke, both yesterday and to daye, as well as in tymes wherfore dealest thou thus wyth thy seruaun-

you and iudge you, which hath made the sauour theyr hande to sle vs. Moses returned vnto the Lorde, and sayde: Lord, wherfore hast thou delt cruelly wyth this people, & wherfore hacke thou sent me? for sence I came to Pharao to speake in thy name, he hath feared foule with this folke, & yet thou hast not delyuered thy people at all.

of the chyldren of Israel, whom the Egyptians kepe in bondage, and haue remembred my coue-raell: I am the Lorde, I wyll brynge you oute from the burdens of the Egyptyans, and wyll ryd you out of theyr bondage, and wyll delyuer B you in a stretched out arme and in greate iudgementes. And I wyl take you for my people, and wyllbe to you a God. And ye shall knowe that I am the Lorde youre God, whiche bryngeth you out from the burdens of the Egiptyans. And I wyll

wyll bryngeyou vnto the lande concernyng the whyche I dyd lyfte vp my hande to geue it vnto Abraham, Isahac, and Jacob, and wyll geue it vnto you for a possessyon: euen in the Lorde.
And Moses tolde the chyldren of Israel euen so.
But they harkened not vnto Moses, for anguysh of spyete and for cruel bondage. The lord spake vnto Moses sayinge: Goo in, and speake vnto Pharao kyng of Egypte, that he lette the chyldren of Israel go out of his lande. And Moses spake before the Lorde, sayinge: beholde, the chyldren of Israell herken not vnto me, howe then shall Pharao heare me, whyche am of vncircumcysed lyppes? And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and vnto Aaron, & gaue them a charge vnto the chyldren of Israell: and vnto Pharao kynge of Egypte: to bryngе the chyldren of Israell oute of the lande of Egypte. These be the heades of theyr fathers houses. The *chyldren of Ruben the eldest sonne of Israel ar these: Hanoh, and Pallu, Hezron, and Charmi, these be y houſholoes of Ruben. The children of Simeon Gemuel, and Jamin, Ohad, and Jachin, Zoar, & Saul the sonne of a Cananitesh wyfe: these are the kynredes of Simeon. These also *are the names of the chyldren of Leui in theyre generacyons: Gerson and Kahath and Merari. Leui lyued an hundred and thyrtye and seuen yere. The sonnes of Gerson: Libni and Semei by theyr kinredes. The chyldren of Kahath: Amram and Iesear, Hebron and Uſiell. And Kahath lyued an hundred and thyrtye and thre yere: The chyldren of Merari: Maheli and Muſi: these are the kynredes of Leui by theyr generacyons. *Amram toke ‡ Jochebed his nyce to wyfe & she bare hym Aaron and Moses. *(And Mariam.) And Amram lyued an hundred and thirty and seuen yere The chyldren of Jezear, Korah, Nepheg, and Sichri. The chyldren of Uſiel, Misael, Elzaphan; and Sithri. And Aaron toke Elizaba doughter of Aminadab: and syster of Nahason to wyfe: whiche bare hym Nadab, and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar. The chyldren of Korah: Assir, and Elcana, and Abiasiah: these are the kynredes of the Korahytes. Eleasar Aarons sonne toke hym one of the doughters of Putuel to wyfe whiche bare hym Phinehas, and these are the principall fathers of the Leuytes thorowe out theyr kynredes. This is that Aaron and Moses to whome the Lorde sayde: cary the chyldren of Israell out of the lande of Egypte, accordyng to theyr armyes. These are that Moses and Aaron whiche spake to Pharao kyng of Egypte, that they myght bryng the chyldren of Israel out of Egypte. And in the daye when the Lorde spake vnto Moses in the lande of Egypt he spake vnto hym, sayinge: I am the Lorde, speake thou vnto Pharao the kynge of Egypte all that I saye vnto the. And Moses sayde before y Lorde. Beholde, I am of *vncircumcysed lyppes, & how shal Pharao geue me audience?

¶ The.vii. Chapter.

¶ The tokens to knowe God. The rod of Moses is torned to a serpent. The sorcerars do euen the same. The waters are turned into bloude.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Beholde, I haue made the Pharaos God, & Aaron thy brother shall be thy Prophet. Thou shalt speake all that I cõmaunded the, and Aaron thy brother shall speake vnto Pharao that he sende the chyldren of Israell out of hys lande. And *I wyll harden Pharaos harte, and multyplye my myracles and my wordes in the lande of Egypte. But Pharao shall not herken vnto you, that I may set myne hande vpon Egypt and bryngе out myne armyes, and my people y chyldren of Israel out of the lande of Egypt, in greate iudgementes, and the Egiptyans shall know that I am the Lorde, when I stretch furth my hande vpon Egypte, and bryngе out y chyldren of Israell from amonge them.

Moses and Aaron dyd as the Lorde cõmaunded them, euen so dyd they. Moses was. lxxx. yere olde, and Aaron. lxxxiii. when they spake vnto Pharao. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron sayinge: yf Pharao speake vnto you sayinge: shewe a wonder, thou shalt say vnto Aaron: take thy rod and caste it before Pharao, that it maye be a serpent. Then went Moses and Aaron in vnto Pharao, and dyd euen as the Lorde had commaunded. And Aaron caste furth his rod before Pharao and before hys seruauntes *and it turned to a serpent. Then Pharao called for the wyse men and ‡ enchaunters, and those wyse men of Egypte dyd in lyke maner with theyr sorcery. For they cast downe euery man his rodde, and they turned to serpentes: but Aarons rodde dyd eat vp theyr roddes: and he herdened Pharaos hert: that he harkened not vnto them, euen as the Lorde had sayde.

The Lorde also sayde vnto Moses: Pharaos herte is hardened, he refuseth to let the people goo. Get the vnto Pharao in the morynge, lo, he wyll come vnto the water, and y shalt stande vpon the ryuers bryncke agaynste he come, and the rod whiche turned to a serpente, shalt y take in thyne hande. And thou shalt saye vnto hym: the Lorde God of the Hebrues hath sent me vnto the, sayinge *let my people go, that they may serue me in the wyldernes: And beholde, hytherto thou woldest not heare. Thus sayth the Lord In this thou shalt knowe that I am the Lorde. Beholde, I wyll smyte (wyth the staffe that is in myne hande) the water that is in the ryuer, & it shall turne to bloude. And the fyshe that is in the ryuer shal dye, and the ryuer shal stynke: and it shall greue the Egiptyans to drynke of y water of the ryuer. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saye vnto Aaron: take thy staffe, and stretch out thyne hande ouer the waters of Egypt ouer theyr streames, ouer theyr ryuers and pondes, & all pooles of water, whyche they haue, that they maye be bloude, and that there maye be bloude thorowout all the lande of Egypte: both in vessels of woode and also of stone. And Moses and Aaron dyd euen as the Lord commaunded. And he lyfte vp the staffe, and smote the waters that were in the ryuer in the syght of Pharao, and in the syght of his seruauntes: and all the water y was in the ryuer, turned into bloude. And the after that the Lozde had smyten the ryuer.

frogges came vp, and couered ỹ lande of Egypt
And the sozcerers dyd lykewyse with theyz sozce-

D went out from Pharao, and Moses cryed vnto the Lozde vpon the appoyntmente of frogges, whiche he had made vnto Pharao. And ỹ Lozd dyd accozdynge to the sayinge of Moses. And the frogges dyed out of the houses, out of ỹ cour ther vpon heapes, and the lande stanke of them.

But when Pharao sawe that he had rest geuen hym, he herdened his herte and herkened not vnto them, as the Lozde had sayde. And ỹ Lozd sayde vnto Moses: saye vnto Aaron, stretche out thy rod and smyte the dust of the lande, that it maye turne to lyse thozowout all the lande of Egypte. And they dyd so. Foz Aaron stretched E out his hande, and with his rod he smote the dust of the earth which turned to lyse in men & beaste so that all the dust of the lande turned to lyse, thozowe out all the lande of Egypte.

And the enchaunters assayde lyke wyse with theyz enchauntmentes to bzynge furth lyse, but they coulde not. And the lyse were both vpon men and beastes. Then sayde the enchaunters vnto Pharao: it is the finger of God. And Pha

And I wyll put a diuysyon betwene my people and thyne. And euen to mozowe shall this myza cle be done. And the Lozde dyd euen so: and there came noysome flyes into the house of Pharao, & into his seruauntes houses, and into all the land of Egypt: and the lande was cozrupt with these flyes. And Pharao called foz Moses and Aaron and sayde: Go and do sacrifyce vnto youre God in the lande. And Moses answered: it is not mete that we do so. Foz then we must offer vnto the Lozde our God, that whyche is an abhominacyon vnto the Egiptyans. But and yf we sacrafyce that which is an abhominacyon vnto the Egiptyans befoze theyz eyes, shuld they not stone vs? we wyll go thze dayes iurney into the deserte, and sacrifyce vnto the Lozde oure God,

And Pharao sayde: I wyl let you go that ye Exo.viij.f.

let Pharao from hence furth deceaue nomoze, ỹ he wyl not let the people go to sacrifyce vnto the Lozde. And Moses went out from Pharao and cozdynge to the sayinge of Moses, and the flyes departed from Pharao, and from hys seruaun-

one. And Pharao hardened his herte euen then also, and dyd not let the people go.

¶ Jethros counsell is refraced of Moses.

JEthro the Preest of Madiam Moses father in lawe, heard of all that God hadde done for Moses, and for Israel his people, and that the Lorde had brought Israell out of Egypte
Exod.ii.d. and, iiii.f * Therfore he toke Ziphora Moses wyf. (After he had sente her backe) and her two sonnes, Exod.ii.d of whyche the one was called * Gerson, for he sayde: I haue bene an alyant in a straunge lond The name of the other was Eliesar: for the god of my father (sayde he) was myne helpe, and delyuered me from the swearde of Pharao.

And Jethro Moses father in law came with his two sonnes, and hys wyfe vnto Moses into the wyldernes: where he abode by the mount of God. And he sayde vnto Moses: I thy father in lawe Jethro am come to the, and thy wyfe also and her two sonnes wyth her. And Moses went out to mete his father inlaw and dyd obeysaunce and kyssed hym, and eache asked other of his health, and they came into the tent. And Moses tolde his father in lawe all that ꝑ Lorde had done vnto Pharao and to the Egyptyans for Israels sake, and all the trauayle that had happened them by the waye, and howe the Lorde delyuered them. And Jethro reioysed ouer all the goodnesse whiche the Lorde had done to Israel and because he had deliuered them out of ꝑ hand of the Egiptyans. And Jethro sayde: blessed be the Lorde whiche hath delyuered you out of the hande of the Egiptyans, and out of the hand of Pharao, whiche hath also delyuered hys people from the captyuitye of the Egiptyans. Now I knowe that the Lorde is greater then all gods, for in the thynge whereby they dealte cruelly ẅ them, are they them selues perysshed. And Jethro Moses father in lawe offred burnt offrynges and sacrifyces vnto God. And Aaron and all the elders of Israel came to eate breade with Moses father in lawe before God.

C And it chaunced on the morowe, that Moses sat to Judge the people, and the people stode aboute Moses from morynge vnto euen. And when Moses father inlaw sawe all that he dyd vnto the people, he sayde: what is this that thou dost vnto the people? why syttest thou thy selfe alone, and all the people stande aboute the from morynge vnto euen? And Moses sayde vnto his father inlawe: because the people come vnto me to seke councell of God. When they haue a matter, they come vnto me, & I iudge betwene euery man and his neyghboure, and shewe them the ordinaunces of God and his lawes.

And Moses father inlawe sayde vnto hym: it is not well that thou dost. Thou both werye-est thy selfe, and this people that is with the: for Deute. i.b. this thynge is of more weyght, then ✱thou arte able to perfourme thy selfe alone. Heare nowe therfore my voyce, and I wyll geue the councel, and God shalbe with the. Be thou vnto the people to Godwarde, that thou mayste bryng the causes vnto God, and thou shalt teache them ordynaunces, and lawes, and shewe them the way wherin they must walke, and the worke ꝑ they D must do. Moreouer, thou shalt seke out amonge all the people, men of actiuyte, and such as feare God: true men, hatynge couetousnes: and make them hedes ouer the people captayns ouer thousandes, ouer hundredes, ouer fyfty, and ouer ten And let them iudge the people at all seasons. And euerye ✱ greate matter that happeneth, let Deu. them bryng vnto the, but let them iudge al smal causes them selues, and so shall it be easyer for thy selfe, and they shall beare with the. If thou shalt do this thyng, (and God charge the withall) thou shalt be able to endure, and yet the people shall come to theyr place in peace.

And so Moses obeyed the voyce of hys father inlawe, and dyd all that he had sayde, and chose actyue men oute of all Israell, and made them as heades ouer the people: namely captaynes ouer thousandes, ouer hundreds, ouer fyfty, and ouer ten. And they iudged the people at all seasons, but brought the hard causes vnto Moses: and iudged all small matters them selues: And Moses let hys father inlawe departe, and he wente into his owne lande.

C The.xix. Chapter.

C The chyldren of Israel come to the mount Sinay. The people of God are holy and a royal preesthode. He that toucheth the hyll dyeth. God appeareth vnto Moses vpon the mounte in thunder and lyghtenynge.

A IN the thyrde moneth, when the chyldren of Israell were gone out of the lande of Egypte, the same daye came they in to the wyldernesse of Sinai. ✱ For they were departed from Ra- nu. ff phidim, and were come to the deserte of Sinay, and had pytched theyr tentes in the wyldernesse And there Israel abode before ꝑ mounte. ✱ But Ex. ff Moses went vp vnto God, and the Lorde called to hym out of the mountayne, sayinge: thus shalt thou saye vnto the house of Jacob, and tel the chyldren of Israell: ye haue seen what I dyd vnto the Egiptyans, and tooke you vp vpon Egles wynges, and haue brought you vnto my selfe. Nowe therfore ✱ yf ye wyl heare my voyce Deu. f in dede, and kepe myne appoyntment, ye shalbe myne owne, aboue all nacyons, for all the earth is myne. Ye shall be vnto me also a kyngdome of ✱ Preastes and an holy people: and these are 1. Pet. the wordes which thou shalt saye vnto the chyldren of Israell. Moses came and called for the elders of the people, and layde before theyre faces all these wordes, whyche the Lorde commaunded hym. And the people answered all together, and sayde. ✱ All that the Lorde hathe Ex. ff sayde, we wyll doo. And Moses brought the Deu. i wordes of the people vnto the Lorde. ffvi. d come vnto the in a thycke cloude, that the people maye heare me talkynge wyth the, and beleue the for ever. Moses shewed the wordes of the people vnto the Lorde.

B And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Go vnto the people, and sanctifye them to daye and to morowe, and let them washe theyr clothes: and be redy agaynst the thyrde daye. For the thyrd daye the Lorde wyll come downe in the syghte of all the people vpon mount Sinai. And thou shalt set markes rounde aboute the people and saye: beware that ye go not vp into the mount, or touche the borde of it. Who soever toucheth Debr. xii.e the *mounte, shall surely dye. There shall not an hande touche it: Els he shalbe stoned or shot thorowe: whyther it be beast or man, it shal not lyue: when the trumpe blowethlonge, then may they come vp into the mountayne.

C And Moses went downe frome the mounte vnto the people, and sanctifyed them, and they washed theyre clothes: And he sayde vnto the people: be redye agaynste the thyrde daye, and come not at your wyues. And the thyrde daye in the morynyng there was thunder, and lyghtning and a thicke cloude vpon the mount, & the voyce of the trumpe exceadynge lowde, so that all the people that was in the hoste was afrayde. And Moses brought the people out of the tentes to Deu.iiii.b. mete with God, and they *stode vnder the hyll. And mount Sinay was altogether on a smoke because the Lorde descended downe vpon it in fyre. And the smoke therof ascended vp, as the smoke of a kele, and all the mounte was exceadynge fearful. And when the voyce of ỹ trumpe blewe and waxed lowder and lowder: Moses spake, and God answered hym by a voyce.

D And the Lorde came downe vpon mount Sinay, euen in the toppe of the hyll, and when the Lorde called Moses vp into the toppe of ỹ hyl, Moses wente vp. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Go downe: charge the people, that they prease not vp to se the Lord, and so many of thẽ perysshe. And let the prestes also whiche come to the Lorde sanctifye them selues, leste the Lorde destroy them. And Moses sayde vnto the Lord the people can not come vp into the mount Sinay, for thou chargedst vs sayinge: set markes aboute the hyll, and sanctifye it. And the Lorde sayde vnto [illegible] awaye, and get the downe: and thou shalt come vp, thou and Aaron wyth the. But let not ỹ prestes & the people presume for to come vp vnto the Lorde: lest he destroye them. And so Moses went downe vnto ỹ people & told them.

And he made vnto it hornes in the four corners of it procedyng out of it and he ouerlayd it w̄ brasse. And he made al the vessels of the aultar: the cauldrons, shouels, basyns, fleshokes, and cole pannes. All the vessels therof made he of brasse. And he made a brasen gredyren of networke vnto the altar, round aboute a lowe beneth vnto the mydst of the aultar, and cast foure rynges of brasse for the foure endes of the gredyren to put barres in. And he made the barres of Sethim wood, and couered them with brasse, and put the barres into ỹ rynges in the foure corners of the aultar, to beare it withal and made the aultar holowe with in the bordes. And he made the lauer of brasse, and the fote of it also of brasse in the syght of them that B dyd watch at the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And he made the courte on the south syde, and the hangynges of the courte were of whyte twyned sylke, haunge an hundred cubytes,

The pyllers were twenty, and theyr brasen sockettes twenty. But the knoppes of the pyllers, and theyr whopes were of syluer. And on the north syde: the hangynges were an hundred cubytes. Theyr pyllers were twenty, and theyr sockettes of brasse twentye. But the knoppes and the whopes of the pyllers were of syluer. And of the other syde of the courte gate were hangynges also of fyftene cubytes longe, with thre pyllers and thre sockettes.

All the hangynges of ỹ courte round about were of whyte twyned sylke: but the sockettes C of the pyllers were of brasse: and the knoppes, and the whopes of the pyllers were of syluer, & ỹ couering of the heades was of syluer, and all ỹ pyllers of the courte were whoped aboute with syluer. And the hangyng of the gate of the court was nedle worke, of yelowe sylke, purple, scarlet and whyte twyned sylke. xx. cubytes longe, and fyue in the bredth, ouer agaynste the hangynges of the courte. And theyr pyllers were foure, and theyre foure sockettes of brasse: and the knoppes of syluer, and the heades ouerlayde with syluer, and whoped aboute wyth syluer, & all the pynnes of the tabernacle and of the court rounde aboute, were of brasse. This is the sum of the habitacyon of witnes, as it was counted accordyng to the cōmaundemente of Moses for the office of the Leuites by the hande of Ithamar sonne to Aaron the preast. And bezaleel ỹ sonne of Uri the sonne of Hur of the trybe of Iuda, made all ỹ the Lord cōmaunded Moses, and with him was Aholiab sonne of Ahisamach of the trybe of Dan, a cunnynge grauer and a worker of nedle worke in yelowe sylke, purple, scarlet, and whyte twyned sylke. All the golde that was occupyed for all the worke of the holy place D was the golde of the waueofferynge, euen.xxix. hundred weyght, and seuen hundred and.xxx. sycles, accordynge to the sycle of the Sanctuary. And the summe of syluer that came of the multitude, was fyue score hundred weyght, & a thousande seuen hundred and.lxxv. sycles, after the sycle of the Sanctuarye.

For euery man an halfe weyght, euen halfe a sycle after the sycle of the Sanctuarye, for all them that wente to be nombred frome. xx. yere olde and aboue, euen for syxe hundred thousand and thre thousand and fyue hundred and.l. men.

And the brasse of the waueoffring & was.lxx. hundred weyght, and two thousand, & iiii. hundred sycles. And therwith he made ỹ sockettes to the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the brasen aultare and the brasen gredyren for it, wyth all the vessels of the aultar, and the sockets of the court round about, and ỹ sockets for the courte gate, and all the pynnes of ỹ habitacyon, & all the pyns of ỹ court round aboute.

¶ The apparell of Aaron and his sonnes. All that the Lord commaunded, was offered.

AND of the yelowe sylke, purple, and scarlet, they made the vestimentes of A minystracyon to do seruyce in the holy place, and made the holy garmentes for Aaron, as the Lord cōmaunded Moses. And he made the Ephod of golde, yelowe sylke purple, skarlet, and whyte twyned sylke. And they dyd beate the gold into thynne plates, and cut it into wyers: to worke it in the yelow sylke purple, scarlet, and in the fyne whyte, with brodered worke. And they made two sydes for it, to close them vp by the two edges. And the brodrynge of the gyrdell that was vpon it, was of the same stuffe, and after ỹ same worke: of gold yelowe sylke, purple scarlet, and twyned whyte sylke, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And they wrought Onix stones closed in ouches of golde, and graued as sygnettes are grauen with the names of the chyldren of Israell, & B put them on the shulders of ỹ Ephod, that they shulde be stones for a remembraunce of the chyldren of Israel, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And he made the brestlap of conning worke and lyke the worke of the Ephod: euen of golde yelowe sylke, purple, scarlet and twyned whyte sylke. It was foure square, and they made the brestlappe double, an hande braedth longe, and an hande bredth broade.

And they fylled it wyth foure rowes of stones. The fyrste rowe, a Sardios, a Topas and C or an Emeraude. ‡or a carbuncle.

* Smaragdus: the seconde rowe, a ‡ Rubye, a Saphir and a Dyamonde: in the thyrde rowe, Ligurios, an Achat, & an Amatist: in the fourth row, a turcas, an Onix, and a Jaspis. And they were closed in ouches of golde in theyr inclosers And the twelue stones were grauen as sygnets with the names of the chyldren of Israell: euery stone with hys name, accordynge to the twelue trybes. And they made vpon the brestlap, two fastenyng cheynes of wrethen worke and puer golde. And they made two hokes of golde, and two golde rynges: and put the two rynges in ỹ two corners of the brestlappe. And they put the two cheynes of golde in the two rynges, in the corners of the brestlappe.

D And the two endes of the two cheynes they fastened in the two hokes, and put them on the shulders of the Ephod vpon the fore fronte of it And they made two rynges of golde, and putte them on the two corners of the brestlappe vpon the edge of it, whyche was on the inside by the Ephod. And they made two golden rynges, and put them on the two sydes of the Ephod, beneth on the foresyde of it and ouer agaynst his felow aboue vpon the bordring of the Ephod, & they strayned the brestlappe by hys rynges vnto the rynges of the Ephod, with a lace of yelow sylke that it myght be vpon the broyderynge of the Ephod, and that the brestlap shulde not be lowsed from of the Ephod: as the Lorde cõmaunded Moses. And he made the tunycle vnto the Ephod of wouen worke, altogether of yelow sylk and there was an hole in the myddest of the tunycle, as the coler of a partlet, wt a bonde rounde aboute the coler, that it shulde not rent.

E And in the tunycle they made hemmes wyth pomgranates, of yelowe sylke, purple scarlet, and whyte twyned sylke. And they made lytle belles of pure golde, and put them amonge the pomgranates rounde about vpon the edge of ỹ tunycle: a bell and a pomgranate, a bell and a pomgranate rounde aboute the hemmes of the tunycle to mynister in, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And they made cotes of fyne whyte of wouen worke for Aaron and his sonnes, and a mytre of fyne whyte, and goodly bonettes of fyne whyte, and lynen breches of twyned whyt and a gyrdell of twyned whyte, yelowe sylke, purple and scarlet: euen of nedle worke, as the Lorde commaũded Moses. And they made the plate for the holy crowne of fyne golde, & wrote vpon it wyth grauen worke, the holynes of the Lorde: and tyed vnto it a lace of yelowe sylke to fasten it an hye vpon the mytre, as the Lord commaunded Moses.

F Thus was all the worke of the habitacyon and of the Tabernacle of wytnesse fynyshed. And the chyldren of Israel dyd accordyng to al that the Lorde had commaunded Moses: euen so dyd they. And they brought the habitacyon vnto Moses: the tente and all hys apparel, buttons, bordes, barres, pyllers, and sockettes, the couerynge of rammes skynnes redde, and the couerynge of taxus skynnes, and the hangynge vaple, the arcke of wytnesse and the barres ther of, and the mercye seate: the table, and all the vesselles therof, and the shewe bread: the pure candelsticke, with the lampes therof: euen with the lampes to be prepared, and all the vesselles therof, and the oyle for lyght: the golden aultar and the anoyntynge oyle, and the swete cens, and the hangynge of the Tabernacle doore, and & the brasen aultar wyth hys gredyren of brasse, his barres and all hys vessels, the lauer and hys fote: the hangynges of the courte with hys pyllers and sockettes: the hangynge to the courte gate, and hys pynnes and coordes, and all the vessell of the seruyce of the habytacyon for the Tabernacle of wytnesse: the minystrynge vestymentes to serue in the holy place, and the holy vestementes for Aaron the Preaste, and hys sonnes raymentes to mynyster in: accordynge to all that the Lorde commaunded Moses: euen so the chyldren of Israell made all the worke. And Moses behelde all the worke, and se: they had done it euen as the Lord commaunded: euen so had they done, and Moses blessed them.

Thys is the lawe of the burnt offeryng and of the meatofferyng, and of the sacrifyce for synne and trespasse, for consecracyon and for the peace offerynge: whych the Lorde commaunded Moses in the mounte of Sinay, when he commaunded ỹ chyldren of Israel to offer their sacrifyces vnto the Lord in ỹ wyldernes of Sinai.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: take* Aaron and hys sonnes with him, and the vestures and the anoyntynge oyle, and a ponge ore for synne, and two rammes, & a basket with swete breade: and gather thou all the congregacyon together vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnes. And Moses dyd as the Lorde cõmaunded hym, and the people were gathered together vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnes. And Moses sayde vnto the congregacyon: this is the thyng whiche the Lorde commaunded to be done. And Moses brought Aaron and his sonnes, and washed them with water, and put vpon hym the albe, and gyrded him wyth a gyrdle, and put vpon hym the tunycle, Exo.xxix.d. *And Moses toke the anoyntyng oyle, and anoynted the Tabernacle and all that was therin, and sanctifyed them, and sprynkled therof vpon the aultar seuen tymes, and anoynted the aultar and all hys vessels, the lauer and his fote, to sanctifye them ✻ (with the oyle.) And ✻ he powred of the anoyntyng oyle vpon Aarons head, and anoynted hym, to sanctifye hym. And Moses brought Aarons sonnes, and put albes vpon them, and gyrded them with gyrdels, and C put bonettes vpon theyr heades: as the Lorde Exo.xxix.a commaunded Moses. *And he brought ỹ yong ore for synne. And Aaron and hys sonnes put theyr handes vpon the head of ỹ ponge ore that was for synne. And Moses slewe hym, and tok of the bloude whyche he put vpon the hornes of the aultar rounde aboute with hys fynger, and purifyed it, and powred the bloude vnto the botome of the aultar, and sanctifyed it, and reconcyled it. And he toke all the fat that was vpon the inwardes, and the abundaunce of the lyuer, and the two kydneys, and theyr fat, and Moses burned it vpon the aultar. But the ponge ore and hys hyde, hys flesche and hys dunge, he burnt with fyre without the hooste, as the Lord commaunded Moses. And out of the basket of swete bread that was before ỹ Lorde, he toke one swete cake of oyled breade, & one waker, and put them on the fat and vpon the right shulder: and put altogether vpon Aarons handes, and vpon hys sons handes, and waued it a waue offeryng before the Lorde. And Moses toke them from of theyr handes, and burnte them vpon the aultar, euen vpon the burnt offe- F

And Moses sayde vnto Aaron and vnto Eleazar and Ithamar hys sonnes ỹ were lefte: take the meate offerynge that remayneth of the sacrifyces of the Lorde, and eate it wout leuen beside the aultar: for it is most holy: ye shal eate it in the holy place, because it is thy dutye & thy sons duty of the sacrifyces of ỹ Lord: for so I am cõmaunded. And the wauebrest & heue shulder shal ye eat in a cleane place: thou and thy sonnes and thy doughters wyth the. For they be thy dutye and thy sonnes duty geuen out of the peace offerynges of the chyldren of Israell. D And Moses sought the goate that was offered for syn, and se, it was burnte. And he was angry wyth Eleazar and Ithamar the sons of Aaron, whiche were lefte alyue, sayinge: wherfore haue ye not eaten the synne offerynge in the holy place, seynge it is most holy: and God hath geuen it you, to beare the synne of the congregacyon, to make agrement for them before ỹ Lord Beholde, the bloud of it was not brought in wt in the holy place: ye shulde haue eaten in the holy place, as I cõmaunded. And Aaron sayde vnto Moses: behold, this daye haue they offered their synne offerynge & theyr burnt offering before the Lord, & it is chaunced me after this maner. And yf I had eaten the sacrifyce to day, shulde it haue bene accepted in the sight of the Lord? And whẽ Moses hearde that, he was contente.

C Of beastes which be cleane, and which be vncleane.

A AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses & Aaron, and sayd vnto them: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and say Gene.viii.a Deu.xiiii.a Actes.x.c. * these are ỹ beastes whiche ye shal eate, amonge all the catell that are on the earth: what soeuer parteth the hoke, and deuydeth it into two clawes, and chaweth cud amonge the beastes, that shal ye eate. Neuerthelesse, these shall ye not eate, of them that chewe cud, and deuydeth the hookes: as is the Camell, whiche chaweth cud, but he deuydeth not ỹ hoke therfore is he vncleane vnto you, euen so the conye, whyche chaweth the cud but deuydeth not the hooke. He is vncleane to you. And the hare, though he chaweth the cud, yet because he deuydeth not the hoke, he is therfore vncleane to you
And agayne, the swyne though he deuyde the hoke into two clawes, yet he chaweth not ỹ cud. He is vncleane to you. Of theyr fleshe shall ye not eate, and theyr carkesses shall ye not touche but lette them be vncleane to you.

These shall ye eate of all that are in the wa B ters: what soeuer hath fynnes and skales in the waters, sees and ryuers, that shall ye eate. And all that haue not fyns and skales in the see, and ryuers, of all that moue and lyue in the waters, let them be abhominacyon vnto you: Ye shall not eate of theyr flesche, but abhore theyre carkases. Let all that haue no fynnes nor skales in the waters, be abhompnable vnto you.

These are they, whyche ye shall abhorre a- C monge the foules, and that oughte not to be eaten, for they are an abhominacyon. The eagle the goshauke, and the cormorante, the vultur, and the kyte after his kynde, and all rauens after theyr kynde: the estryche, the nyghte crowe, the cockowe, and the owle after his kynde, the falcon, the storke, the greate owle, the backe, the pelycane, the pye: the heron, the Jaye after hys kynde, the lapwynge and the swalowe. Let all foules that crepe and goo vpon all foure, be an abhominacyon vnto you.

Yet these maye ye eate, of euery creppynge D thyng that hath wynges and go vpon foure fete euen those ỹ haue knees aboue vpon theyr fete, to leape withal vpon the earth, euen these of thẽ ye may eate * the Arbe after his kynde: the * Selaam after his kynde: ỹ * Hargol after his kynd and the * Hagab after his kynde. All other foules that moue and haue foure fete, shalbe abhompnacyon vnto you. And euery beaste that hath hooke and deuydeth it not into two clawes, nor chaweth cudde, E suche are vncleane vnto you: euery one that toucheth them, shalbe vncleane. And what soeuer goeth vpon hys handes amonge all maner beastes that go on all foure fete: suche are vncleane vnto you: and who so doth touche their carkasse * shalbe vncleane vntyll the euen. And he that Leui.b.k. beareth the carkasse of them, shall washe his clothes, and be vncleane vntyll the euen, for suche are vncleane vnto you. And let these also be vncleane to you amonge the thynges that crepe vpon the earth, the weasel, and the mouse, and the toode, after theyr kynde, the hedgehog, the stellio, the lacerte, the snayle, and the molle: these are vncleane to you amonge all that crepe: who soeuer doth touche them when they be deade, shalbe vncleane vntyll the euen. And what soeuer any of the dead carkasses of them doth fal vpon shalbe vncleane: whether it be vessell of wood, or rayment, or skynne, or bagge, or what soeuer vessell it be that any worke is wrought in. Let euery creppynge thyng that crepeth vpon the earth be an abhominacyon, and not be eaten What soeuer goeth vpon the brest and what so euer goeth vpon foure, or that hath moo fete amonge all creppyng thynges that crepe vpon the earth, of that se ye eate not, for they are abhominable. This is the lawe of beastes and foules, and of euery lyuynge creature that moueth in the waters, and of euery creature that crepeth vpon the earth, ỹ there maye be a difference betwene the vncleane and cleane, and betwene the beaste that maye be eaten, and the beast that ought not to be eaten.

¶ The preestes must iudge who are Lepers.

A AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron saying: when there appeareth a rysynge in any mans fleshe, eyther a scabbe, or a glisterynge whyte: and the plage of leprosye be in the skynne of hys fleshe, he shalbe brought vnto Aaron the preast, or vnto one of his sonnes the preastes: and the preast shall loke on the sore in the skynne of hys fleshe.
And when the heare in the sore is turned vnto whyte, and the sore also seme to be lower then ỹ skynne of his fleshe it wyll be a plage of leprosy and the preastes shal loke on him, and iudge him vncleane. Yf there be but a whyte plecke in the skynne of his flesh, and seme not to be lower thē the skynne, nor the heare therof is turned vnto whyte, the preast shall shut hym vp seuen dayes And the preast shall loke vpon hym agayne the seuenth daye. And yf the plage seme to hym to abyde styl, and the plage growe not in the skyn the preast shall shut hym vp yet seuen dayes mo And the preast shall loke on hym agayne the seuenth daye. Then yf the plage be darker, and not growen in the skynne, the preast shall iudge hym cleane, for it is but a skyrfe. And he shall washe his clothes, and be cleane. But and yf the scabbe growe in the skynne after that he is sene of the preast, and iudged cleane, he shalbe sene of
B the preast agayne. Yf the preast se that the scab be growen abrode in the skynne, the preast shal make hym vncleane: for it is a leprosy.

When the plage of the leprosye is in a man, he shalbe brought vnto the preast, and the preest shall se hym. And yf the rysynge be whyte in the skynne, and haue made the heare whyte, & there be rawe fleshe in the sore it wyl be an olde leprosye in the skyn of his fleshe. And the preast shal make hym vncleane, and shall not shut hym vp: seynge he is vncleane. Yf a leprosye breake out abrode in the skynne, and couer all the skynne, from his head to his fote, where soeuer the preest loketh, and the Preast loke vpon hym. And yf the leprosye haue couered all hys fleshe, he shall iudge the plage to be cleane, because it is all turned into whytnesse, and he shalbe cleane. But
C and yf there be rawe fleshe on hym when he is sene, he shall be vncleane.

And the Preaste shall se the rawe fleshe, and declare hym to be vncleane. For the rawe fleshe is vncleane, seynge it is a leprosye. Or yf ỹ raw flesh departe agayne and chaunge vnto whyte he shall come to the preast, and the preaste shall se hym and beholde: Yf the sore be chaunged vnto whyte * (and couer the whole man) the preast shall * 13 iudge the plage cleane and he shalbe cleane. The fleshe also in whose skynne there is a byle and is healed, and in the place of the byle there appeare a whyte

a whyte rysyng, ether a shyning whyte and somwhat reddyshe, it shalbe sene of the Preast.

And yf when the preast seyth hym, it appere
D lower then the skynne, and the heare therof be chaunged vnto whyte, the preast shal iudge him vncleane: for it is a plage of leprosy, broken out of the byle But and yf the preast loke on it and there be no whyte heares therin, and yf it be not lower then the skynne, but be darker, the preast shall shut hym vp seuen dayes.

And yf it spreade abrode in the flesshe, the Preast shall make hym vncleane, seynge it is ỹ plage. But and yf the spot stande styll, and growe not it is the prynte of an hoote byle, and therfore the preast shall declare hym to be cleane. If there be any flesshe, in whose skynne there is a hote burnyng, and the flesshe that burneth haue a whyte spotte, somwhat reddyshe or whyte, the Preast shall loke vpon it. And yf the heare in ỹ bryght spot be chaunged to whyte, and it appeare lower then the skynne, it is a lepersye broken out of the burnyng. And therfore the preast shal iudge hym vncleane, seynge it is the plage of leprosy. But yf ỹ preast loke on it and there be no whyte heare in the bryght spot, and be no lower then ỹ other skynne, but be darker, the preast shal shut hym vp seuen dayes. And the Preast shall loke on hym the seuenth daye: And yf it be growen abrode in the skynne, the preast shall iudge hym vncleane, seyng it is the plage of lepersye. And yf the spot stande styl in it, and growe not in the skynne, but is darke, it is a rysynge of the burnyng, and the Preast shall therfore declare hym cleane, seyng it is the prynt of the burnyng.

E Yf a man or woman hath a sore vpon ỹ heade or the bearde, the preast shall se it. And yf it appeare lower then the skynne, and there be in it
* a yelow heare: & thyn * (more then it was wont to be) the preast shall iudge hym vncleane, seyng that the same fretynge is a token of lepersye vpon ỹ heade or beard. And yf the preast loke on the sore of the prynte, and it seme not lower then ỹ skyn, and that the heare is not blacke, the preast shall shutte vp the frettyng sore seuen dayes. And in the seuenth daye the preast shall loke on the sore and yf the sore be not growen, and there be in it no yelow heare, and the sore seme not lower thē the skynne, he shalbe shauen: but the place of the sore shall he not shaue, and the preast shall shut vp the sore seuen dayes mo. And in the seuenth daye the preast shall loke on the sore: And yf the sore be not growen in the skynne, nor seme lower then the other skynne, the Preaste shall clense hym, and he shall washe his clothes, & be cleane. But yf the sore growe in the flesh after his clensynge, the preast shall loke on hym.

And yf the sore be growen in the skynne, the F preest shall not seke for yelowe heare, for he is vncleane. But yf he se the prynte stande styll, and that there is blacke heare growne vp therin, the sore is healed, and he shalbe cleane, and the preest shall declare him to be cleane. Yf there be whyte spottes in the skynne of the flesshe of man or woman, the preast shall loke vpon it. And yf the spottes in the skynne of theyr flesshe be somwhat darke and whyte withall, * (he maye be sure, that it is no leprosy) it is a frekell growyng in the flesshe. * Therfore is he cleane. And the man whose head is destytute of heare, (wherby he is made balde) is cleane. And he that hath his heare out in hys forehead, is foreheed balde and cleane. If there be in the bauld head or balde forehead, a whyte reddysh sore scabbe, there is lepersy spronge vp in his baulde head or baulde forehead:

And the Preast shall loke vpon hym, and yf G
the rysyng of the sore be whyte reddyshe in hys baulde head or baulde forehead after the maner of lepersy which is in the skynne of the flesh, the he is a leperous man and vnclean. And the preest shall make hym vncleane, for the plage thereof is in his head. The leper in whome the plage is shall haue hys clothes rent, and hys head bare, & shall put a couerynge vpon his lyppe, and shalbe called vncleane and defyled. And as longe as ỹ dysease lasteth vpon hym, he shalbe defyled and vncleane: he shal dwel alone, euen * without the hoost shal his habitacyon be. The cloth that the plage of lepersye is in, whyther it be lynnen or wollen, whyther it be in the warpe or wooke of lynnen or of wollen: ether in a skyn or any thing made of skynne, yf the dysease be pale or somwhat reddyshe in the cloth or skynne: whether it be in the warpe or wooke, or any thynge that is made of skyn, then it is a plage of lepersye and shalbe shewed vnto the preast. * Nume. v. a iiii. re. fb, a

The Preast therfore shall se the plage, and shut it vp seuen dayes, and loke on the plage the seuenth day. Which yf it be encreased in ỹ cloth (whether it be in ỹ warpe or woke, or in a skyn) or in any thyng that is made of skynne, it is the lepersy of a fretyng sore: it is vncleane: and that cloth shalbe burnt, ether warpe or wooke whether it be wollen or lynnen, or any thynge that is made of skynne, wherin the plage is, for it is a frettyng lepersy, it shalbe burnt in the fyre. If the preast se that the plage is not growen in the cloth: ether in the warpe or woke, or in what soeuer thynge of skynne it be, the preast shal cōmaund them to wash the thyng wherin ỹ plage is, and he shall shut it vp seuen dayes mo. And the Preast shall loke on the plage agayne, after that it is washed. And yf the plage haue not chaunged his coloure, and is spred no further abrode, it is vncleane. Thou shalt burne it in the fyre, for it is a frette inwarde: in parte or in altogether. And yf the preast se that the plage is darker after that it is washed, he shall rente it out of the cloth, or out of the skyn, or out of the warpe, or out of the wooke. And yf it appeare any more in the cloth (either in the warpe or in ỹ wooke, or in any thynge made of skynne) it is a waxynge plage. Thou shalte burne the plage that is in it. Moreouer the cloth, ether warpe or woke or what soeuer thyng of skyn it be whiche thou haste washed, yf ỹ plage be departed there from, it shall be washed once agayne: and then shall it be cleane. This is the lawe of the plage of lepersy in a cloth whether it be wollen or lynnen: ether in the warpe or woke, or in any thyng of skynnes, to make it cleane or vncleane.

25 And he that is clensed, shall washe hys clothes, and shaue of all hys heare, and washe hym selfe in water, that he maye be cleane. And after that shal he come into the hoost, and shall tarry without his tent seuen dayes, but in ỹ seuenth daye he shall shaue of all his heare, namely, hys heade, hys bearde, and his bzowes: euen all hys heare shalbe shauen of. In the eyghte daye he shall take two lambes without blemysshe, and an ewe lambe of a peare olde without blemysshe, and thze tenth deales of fyne floure foz a * meate offeryng myngled with oyle and a logge of oyle. And he shall slee the lambe in the place where the synne offering and the burnt offerynge are slayne: euen in the holy place. Foz as the synne offerynge is, euen so is the trespace offerynge the Pzeastes: seynge it is most holy. And the pzeast shall take of the bloud of the trespace offeryng, and put it vpon the typ of the ryght eare of him that is to be clensed, and vpon the thumbe of hys ryght hande, and vpon the great too of his ryght foote.

And yf I put the plage of lepzosye in a house of the lande of your possessyon, he that oweth ỹ house shall come, and tell the pzeast, saying: me thynke that there is as it were a lepzosye in the house. And the pzeast shall commaunde them to emptye the house befoze the Pzeast go into it to se the plage: that all that is in the house be not made vncleane, and then must the pzeast go into se the house. And yf ỹ plage come agayne and bzeake out in the house, after that he hathe taken awaye the stones and scraped the walles of the house, and after ỹ he hath playstred the house a newe: the pzeast shal come and se it. And yf he perceaue that the plage hath growen further in the house, it is a krettyng lepzosy in the house. It is therfoze vncleane. And he shall bzeake downe the house. And the stones of it, and the tymber therof, and all the mozter of the house, shall he carye out of the cytie vnto a foule place. Leuit. vi. d. and. xi. f.

When he also that hath any yssue, is clensed of hys yssue, he shall nomber seuen dayes foz hys clensynge, and washe hys clothes, and bath hys flesh in runnyng water, and so shal he be cleane.

And the eyghte daye he shall take vnto hym two turtyll doues oz two ponge pygeons, and come before the Lozde vnto the doze of the Tabernacle of witnes, and geue them vnto ỹ pzest. And the pzeast shall offer them: the one foz a syn offerynge, and the other foz burnt offeryng: and the Pzeaste shall make an attonement foz hym before the Lozde, as concernyng his yssue. Yf any mans sede departe from hym in hys slepe, he shall washe his flesshe in water, and be vncleane vntyll euen. Yf a womans naturall course of bloude doo C runne, she shalbe put a parte seuen dayes: whoso euer toucheth her, shalbe vncleane vnto the euē. And all that she lyeth vpon, in the tyme of her naturall dysease, shalbe vncleane lyke as euery thynge also that she sytteth vpon, is vncleane. Who soeuer toucheth her bed, shall washe hys clothes, and bath hym selfe wyth water, and be vncleane vnto the euen: And who so euer toucheth any thynge that she sat vpon, shall washe his clothes, and bath hym selfe in water, and be vnclean vnto the euen: so that whether he touch her couch, oz any vessell wheron she hath sytten he shalbe vncleane vnto ỹ euen. * And yf a man Leui. xviii. e lye with her, and her vnclennes come vpon hym he shalbe vnclean seuen dayes, and all the couch wheron he lyeth shalbe vncleane.

What Aaron must do. The clensynge of the sanctuarye. Of the feast of the clensynge. Aaron confessech the synnes of the chyldzen of Israell.

Leuit. f. a. But with thys thynge shall Aaron come into the holy place: euen wyth a bullocke foz synne, and with a ram foz a burnt offeryng. He shal put the holy lynnen albe vpon hym, and shall haue a lynnen bzyche vpon his flesshe, and shalbe gyzded with a lynen gyzdell, and put the lynen mytre vpon his head: These are holy garmentes: therfoze shall he washe his flesshe in water, when he doth put them on. And Aaron shall offer hys bullocke foz synne, * and make an attonement foz hym, and foz his house. And he shall take the two gotes, & pzesent them befoze the Lozde at the doze of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And Aaron shall cast lottes ouer the two gootes: one lotte shalbe foz the Lozde, and the other foz the scapegoate. Hebze. fr. b B And Aaron shall bzynge the goate vpon which the Lozdes lot fel, and offer hym foz synne. But the goote on which the lotte fell to scape, shalbe set alyue befoze the Lozde, to reconcyle wyth, & to let hym go (as a scape gote) fre into the wyldernesse. And Aaron shall bzynge his bullocke foz syn, and reconcyle foz hym selfe, and foz hys house, and shall kyll his bullocke foz synne.

And he shall take a censer full of burnynge C cokes out of the aultar befoze the Lozde, & shall fyll his handful of swete cens beaten small, and bzynge them within the vayle, and put the cens vpon the fyze befoze the Lozde: that the cloude of the cens maye couer the mercyseate that is vpon the witnes, and that he dye not. And he shal *take of the bloude of the bullocke, and spzynkle it with his fynger vpon the mercyseate eastwarde: and befoze the mercyseate shall he spzynkle of the bloude with his fynger seuen tymes. Hebze. fr. b and. f. a Then shall he kyll the goote that is the peoples synneofferyng, and bzyng his blond within the vayle, and do with that bloude, as he dyd wyth the bloude of the bullocke, spzynklynge it vpon the mercyseate, and befoze the mercyseate. And so shall he do foz the tabernacle of wytnesse that is set among them, euen amonge theyz vnclennesse.

*And let there be no bodye in the tabernacle of wytnesse, when he goeth in to make an attonment in the holy place, vntyll he come out. And lette hym make an attonemente foz hym selfe & foz his houshold, and foz all the multytude of Israell. And he shall goo out vnto the aultar that is befoze the Lozd, and reconcyle vpon it, & shal take of the bloud of the bullocke, and of the bloud of the gote, and put it vpon the hoznes of the aultare rounde aboute, and spzynkle of the bloude vpon it with his fynger seuen tymes, and clense it, and halow it from the vnclennesses of the chyldzen of Israel. And when he hath made an ende of reconcilynge the holy place, and the tabernacle of wytnes, and the aultar, he shall bzyng the lyue goote: and Aaron shal put both his handes vpon the heade of the lyue goote, & confesse ouer hym all the mysdedes of the chyldzen of Israel, & and all theyz tresspaces, in all theyz synnes, puttinge them vpon the head of the goate, and send hym awaye (by the hande of a conuenient man) into the wyldernesse. And the goate shall beare vpon hym all theyz mysdedes vnto the wyldernes, and he shal let the goate go free into the wyldernes. And Aaron shall come into the tabernacle of wytnesse, & put of the lynen clothes which he put on (when he wente in into the holy place) and leaue them there. And let hym washe hys flesshe wyth water in the holy place, and put on his owne raiment, and then come out, and offer his burnt offeryng and the burnt offeryng of the people, and make an attonement foz hym selfe, and foz the people, and the fat of the synne offerynge shall he burne vpon the aultar. ¶ A lawe for the preastes.

AND the Lorde sayde vnto Moses, speake vnto the preastes the sonnes of Aaron, and saye vnto them. Let none be defyled vpon a soule among hys people: but vpon his kynsman y is nye vnto hym: vpon his father, & his mother, vpon son and doughter, and his brother, and on his

Let them not make *baldnes vpō their head, nor shaue of the lockes of their beard nor make any markes in their flesshe. They shal be holy vnto theyr God, and not polute ỹ name of theyr God, for the sacrifyces of ỹ Lord which are as the bread of theyr God they do offer: therfore they shalbe holy. *Let thē not take a wyfe that is an aduoutresse, or poluted, nor put from her husband: for such a one is holy vnto his god Thou shalte sanctifye hym therfore, for he offereth vp the bread of thy God: he shal therfore be holy vnto the, for I the Lorde whiche sanctifye you am holy. If a Preestes doughter fall to play the whore, she poluteth her father: therfore must she be burnt with fyre. He that is the hye preast amonge his brethren, vpon whose head ỹ anoyntynge oyle was powred, & that consecrated hys haude to put the vestymentes, shall not vncouer his head, nor rent his clothes, *nether go to any dead body, nor make hym selfe vncleane on hys father or his mother, neyther shall go out of the sanctuary, nor polute the holy place of his God for the croune of the anoyntyng oyle of his god, is vpon hym: I am the Lorde. *He shall take a mayde vnto his wyfe: but a wydow, a deuorsed woman, or an harlot, shall he not marye. But shall take a mayde of hys owne people to wyfe. Neither shall he defyle his sede amonge his people: for I am the Lorde which sanctifye hym.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto Aaron, and saye. Who so euer of thy sede in theyr generacyons hath any deformitie, let him not preace for to offer bread vnto his God, *for who soeuer hath any blemyshe, shall not come nere: as yf he be blynde or lame, or that hath a brused nose, or that hath any myshapen membre, or is broken foted, or broken handed or haue no heare on his eye browes, or haue a web or other blemyshe in hys eyes, or be maunge, or skauld, or hath his stones broken. No man that hath a blemyshe, and is of the sede of Aaron the Preaste, shall come nye to offer the sacrifyces of the Lorde. Who ought to abstayne from eatynge the thynges that were offred. Howe, what and when they shulde be offered.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: Speake vnto Aaron & hys sonnes, that they be seperated from the holy thynges of the chyldren of Israel, and that they polute not my holy name in thosethynges, which they halowe vnto me: I am the Lorde. Saye vnto them: who so euer he be of all your sede amonge youre generacyons after you, that goeth vnto the holy thynges whiche the chyldren of Israel halow vnto the Lorde, hauynge his vnclennesse vpon hym: that soule shall perysshe frome oute of my syghte. But there shall no straunger eate therof. If a man eate of the holy thynge vnwyttyngly, he shall put the fyfte parte therunto, and geue it vnto the Preaste with the halowed thynge. And the Preastes shall not defyle the holy thynges of the chyldren of Israell, (whiche they offer vnto the Lorde) to lade them selues with mysdoyng and trespasse whyle they eate theyr holy thynges, for I the Lorde do halowe them. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto Aaron and his sonnes, and vnto all the chyldren of Israell, and saye vnto them: what so euer he be of the house of Israell, or straunger in Israel, that wyll offer his sacrifyce for all his vowes, and for all his frewyll offerynges which they wyll offer vnto the Lorde for a burnt offerynge, ye shall offer (to reconcyle your selues) a male without blemyshe of the oxen, of the shepe, or of the gotes. But whatsoeuer hath a blemyshe, that shall ye not offre, for ye shall get no fauoure therwyth. And who so euer bryngeth a peace offerynge vnto the Lorde (accordynge as he is appoynted): or a vowe, or a fre wyll offeryng, in ore or shepe that is wythoute deformytie, he shalbe accepted. Notwithstandynge, no damned thynge that a man putteth from hym & dedicateth vnto the Lorde of all his good (whether it be mã or beast or land of his enheritaũce) may be solde or redemed: for euery thyng so put away is most holy vnto the Lorde. Let no damned thynge that a man seperateth: be redemed, but dye the death. Euery tyth of the land which is of the sede of the land, or of the frute of ỹ trees is the Lordes: and is sanctifyed vnto the Lorde. And yf a man wyll redeme ought of his tythes: let hym ad the fyft parte therto. And euery tyth of ore and of shepe and of euery beast ỹ goth vnder the rod, euen euery tenth shal be holy vnto ỹ Lorde. And when Aaron and hys sonnes haue made an ende of couerynge the holye thynges, and all the vesselles of the sanctuary (agaynste that the hooste remoue) then the sons of Cahath shal come in for to beare, but they shal not touch any holy thynge, least they dye. And this is the charge of the sonnes of Cahath in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And to the offyce of Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preest pertayneth the oyle for the lyght, the swete cense, the dayly meate offerynge, and the anoyntynge oyle, and the ouersyght of all the tabernacle, and of all that therin is, both in the sanctuary and in all the vessels therof. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron sayinge: Ye shall not destroye the trybe of the kynred of the Cahathites, frome amonge the Leuites. But thus do vnto them, that they maye lyue and not dye, when they goo vnto the most holy thynges: Let Aaron and hys sonnes goo in, and take them downe, to euery one after his scrupce, and after his charge. But let them not go in, to se when the holy thinges are folden vp, lest they dye. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Take also the summe of the chyldren of Gerson, thorowe out the houses of theyr fathers, & thorowout theyr kynreds: from .xxx. yere and aboue, vntyll fyfty shalt thou nombre them, all that are able to go forth to the warre for to do scrupce in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And this is the scrupce of the kynred of the Gersonytes, to serue and to beare. They shall beare the curtaynes of the dwellyng, and the roufe of the tabernacle of wytnesse, hys couerynge, and the couerynge of taxus skynnes, that is an hye aboue vpon it, and the hanging of the doze which is in the Tabernacle of wytnesse: and the hangynges of the courte, and the hangynge that is in the entryng in of the gate of the courte round aboute the dwellynge and the aultar, with ỹ cordes, and all the instrumentes that serue vnto thẽ and all that is made for to serue theym. At the mouth of Aaron and his sonnes, shal all the scrupce of the chyldren of the Gersonites be done, in all theyr charges and in all theyr scrupce, and ye shall nombre vnto them all theyr burdens to keppe. And this is the scrupce of the kynred of the chyldren of Gerson in the tabernacle of wytnesse, and theyr watche shall be vnder the hande of Ithamar the sonne of Aaron the preest. And thou shalte nomber the sonnes of Merari after theyr kynredes, and after the houses of theyr fathers: from thyrty yeres and aboue vnto fyfty shalte thou nombre them, euery one that is able to gō forth to the warre, to do the seruyce of the Tabernacle of witnesse. And this is the charge that they muste wayte vpon, accordynge to all theyr seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse. The lordes of the dwellynge, with the barres, pyllers, and sockettes therof, and the pyllers that are rounde aboute the courte, with theyr sockettes, pynnes and cordes, and wythall the instrumentes of it, for all theyr seruyce. And by name ye shall reken the thinges that they must wayte vpon to beare. This is the seruyce of the kynredes of the sons of Merari accordyng to all theyr offyce in the Tabernacle of wytnesse vnder the hande of Ithamar the sonne of Aaron the preest.

D And Moses and Aaron and the prynces of the multytude nombred the sonnes of the Cahathites, after theyr kynredes and houses of theyr fathers from thyrty yere and aboue vnto fyfty, all that were able to go forth to the warre, to do seruyce in the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And the nombers of them throwe out theyre kynredes were two thousande, seuen hundred and fyftye. This is the nombre of the kynredes of Cahath: namely, all that myght do seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse, which Moses and Aaron dyd nombre accordyng to the cōmaundement of the Lorde by the hande of Moses. These are ỹ nombres of the sonnes of Gerson throwe out theyr kynredes and houses of theyr fathers, from thyrtye yere vp vnto fyftye all that were able to go forth to the warre, for to do seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the nombres of them throwe out theyr kynredes, and houses of theyre fathers, were two thousande fyue hundred and thyrtye. This is the nombre of the kynredes of the sonnes of Gerson of all that dyd seruyce in ỹ tabernacle of wytnesse, whiche Moses and Aaron dyd nombre accordynge to the commaundement of the Lorde. And these are the nombres of the kynreds of the sonnes of Merari throwout theyr kynredes and houses of theyr fathers from thyrty yere vp vnto fyftye: all that wente forth to the warre, and serued in the tabernacle of wytnes. And the nombres of them after their kynredes were thre thousand and two hundred. Thys is the summe of the kynredes of the sons of Merari, whiche Moses and Aaron nombred accordynge to the worde of the Lorde, by ỹ hand of Moses. And so all the nombres of the Leuites, which Moses, Aaron and the Lordes of Israell nombred, after theyr kynreds and housholdes of theyr fathers, from thyrtye yere vp vnto fifty euery one that came to do his offyce and seruyce and to beare hys burthen in the tabernacle of wytnes: were (when they were nombred) viii thousande fyue hundred and .lxxx. ¶ The knowlegynge of synne. The clensynge of synne. the lawe of the fyrst frutes, and of gelousye.

A AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying commaunde the chyldren of Israell that they *put out of ỹ hoste, euery leper & euery one that hath an yssue, and whosoeuer is defyled vpon a soule. Both male and female shall ye put out: euen oute of the hoste shall ye put them, that they defyle not the tentes amonge which I dwell. And the chyldren of Israell dyd so, and put them out of the host, euen as the Lorde spake vnto Moses, so dyd the chyldren of Israell. Leu. xiij.g.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israell: whether it be *man or woman. Yf they haue cōmytted any synne that a man doth, & haue trespaced against the Lorde, that soule hath done amysse: Therfore they shall knowledge theyre synne whiche they haue done, and let hym restore agayne the hurte that he hath done in the hole, and putte the fyfte parte of it more thereto, and geue it vnto hym whom he hath trespalled agaynste. Leui. v.g.

But and yf there be not a man to restore the hurte vnto, nor a kynsman of his, lette the trespace be made good vnto the Lorde, and it shalbe the preastes, beside the ram of the attonement, wherby an attonement shalbe made for hym. B And euery heueoffering that is made of the holy thynges of the chyldren of Israell whyche they bryng vnto ỹ preest, shalbe his, and euery mans halowed thynges shall be his: and what so euer any man geueth the preest, it shalbe his. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israell, and saye vnto them. If any mans wyfe go aside & trespace agaynst hym, so that another man lye with her fleshly, & it be hyd from the eyes of her husbande, & is not come to lyght that she is defyled, and there is no wytnesse agaynst her, neyther she taken with ỹ maner, and the spyrete of gelousye commeth vpon hym, so that he is gelous ouer hys wyfe, whiche is defyled: or yf the spyrete of gelousy cōe vpon hym, so that he is gelous ouer hys wyfe, whiche is yet vndefyled: then let the man bryng his wyfe vnto the preast, and bryng wyth her an offeryng for her: the tenth parte of an Epha of barlye meale, but let hym put none oyle vpon it, nor put frankencens theron: for it is an offerynge of gelousy, an offering for a remēbraunce causynge the synne to be thought vpon.

C And the preast shall bryng her, and set her before the Lorde, and let hym *take holy water in an erthen vessell, and of the dust that is in the floore of the habitacyon, and put it into the water. And let the preast set the woman before the Lorde, and vncouer the womans head, and put the memoryal of ỹ offeryng in her handes which is the gelousy offeryng, and the preast shal haue bytter and cursed water in his hande, & the preest shall charge her, and saye vnto the woman. Yf no man haue lyen wyth the, neyther haste gone aside to vnclennesse without thy husband, then haue thou no harme of thys bytter & cursed waters. But and yf thou haste gone aside behynde thyne husbande, and art defyled, and some other man hath lyen with the beside thyne husbande, (and the preast shall charge the woman with an horryble curse, and the preast shal saye vnto the woman) the Lorde make the to be an abhominacyon and a curse amonge the people: when the Num. xix.b.

And let the preast wryte these curses: And when they be clensed, let hym caste them into bytter waters, and geue the woman those bitter and cursed waters to drynke, that those cursed and bytter waters maye enter into her. And then the Preast shall take the gelousy offrynge out of the womans hand, and waue it before the Lorde, and bryng it vnto the aultar and ỹ preest shall take an handfull of the offeryng for a memorypall, and burne it vpon the aultar, and then make the woman drynke the water: and when he hathe made the woman drynke the waters, (yf she be defyled and haue trespassed agaynste her husbande:) then shall the cursed and bytter waters go into her, and her belly shall swel, and her thye shall rot, and the woman shalbe a curse amonge her people. And yf the woman be not defyled but is clean, she shall haue no harme, but shall conceaue and beare. After that went the Leuites in to do theyr seruyce in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, before Aaron and hys sonnes: as the Lorde had commaunded Moses concerning the Leuites, euen so they dyd vnto them.

Pro.xii.a. Leu.xxiii.a nu.xxviii.c Deu.xvi.a ND the Lorde spake vnto Moses in the wylderneße of Sinay, in ỹ first moneth of ỹ seconde yere, after they *were come out of ỹ land of Egipt saynge: lette the chyldren of Israel offer passeouer in hys season: euen the fourtene daye of this moneth at euen lette hym kepe it in his season, accordynge to all the ceremonyes of it, and accordynge to all ỹ maners therof. And Moses spake vnto the chyldren of Israell, that they shulde offer passeouer, & they offered passeouer the fourtene daye of the fyrste moneth at euen in the wylderneße of Sinai, accordynge to all that the Lorde commaunded Moses, euen so B dyd the chyldren of Israell.

And certayn men were defyled vpon ỹ soule of a man, that they myght not offer passeouer ỹ same daye. And they came before Moses and Aaron the same daye. And the men sayde vnto hym: We are defyled vpon ỹ soule of man: wherfore are we kepte backe that we maye not offer an offerynge vnto the Lorde in the due season, amonge ỹ chyldren of Israel? And Moses sayde vnto them: Stande styll, and I wyl heare what the Lorde wyll commaunde concernynge you.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye: Yf any man amonge you or your children after you be vncleane by the reason of a corße, or is in the waye farre from you, and wyll offer Passeouer vnto the Lorde: the fourtene daye of the seconde moneth at euen let them offer it, and eate it with Exo.xii.g. Iohn.xix.c swete bread and sowre herbes: lette them leaue none of it vnto the morowynge * nor breake any bone of it: But accordynge to all ỹ ordynaunce of the passeouer, let them offer it.

C But the man that is cleane & is not in a iourney, and yet was neclygent to offer Passeouer: the same soule shall perysche from his people, because he brought not the offerynge of the Lorde in his due season, that man shall beare his synne. And yf a straunger dwel amonge you, and wyl offer Passeouer vnto the Lorde, accordynge to the ordynaunce of passeouer and maner therof, he shall offer it thus. Ye shal haue one lawe both for the straunger, and for hym that was borne at home in the lande.

At the same daye that the Tabernacle was reared vp, a * cloude couered the habitacyon, which was a tabernacle of the wytnesse: and at euen there was vpon the habitacion, as it were the symilytude of fyre vntyll the morowynge. So it was alwaye, the cloude couered it by day and the symilytude of fyre by nyght. And when the cloude was taken vp from of the tabernacle, then the chyldren of Israell iourneyed: and where the cloude abode, there the chyldren of Israell pytched theyr tentes. At the mouth of the Lorde the chyldren of Israell iourneyed, and at the mouthe of the Lorde they pytched. And as longe as the cloude abode vpon the habitacyon they laye styll: and when the cloude tarryed styll vpon the habitacyon longe tyme, the chyldren of Israell kepte the watche of the Lorde, & iourneyed not. And it chaunced that when the cloude abode a fewe dayes vpon the habitacyon, they abode in theyre tentes, accordynge to the commaundement of the Lorde: and they iourneyed also at the commaundement of the Lorde.

D And it happened that when the cloude abode vpon the habitacyon frome euen vnto the morninge, & was taken vp in the morninge, then they iourneyed. Whether it was by day or by nyght ỹ the cloud was take vp they iourneyed. Or yf the cloude taried two dayes or a moneth, or a longe season vpon the habitacyon, and remayned theron, the chyldren of Israel abode styll, and iourneyed not. And assone as the cloude was taken vp, they iourneyed. At the mouth of the Lorde, they rested in the tentes, and at the commaundement of the Lorde, they iourneyed, keppynge the watch of the Lorde, at the cōmaundement of the Lord by the hande of Moses.

¶The.x.Chapter.

A ND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Make the two trompettes of syluer: of an whole pece shalt thou make them, that thou mayst vse them to call the congregacyon together, and when the hoste shall iourney. Therfore shal they blowe with them, that all the multytude maye resorte to the before the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And yf they blowe but one trumpet, then the prynces which are heades ouer the thousandes of Israell shall come vnto the. But yf ye trompe, the hostes that lye on the east partes shal go forwarde. And yf ye trompe the seconde tyme, the hoste that lyeth on ỹ south syde shal take theyr iorney: for they shal tromp when they take theyr iorneyes. But when the congregacyon is to be gathered together, they shall blowe only, and not trompe. And the sonnes of Aaron the Preast shall blowe with theyr trompettes, and ye shall haue them as a lawe for euer in youre generacyons.

And yf ye go to warre in youre lande agaynst

Also in the daye of pour gladnesse, and in pour feast dayes, and in the begynnyng of pour monethes, ye shall blowe the trompettes ouer pour burnt sacrifyces and peaceofferinges, that they may be a remẽbraunce for you before pour God. I am the Lorde poure God.

And it came to passe the twentyth daye of ỹ seconde moneth in the second yere, that ỹ cloude was taken vp frome of the habitacyon of wytnesse. And the chyldren of Israel toke theyr iorney out of the deserte of Sinai, and ỹ cloude rested in the wylderneße of Pharan. And the fyrst toke theyr iorney at the mouth of the Lorde, by the hande of Moses. In the fyrst place went the standarde of ỹ hoost of Juda, accordyng to their armyes: whose captayne was Nahasson ỹ sõne of Aminadab. And ouer the hoost of the tribe of the chyldrẽ of Isachar, was Nathanael ỹ sonne of zuar. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the chyldren of zabulon, was Eliab the sonne of Helon. And the habitacyon was taken downe: and the sonnes of Gerson and Merari wente forthe bearynge the habitacyon.

C And ỹ hoost of Ruben went forth with theyr standard and armies, whose captayne was Elizur the sonne of Sedeur. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the chyldren of Simeon was Salamiel the sonne of Suri Saddai. And ouer the hoost of the tribe of the chyldren of Gad was Eliasaph the sõne of Deguel. The Cahathites also went forward & bare the sanctuary, and the other dyd set vp ỹ habitaciõ agaynst they came And the standard of the hoost of the chyldren of Ephraim went forth according to theyr armies whose captayne was Elisama ỹ sõne of Amiud And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the sonnes of Manasse, was Gamaliel the sonne of Pedazur. And ouer ỹ hoost of ỹ trybe of the sõnes of Ben Jamin was Abidan the sonne of Gedeoni.

And the standard of the hoost of the chyldren of Dan came forth (haupnge all the hoostes together) throwout theyr armyes: whose captayne was Ahiezer the sonne of Ammi Saddai And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the chyldrẽ of Aser, was Pagiel ỹ sõne of Ochram. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the chyldren of Nephthaly, was Ahira ỹ sonne of Enã. These are the iorneyes of the chyldren of Israel throwout theyr armyes: and thus the hoostes remoued.

D And Moses sayde vnto Hobab the sonne of Raguel the Madianite: which was Moses father in lawe: We go into the place of whyche the Lorde sayde: I wyl geue it you. Come thou ther fore with vs, & we wyl do the good: for ỹ Lorde hath promised good vnto Israel. And he answered him: I wyll not go: but wyl departe to myne owne lande & to my kynred. He sayde: Oh naye, leaue vs not: for thou knowest our mansions in the wyldernesse: & thou hast bene to vs in steade of eyes. And if thou go with vs loke what goodnesse the Lorde sheweth vnto vs the same wyll we shewe vnto the.

And they departed from the mount of ỹ Lord, thre dayes iorney: & the arke of ỹ testament of ỹ Lord went before them in the thre dayes iorney, to searche out a restyng place for them. And the Lorde made a shadowe for them throwe the cloude by day, whẽ they went out of the tentes.

And it fortuned, that whan the arcke wente forthe Moses sayde: * Ryse vp Lorde, and let thyne enemies be scatered: and let them that hate the, flye before the. And when the arke rested, he saide: Returne O Lorde vnto the many thousandes of Israel. Nu.x.b.viii.a

¶The.xi.Chapter.

¶The people murmureth. They desyre flesshe. They lothe manna. The wauering fayth of Moses. The Lord deuideth the burden of Moses to seuenty of ỹ auncientes, & they prophesy. It rayneth quayles. The flesh raueners are punyshed

And the rascal people ỹ was amonge them, fell a lustyng, and turned thẽ selues and wepte (euen as dyd also the chyldren of Israel) & sayd: who shall geue vs flesshe to eate? we remembre ỹ fysshe which we dyd eate in Egypt for naught and the cucumbers and melons, lekes, onyons & garleke. But nowe our soule is dryed awaye, for we can se nothyng els, saue Manna.

The Manna was as * coriander sede, and (to se to) lyke Bedellyõ. And ỹ people went aboute and gathered it, & groũd it in mylles, or bet it in morters, & baked it in pannes, & made cakes of it. And the taste of it was lyke vnto the taste of an oyle cake. And whẽ the dewe fel downe vpon the hoost in the nyght, the Manna fell vpon it. Exo.xvi.g. C

And when Moses herde the people wepe throwout theyr housholdes, euery man in the dore of his tente, the face of the Lorde was prouoked vnto wrath exceadyngly: and it greued Moses also. And Moses sayd vnto the Lord: wherfore hast ỹ dealt cruelly with thy seruaũt? And wherfore haue I not found fauour in thy syght, seyng that thou puttest the weyght of all thys people vpon me? haue I conceyued all thys people? Or haue I begotten them? that ỹ shuldest say vnto me: cary them in thy bosome (as a nurse beareth the suckyng chylde) vnto the lande, whiche thou swarest vnto theyr fathers? And Moses at the commaundement of ẏ Lozd sent fozth out of the wildernesse of Pharan such men as were all heades of ẏ chyldzen of Israel: Theyz names are these. Of the trybe of Ruben, Sammua the sonne of Zacur.

Of the trybe of Simeon, Saphat the sonne of Hori. Of the trybe of Juda, Caleb the sonne of Jephune. Of the trybe of Isachar, Igeal the son of Joseph. Of the trybe of Ephraim, Osea the sonne of Nun. Why heue ye your selues vp aboue the congregacyon of the Lorde? And when Moses hearde it, he fel vpon hys face, and spake vnto Corah and vnto all his company, sayinge: to morowe the Lorde wyll shewe who are his, who is holy, and who oughte to approche nye vnto hym, and who he hath chosen to come to hym. This do therfore, take you fyrepans, both Corah and all his company and do fyre therin, and put cens in them before the Lord to morowe.

that the God of Israel hath seperated you from the multytude of Israell: and brought you to hym self, to do the serupce of the dwellyng place of the Lorde, and to stand before the multytude and to minyster vnto hym? he hath taken the to hym and all thy brethren the sons of Leui wyth the, and seke ye the offyce of the preast also? For whiche cause both thou and all thy company ar gathered together agaynst ỹ Lorde. And what is Aaron, that ye murmur agaynste hym?

And Moses sente, and called Dathan, and Abiram the sonnes of Eliab, whiche sayde: we wyll not come vp. Is it a smal thyng that thou hast brought vs out of a lande ỹ floweth wyth mylke and honye, to kyll vs in the wylderneſſe, and to raygne ouer vs also? Hast thou brought vs vnto a lande that floweth wyth mylke and hony, and geuen vs inherytaunce of feldes and vyneyardes? Wylt thou pull out ỹ eyes of these men? we wyll not come vp. And Moses waxed very angry, and sayde vnto the Lorde. Turne not thou vnto theyr offeryng. I haue not taken so muche as an asse from them, neyther haue I hurte any of them. And Moses sayde vnto Corah: Be thou and all thy companye before the Lorde: both thou, they, and Aaron to morowe. And take euery man hys censer, and put cens in them, that ye maye offer before the Lorde: euery man of the two hundred and fyftye take his censour, thou also Aaron, that euery one maye haue his censer. And they toke euery man his censer, and put fyre in them, and layde cens theron, and stode in the doore of the Tabernacle of wytnesse with Moses and Aarou. And Corah gathered all the congregacion agaynst them vnto ỹ doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse.

And the glorye of the Lorde appeared vnto all the congregacyon. And the Lord spake vnto Moses and Aaron, saying: seperate your selues from amonge this congregacyon, that I maye consume them at once. And they fell vpon theyr faces and sayde. *O most myghtye God of the spyrites of all flesh, yf one man hath sinned, wylt thou be wroth with all the multytude? And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the congregacyon and saye: Get you awaye frō about the dwellynge of Corah, Dathan, and Abiram. And Moses rose vp, and went vnto Dathan and Abiram, and the elders of Israell folowed hym. And he spake vnto the congregacyon, sayinge: departe frome the tentes of these wycked men, and touche nothyng of theyrs: lest ye perysshe in all theyr synnes. And so they gate them from the dwelling of Corah, Dathan and Abiram on euery syde. And Dathan and Abiram came out and stode in the doore of theyr tentes with theyr wyues, theyr sonnes, and theyre lytle chyldren. And Moses sayde: Here by ye shall knowe that the Lorde hath sente me to do all these workes, and that I haue not done them of myne owne mynde. If these men dye the comē death of all men: or yf they be vysyted after the vysytacyon of all men, then the Lorde hath not sente me. But and yf the Lorde make a newe thynge, and the earthe open her mouth, and swalowe them vp wyth all that they haue: and they go downe quycke into hell: then ye shall vnderstande, that these men haue prouoked ỹ Lorde.

And it fortuned that assone as he had made an end of speakyng all these wordes, *ỹ ground cloue a sunder that was vnder them: and ỹ earth opened her mouth, and swalowed them vp, and theyre houses, and all the men that were wyth Corah, and all theyr goodes. And they and all that they had, went downe alyue vnto hell, and the earthe closed vpon them: and they perysshed from amonge the congregacyon. And all Israel that were aboute them fled at the crye of them. And they sayde: leest the earth swalowe vs vp also. And there came out a fyre from the Lorde, and consumed the two hundred and fyftye men that offered cens. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Speake vnto Eleazar, the son of Aaron the Preast that he take vp the censers oute of the burnyng and skater the fyer here and there, for ỹ censers of these synners are halowed in theyre deathes: and lette them make of them thynne beaten plates for a couerynge of the aultar. For they offered them before the Lorde, and therfore they are halowed, & they shalbe a sygne vnto the chylden of Israel. And Eleazar ỹ preest toke the brasen censers whyche they that were burnte had offered, and beate them thynne for a couerynge of the aultar, to be a remembraunce vnto the chyldren of Israell, that no straunger whyche is not of the sede of Aaron, come nere to offer cens before the Lord, that it happen not vnto hym: lyke as vnto Corah and hys companye, as the Lorde sayde of hym by the hande of Moses. But on the morowe all the multytude of ỹ chyldren of Israel murmured agaynst Moses and Aaron, sayinge: ye haue kylled the people of the Lorde. And it fortuned that when the multytude was gathered agaynste Moses and Aaron, they loked towarde the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And beholde. (when they were entred into it) the cloude couered it, and the glorye of the Lorde appeared. And Moses and Aaron came before the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Gette you frome amonge thys congregacyon, that I maye consume them quickly. And they fel vpon theyr faces. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: take a censer, and put fyre therin out of the aultar, and poure on cens, and go quyckly vnto the congregacyon, that thou mayste obtayne the forgeuenesse for them. For there is wrathe gone oute from the Lorde, and there is a plage begonne.

And Aaron toke as Moses cōmaunded hym and ranne into the myddes of the congregacyon and behold, the plage was begonne amonge the people, and he put on cens, and made an attonement for the people. And when he stode betwene the deade and them that were alyue, the plage ceased. And they remoued thence, and pitched vpon ỹ ryuer of zarad. And they departed thence and pytched on the other syde of Arnon, whiche is in the wyldernesse, and cõmeth out of the costes of the Amorites: for Arnon is the border of Moab, betwene Moab and the Amorites.

D Wherfore it is spoken in the boke of the warre of the Lorde, what thynge he dyd in the redsee, and in the ryuer of Arnon. And the head of the ryuer that goeth downe to ỹ dwellynge of Ar, and stretcheth vnto the border of Moab, fromce thence it turneth vnto Beer. The same is Beer or well wherof the Lord spake vnto Moses: gather the people together, and I wyll geue them water. Then Israell sange this songe. Aryse vp well, synge ye vnto hym. The prynces dygged thys well, the captaynes of the people dygged it, with the teacher, and with theyr staues.

And from the wyldernesse they went to Matana, and from Matana to Nahaliel, and from Nahaliel to Bamoth, and from Bamoth to the valey that is in the felde of Moab, vnto the top of the hyll that apereth before Jesimon. And he came to Jaheza and fought agaynst Israell. * And Israell smote hym in the edge of the sweard, and conquered his lande frõ Arnon vnto Jabok, and vnto ỹ chyldren of Ammon. For the border of the chyldren of Ammon was * stronge. And Israell toke all these cityes, and dwelt in all the cityes of ỹ Amorites: in Hesbon and in all the tounes that longe therto. For Hesbon was the Cityе of Sehon the kynge of the Amorites, which fought before agaynst the kynge of the Moabites, and toke all hys lande out of his hande, euen vnto Arnon. Wherfore they saye in the prouerbe: come to Hesbon, and let the cityе of Sehon be buylt and repared: for there is a fyre gone out of Hesbon, and a flãme from the cityе of Sehon, and hath consumed Ar in Moab, and the inheritours of the hye places in Arnon. Wo be to the Moab: o people of Chamos, ye are vndone, he hath put hys sonnes to flyght, and his doughters to captiuite vnto Sehon the kynge of Amorites. Theyr empyre is loste from Hesbon vnto Dibon, and we made a wyldernesse euen vnto Nopha, which reacheth vnto Mediba. And thus Israel dwelt in ỹ land of the Amorites. And Moses sent to searche out Jaezer, and they toke ỹ townes be'ongyng therto, and roted out the Amorites that were therin * And they turned and wente vp towarde Basan. And Og the kynge of Basan came out agaynst them, he and all hys people to fyghte at Adrei. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses, feare hym not, for I haue delyuered hym in thy hande and all his people, and his land. And * Balac the sonne of ziphor sawe all that Israell had done to the Amorites: and the Moabytes were sore afrayde of the people, because they were many, and stode in feare of the chyldren of Israell. And Moab sayde vnto the elders of Madian: nowe shal this company lycke vp all that are rounde aboute vs, as an ore lycketh vp the grasse of the felde. Wherfore dyscorage ye the harte of the chyldren of Israel: ꝑ̄ they shulde not goo ouer into the lande, whyche the Lorde hath geuen them? * Thus dyd youre fathers Nu.xiii.d when I sente them from Cades Barne to se the lande. For when they went vp euen vnto the ryuer of Escoll, and sawe the lande: they discoraged the hartes of the chyldren of Israell, that they shoulde not goo into the lande, whyche the Lorde hathe geuen them.

And the Lorde was wrothe the same tyme, C and sware, saying: * None of the men that came Nu.xiii.e oute of Egypte frome twentye yere olde and aboue, shall se the lande whiche I sware vnto Abraham, Isahac, and Jacob, because they haue not wholye followed me: saue Caleb the sonne of Jephune the Kenesyte, and Josua the sonne of Nun: for they haue followed the Lorde. And the Lorde was angrye with Israel, and made them wander in the wyldernesse forthye yere, vntyl all the generacyon that had done euell in the syghte of the Lorde were consumed.

And beholde, ye are rysen vp in your fathers steade, as an encrease of synful men, to augment the fearce wrath of the Lorde, towarde Israel. For yf ye turne away from after hym, he wyl yet agayne leaue the people in the wyldernesse, and ye shall destroye all this folke. And they wente nere hym and sayde: We wyll buylde shepe foldes here for our shepe and for our catell, & (walled) cityes for our chyldren. But we oure selues wyl go ready armed before the chyldren of Israel, vntyl we haue brought thē vnto their place.

* And oure chyldren * (and what so euer we maye haue) shall dwel in the fenced cityes, because of the inhabyters of the lande. We wyll not returne vnto our houses, vntyl the chyldren of Israel haue enhereted, euery man hys enherytaunce. Neyther wyll we enheret with them on yonder syde Jordan forwarde, because our enherytaunce is fallen to vs on this syde Jordan eastwarde.

D And Moses sayde vnto them: yf ye wyll do this thynge, and go harnessed before the Lorde to warre, and wyl go all of you in harnesse ouer Jordan before the Lorde, vntyll he haue caste oute his enemyes before hym: and vntyl ỹ lande be subdued before the Lord, then ye shal returne and be without synne before the Lorde, and before Israel, and this lande shalbe your possessyon before the Lorde. But and yf ye wyll not do so, beholde, ye haue synned agaynst the Lorde: be sure your synne wyll synde you out.

Nowe therfore, buylde cityes for your chyldren, and foldes for youre shepe, and doo that ye haue spoken. The chyldren of Gad and the chyldren of Ruben spake vnto Moses, sayinge: thy Iosu.iiij.c But * thy seruauntes wyll goo all harnessed to warre, and vnto battayle before the Lorde, as my Lorde sayth. And for theyre sakes Moses cõmaunded Eleazar the Preast, and Josua the sonne of Nun, and the auncyente fathers of the trybes of the chyldren of Israel: & Moses sayde vnto them: Yf the chyldren of Gad and the chyldren of Ruben wyll go with you ouer Jordan, all prepared to fyght before the Lord, then whẽ the lande is subdued before you, ye shall geue them the lande of Gilead to possesse: but and yf they wyll not go ouer with you in harnesse, they shall haue theyre possessyons amonge you in the lande of Canaan

F And the chyldren of Gad and the chyldren of Ruben answered, saying: As the Lorde hath sayde vnto thy seruauntes, so wyll we doo.

Iosu. xxii.a * We wyll goo harnessed before the Lorde into the lande of Canaan: that the possessyon of our enherytaunce maye be on this syde Jordan.

And Moses gaue vnto ỹ chyldren of Gad, and to the chyldren of Ruben, & vnto halfe the tribe of Manasse the sonne of Joseph, the kyngdome of Sehon kynge of the Amorites, and the kyngdome of Og: Kynge of Basan, the lande wyth the cityes therof in the costes and Cityes of the countrey rounde aboute. And the chyldren of Gad buylt Dibon, and Ataroth, and Aroer, and Atroth, Sophan Jaeser, and Jegabea, Bethnimra, and Betharan, fensed Cityes, and they buylt foldes for the shepe.

G And the chyldren of Ruben buylte Hesbon, Eleale, Kiryathaim, Nebo, Baal, Meon, and turned theyr names, and Sibama also: & gaue other names vnto the cityes whyche they buylded. And the chyldren of Machir: the sonne of Manasse went to Gilead, & toke it and put oute the Amorites that dwelte therin. And Moses gaue Gilead vnto Machir the sonne of Manasse, and he dwelte therin. And * Jahir the son of Manasse went & toke the small townes therof, and called them Hanoth Jair. And Nobah wẽt and toke Kenath, and the townes lõgyng therto and called it Nobath, after hys owne name. And these syxe fre cityes shalbe a refuge bothe for the chyldren of Israel, and for the straunger, and for hym that dwelleth amonge you: that all they whiche kyl any personne vnwares, maye flye thyther.

* And yf any man smyte another wt an instrumente of yron that he dye, then is he a murtherer, and shall dye for it. Yf he smyte hym with a throwyng stone that a man maye dye with, and yf he dye, he that smote hym is a murtherer, let the same murtherer be slayne therfore. Or yf he smyte hym wyth a hande weapon of wood that a man dye wyth then yf he dye, he is a murtherer, lette the murtherer be slayne therfore.

The Justyce of bloude shall slaye the murtherer: when he meteth hym, he maye slaye him. But yf he thruste at hym * of hate, or hourle at hym with layinge of wayte, ẏ he dye, or smyte hym wyth hys hande of enuye, that he dye, he that smote hym, shall dye, for he is a murtherer. The Justyce of bloude shall slepe the murtherer as soone as he fyndeth hym. Deute.xx.c

But and yf he pusshed hym by chaunce, and not of hate, or caste at hym wyth any maner of thynge, and not of layinge of wayte: or caste any maner of stone at hym (that a man maye dye with) and sawe hym not. And he caste it vpon hym and he dye, and was not hys enempe, neyther soughte hym any harme. Then the Congregacyon shall iudge betwene the slayer and the executer of bloude in suche cases: And the Congregacyon shall delyuer the slayer oute of the hande of the auenger of bloude, and the congregacyon shall restore hym agayne vnto the Cytie of hys refuge, whyther he was fledde.

D And he shall byde there * vnto the deathe of the hye Preast, whiche was anoynted with holye oyle. But and yf the slayer come without the borders of his priuyleged Citye whyther he was fledde, yf the auenger of bloude fynde hym without the borders of his free towne, and slaye the murtherer, he shall be gyltelesse, because he shulde haue bydden in his free towne, vntyll the deathe of the hye Preaste, and after the deathe of the hye Preaste: to retourne agayne vnto the lande of hys possessyon. Iohn.xx.b

These Commaundementes shall be a lawe vnto you, for youre generacyons in all youre dwellynges. Who so euer kylleth a soule, the same man slayer muste be slayne hym selfe; thorowe * wytnesses. Neyther shall one wytnesse aunswere to putte a man to deathe. Moreouer ye shall take none amendes for the lyfe of ẏ murtherer, whyche is wurthye to dye: But he shall be putte to deathe. Also ye shall take no money of hym that is fledde to a free Cytye, that he shoulde come agayne, and dwell in the lande, before the deathe of the hye Preast. And se that ye polute not the lande whiche ye shall dwell in: for bloude defyleth the lande. And the lande can none otherwise be clensed of the bloude that is shedde therin, but by the bloude of hym that shedde bloude. Defyle not therfore the lande whiche ye shal inhabyte, for I am in the myddes therof: Euen I the Lorde dwell amonge the chyldren of Israel.

Moses, called in the Hebrue: Ellehaddebarim, and in the Latyn, Deuteronomium.

These be the wordes which Moses spake vnto all Israel, on ỹ A other syde Jordan in the wyldernesse: in the playne ouer agaynst ỹ red see, betwene Pharam and Thophel, Laban, Hazerot, & Disahab, eleuen dayes iurney from Horeb vnto Cades barne, by moũt Seir. And it fortuned the fyrste daye of the eleuenth moneth in ỹ fortyeth yere, ỹ Moses spake vnto the chyldren of Israel accordynge vnto al that the Lord had giuen hym in cõmaundement vnto them, after that he had smytten *Sehon ỹ Num.xxi.a kynge of the Amorites which dwelt in Hesbon, and Og kynge of Basan whiche dwelt at Astaroth in Edrai. On the other syde Jordan in the lande of Moab beganne Moses to declare thys lawe, saying: the Lorde our God spake vnto vs in Horeb, sayinge: ye haue dwelt longe ynough in this mounte, departe therfore and take youre iourney, and goo vnto the hyll of the Amorites, and vnto all places nye therunto: both vnto the playne and hylles and dales: to the south, to the sees syde, to the lande of Canaan and vnto Libanon: euen vnto the great ryuer Euphrates.

Beholde, I haue set that lande before you: B go in and *possesse the lande whyche the Lorde Gene.xv.b and.xvii.b sware vnto your fathers Abraham, Isahac and Jacob, to geue vnto them and theyre sede after them. And I spake vnto you the same season, sayinge: I am not able to beare you my selfe alone. For the Lorde your God hath multiplyed you: and beholde, ye are this daye as the starres of heuen in nombre (the Lorde God of youre fathers make you a thousande tymes so many mo as ye ar, and blesse you as he hath promised you Exo.xviii.c powe can *I my selfe alone beare the cumbraũce charge and stryfe that is amonge you? brynge (from amonge you) men of wysdome and of vnderstandynge, and experte, accordynge to youre trybes, and I wyll make them rulers ouer you.

And ye answered me and sayde: that whiche thou haste spoken is good for vs to doo. And so oute of your trybes I toke the captaynes, (men of wysdome: and that were experte) and made them rulers ouer you, captaynes ouer thousandes and des and ouer hundredes ouer fyfty and ouer ten, and offycers amonge your trybes.

C And I charged your Iudges that same tym sayinge: heare the cause of youre brethren, and Ioh.vii.d *iudge ryghteously betwene euery man and his brother, and the straunger that is with hym.
Leui.xix.c. Se that ye knowe no faces in iudgement: *but

Ex.xviii.d And the cause that is to *harde for you, bringe vnto me, and I wyll heare it. And I cõmaunded you the same season, all the thynges whyche ye shulde do. And when we departed from Horeb, we wente thorowe all that greate and terryble wylderneſſe, as ye haue sene alonge be the way of the hyll of the Amorites, as ỹ Lorde our God commaunded vs, and came to Cades Barne.

D And I sayde vnto you: Ye are come vnto the hyl of the Amorites, whiche the Lorde our God wyl geue vnto vs. Beholde, the Lorde thy God hath set the lande before the: go vp and conquer it, as the Lorde God of thy fathers hath sayde Deut.xx.a. vnto the *feare not, nether be discouraged. But

And the sayinge pleased me well, and I toke twelue men of you, of euerye trybe one. I tolde you therfore, and ye wolde not heare, but disobeyed the mouth of the Lord, and went presumpteously vp into the hyl. vnto

Judi.ij.d vnto me: * Thou shalt not fyght agaynste the Moabites, neyther prouoke them to batell, for I wyl not geue the of theyr lande to possesse: because I haue geuen Ar vnto ỹ chyldren of Loth
Ge.xiiii.a to possesse. The terryble people the * Emims dwelt therin in tymes past, a people greate, many and tall, as the Enakims whyche also were taken for giauntes as the Enakims: whom the Moabites call Emims. The Horims dwelte in Seir before tyme, whose possessyon the chyldren of Esau occupyed, and destroyed them before them, and dwelte in theyr steade: as Israell dyd vnto the lande of hys possessyon, whyche the Lorde gaue them.

C Nowe ryse vp (sayde I) and get you ouer the ryuer zared: and we went ouer the ryuer zared. The space in which we came from Cades barne vntyll we were come ouer the ryuer zared was: xxxviii. yeres, vntyll all the generacyon of the men of warre were wasted out from among the Nu.xiiij.c and.xxvi.g hoste, as the Lorde sware vnto them. * For in dede the hande of the Lorde was agaynst them, to destroy them from amonge the hoste, tyl they were consumed. And so it came to passe, that all the men of war were consumed and deade from amonge the people. And the Lorde spake vnto me, sayinge: Thou shalt go thorowe Ar the coste of Moab thys daye: and when thou cõmest nye vnto the chyldren of Ammon, thou shalt not lay sege vnto them, nor moue warre agaynst them.

D For I wyll not geue the of the lande of the chyldren of Ammon a possessyon: but I haue geuen it vnto the chyldren of Loth to possesse. That also is taken for a lande of gyauntes, and gyauntes dwelte therin in olde tyme whom the Ammonites call zanzumims. * A people that Num.xxi.f was great, many and tall, as the Enakims. But the Lorde destroyed them before them, and they succeded them in the inherytaunce & dwelt in theyr steade: as he dyd for ỹ chyldren of Esau
Ge.xxxvi.b * whiche dwel in Seir when he destroyed ỹ Horims before them: they conquered theyr possessyon, and dwelte in theyr steade vnto this daye. And the Auims which dwelte in Hazarim euen vnto Aza, the Caphthorims which came out of Caphthor destroyed them & dwelt in theyr stead

E Ryse vp therfore, and take your iourney ouer the ryuer Arnon. Beholde, * I haue geuen Nu.xxi.g into thy hande Sehon ỹ Amorite kyng of Hesbon, and his lande. Go to therfore and conquer, and prouoke hym to batell. This daye wyll I begynne to send the feare and drede of the, vpon all nacyons that are vnder all the heuen: so that they whyche here speake of the shal tremble and quake before ỹ. And so I sent messengers out of the wyldernes of Kedemoth vnto Sehon kyng
Num.xxi.e of Hesbon, wyth wordes of peace, sayinge: * I Deu.xx.e. wyll go thorowe thy lande I wyl go a longe by F the hye waye: I wyl neyther turne vnto ỹ ryght hande nor to the lefte. Thou shalt sell me meate for money for to eate, and geue me water for money for to drynke: Only graunt me, that I may go thorowe on my fote (as the chyldren of Esau whiche dwel in Seir, and the Moabites which dwell in Ar, dyd vnto me) vntyl I become ouer Iordane, into the lande whyche the Lorde oure God geueth vs. But Sehon the kynge of Hesbon wolde not let vs passe by hym, for the Lord thy God hardened his spyrete, and made his hert toughe, because he wolde delyuer hym into thy hande, as it is come to passe this daye.

And the Lorde sayde vnto me: beholde, I G haue begonne to set Sehon and his land before the: go to and conquere, and possesse his lande.
Num.xxi.e * Then both Sehon and al his people came out Deu.xxix.b agaynst vs to fyght at Jaza. And the Lorde set hym before vs, and we smote hym and his sons and all his people. And we toke all his cyties the same season and slewe the men, wemen, and chyldren of all the cityes, & let nothyng remayne saue the cattel only we caught vnto our selues, and the spoyle of the cityes which we toke from Aroer which is by the brynke of the ryuer of Arnon, and from the citye that is in the ryuer, vnto Gilead: there was not one citye to strong for vs The Lorde our God delyuered all vnto vs: only vnto the land of the chyldren of Ammon thou camst not, nor vnto euery place of the ryuer Jabok, nor vnto the cityes in the mountaynes, nor vnto whatsoeuer the Lorde our God forbad vs.

C The. iii. Chapter.

C Thynges that chaunsed from the byttory of the two kynges Sehon and Og vnto the institucion of Josue in Moses steade.

A Nu.xxi.g Deu.xxix.b When we turned and wẽt vp the way to Basã. * And Og the king of Basan came out agaynste vs, he and al his people to batel at Edrai. And ỹ Lorde sayde vnto me: feare hym not, for I wyll delyuer hym, and all his people, and his lande into thy hande, and thou shalt do vnto hym, as thou dydest vnto Sehon kynge of the Amorites, whiche dwelt at Hesbon. And so the Lorde our God delyuered into our handes, Og also the kynge of Basan and all his folke. And we smote hym, vntyl none was lefte hym alyue. And he toke all his cityes the same season (neyther was there a cityc whiche we toke not from them) euen thre score cityes thorowe out all the regyon of Argob, the kyngdome of Og in Basan. All these Cityes also were made stronge wt hye walles, gates and barres, besyde vnwalled townes a great many. And we vtterly destroyed them, as we dyd vnto Sehon kynge of Hesbon, bryngynge to noughte all the cityes, wyth men, wemen, and chyldren. But all the catel and the spoyle of the cityes, we caught for our selues

And thus we toke the same season, out of the B hande of two kynges of the Amorites, the lande that was on the other syde Jordan from the ryuer of Arnon vnto mount Hermon (which Hermon the Sidons cal Sirion, and the Amorites call it Senir) all the cityes that laye in ỹ playne and all Gilead and all Basan vnto Salecha & Edrai, cityes of the kyngdom of Og in Basan. For onely Og kyng of Basan remayned of the remnaunte of ỹ gyauntes, whose bed was a bed of yron. And is it not yet at Rabah amonge the chyldren of Ammon? .ix. cubytes do the ỹ length therof conteyne, and foure cubytes the bredth of it after ỹ cubyte of a man. And so we conquered this lande the same tyme, from Aroer whiche is by the ryuer of Arnon, vnto halfe mount Gilead, *and the citryes therof gaue I vnto the Rubenites and Gaddites. And the rest of Gilead and all Basan of the kyngdome of Og, gaue I vnto the halfe trybe of Manasse: euen all the regyon of Argob with all Basan: which is called the lande of gyauntes. Iair the sonne of Manasse toke all the regyon of Argob, vnto the costes of Gesuri and Maachati, and called them after his owne name: Basan Hauoth Iair vnto this daye. And I gaue Gilead vnto Machir.

¶ And vnto the Rubenites & Gaddites I gaue halfe Gilead vnto the ryuer of Arnon, halfe the valey and beyond, euen vnto the ryuer Jabock, whiche is the border of the chyldren of Ammon: the playne also (of the wyldernesse) and Iordan & the cost therof, from Cenereth euen vnto the see whiche is in the playne, euen the salt see vnder ỹ springes of the hyll, eastwarde. *And I commaunded you the same tyme sayinge: the Lord your God hath geuen you thys lande to enioye it: ye shall go harnessed before your brethren the chyldren of Israel all that are mete for the warre. Your wyues onely, your chyldren, and your catell (for I wote that ye haue muche catell) shall abyde in your citryes, whiche I haue geuen you, vntyll the Lorde haue geuen rest vnto your brethren as well as vnto you, and vntyll they also haue conquered the lande, which the Lorde your God hath geuen them beyonde Iordan: and thē shall ye retourne agayne, euerye man vnto hys possessyon whiche I haue geuen you.

*And I warned Iosua the same tyme, sayinge: thyne eyes haue sene all that the Lorde your God hath done vnto these two kynges, euen so shal he do vnto all kyngdoms whyther thou goest. Ye shall not feare them, for the Lorde youre God, he shall fyght for you. And I besought the Lorde the same tyme, sayinge: O Lorde God, ỹ haste begonne to shewe thy seruaunt thy greatnesse and thy myghty hande, for elles where is there a God in heuen or in earth, that can do after thy workes, and after thy power? let me go ouer and se the good lande that is beyonde Iordan that goodly mountayne, and Libanon.

*But the Lorde was angrye wyth me for your sakes, and wolde not heare me. And the Lord sayde vnto me: be content, speake nomore vnto me of this matter. *Get the vp into ỹ top of the hyll, and lyfte vp thyne eyes westwarde, northwarde, southwarde, and eastewarde, and behold it with thyne eyes, for thou shalt not go ouer this Iordan. But charge Iosua: and corage hym, and bolden hym. ‡For he shall go before this people, and he shall deuyde vnto them the lande whiche thou shalt se. And so we abode in the valley ouer agaynst the house of Peor.

¶ An exhortacyon to geue dylygent hede vnto the law. Images may not be made to worshyp. The thre cytyes of refuge.

AND nowe herken O Israel vnto the ordynaunces and lawes whyche I teache you for to doo them, that so ye maye lyue and go in and conquer the lande, whyche the Lorde God of your fathers geueth you. *Ye shall put nothynge vnto the worde whiche I commaund you, neyther do ought there from, that ye maye kepe the commaundementes of the Lorde youre God whiche I cōmaunde you. Your eyes haue sene what the Lorde dyd vnto Baal Peor *for all the men that folowed Baal Peor, the Lorde your God hath destroyed from amonge you. But ye that cleaue vnto the Lorde your God, are alyue euery one of you this day. Behold, I haue taught you ordynaunces and lawes, such as the Lorde my God commaunded me, that ye shulde do euen so in the lande, whyther ye go to possesse it. Kepe them therfore and do them, for that is your wysdome and vnderstandyng in the syght of the nacyons: that they may heare all these ordynaunces, and saye: Surely it is a wyse and vnderstandynge people: it is a greate nacyon.

For what other nacyon is so greate, ỹ Goddes come so nye vnto: as the Lorde oure God is nye vnto vs, in all thynges *as ofte as we call vnto hym? Ye and what nacion is so great, that hath ordynaunces and lawes so ryghteous, as all this lawe whiche I set before you this daye. Take hede to thy selfe therfore, & kepe thy soule dilygently, that ỹ forget not the thynges which thyne eyes haue sene, and that they departe not out of thyne herte, all the dayes of thy lyfe: but *teache them thy sonnes and thy sonnes sonnes Specyally the daye that thou stodest before the Lorde thy God in Horeb, when the Lorde sayde vnto me: gather me the people together, & I wyl make them heare my wordes, that they maye learne to feare me all the dayes ỹ they shall lyue vpon the earth *and that they maye teach theyr chyldren: ye came‡ and stode also vnder the hyll and the hyl burnt with fyre: euen vnto the myddes of heuen, and there was darcknesse, cloudes, and myst. And the Lorde spake vnto you out of the myddes of the fyre, and ye hearde the voyce of the wordes *but sawe no Image, saue heard a voyce onely. And he declared vnto you his couenaunt which he commaunded you to do, euen ten verses whiche he wrote vpon two tables of stone. And the Lorde cōmaunded me that same ceason, that I shoulde teache you ordynaunces and lawes, whyche ye oughte to do in the lande whyther ye go to possesse it.

¶ Take therfore good hede vnto youre selues, as pertaynyng vnto your soules, for ye sawe no maner of ymage in the day that the Lorde spake vnto you in Horeb out of the myddes of the fyre: lest ye marre your selues and make you a graue ymage and pycture of any maner of fygure: the lykenesse of man or woman, the likenesse of any maner of beast that is on earthe, or the lykenesse of any maner fethered foule that flyeth in ỹ ayre or the lykenesse of any maner worme that creepeth on the earth, or the lykenesse of any maner fyshe that is in the waters beneth the earth.

*Ye and lest thou lyfte vp thyne eyes vnto heauen, and when thou seest the sonne the mone and starres with all the hoste of heauen, shuldest be deceyued, and shuldest worshyp & serue the thinges,

For this cause must the slayer flye thyther, that he maye lyue. Who so kylleth his neyghboure ignorauntly, and hated hym not in tyme passed: And when a man goeth vnto the ✠ wood w̃ his neyghboure to hewe wood, ✠(thynkynge no harme,) and as his hande fetcheth a stroke with the axe to cut downe the tree, the head slippeth from the helue, and smyteth his neighbour that he dyeth: the same shall flye vnto one of the same cityes and lyue. Lest the executer of bloud folowe after the slayer whyle his hert is whote and ouertake hym, because the waye is longe: and slaye hym, and yet there is no cause worthy of deathe in hym, in as moche as he hated hym not in tyme passed. Thyne eye shall not spare hym, but thou shalt put awaye innocent bloude from Israel, that it may go wel with the. *Thou shalt not remoue thy neyghbours marke, which they of olde tyme haue set in thyne enheryta ũce, that thou shalt enheret in the lande, whiche the Lord thy God geueth the to enioye it. And after thre dayes it fortuned, that the offy-

And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: thys daye

and that he wyll wythout fayle caste out before

And Iosua called ỹ twelue mẽ, whych he had set vp twelue stones also in the myddes of Joz-

And there haue they contynued vnto thys

And the people came vp out of Iozdane ỹ tenth

And Iosua made him sharpe knyues (of stone) B and circumcysed the chyldren of Israell in the

why Iosua circumcysed all the people that cam out of Egipt: Namely, such as were males because that all the men of warre, died in the wil-dernes by ỹ waye, after they cam out of Egipte
For all the people that came out were circumcy of Israel walked forty yeares in ỹ wildernesse, tyll all the people of the men of warre that cam

kened not vnto the voyce of the Lorde.

I haue takẽ awaye ỹ shame of Egypt frõ you:

Deute.ix.d And Josua sayde * Alas, O Lorde God, wherfore haste thou brought thys people ouer Jordan, to delyuer vs into ỹ hande of the Amorites, and to destroye vs: Wolde to God we had bene content, & dwelt on the other syde Jordan. the meu of warre that were with hym, went vp and drue nye, and came agaynst the cytie, & pytched on the nozth syde of Hai. And there was a valeye betwene them & Hai. And he toke vpon a fyue thousande mē, & put them to lye awayte, betwene Bethell and Hai, on the west syde of the citie. And they put the people (euē all ỹ hoste that were on the nozthsyde) agaynste the cytye, & the lyers awayte on the west. And Josua walked the same night in the myddes of the valeye. And it fortuned, that whē the kyng of Hai sawe it, they hasted & rose vp earlye, and the men of ỹ cytye wente oute agaynste Israell to battell, he and all hys people at a tyme apoynted, euen before the playne, and wyst not that there were lyers awayte on the backesyde of the cytye.

And Josua and all Israell fayned them selues to be put to the worse before them and fled towarde the wyldernesse. And all the people of the towne were called together, to folowe after them. And they folowed after Josua and were drawen awaye from the cytye: And there was not a man lefte in Hai and in Bethell, that went not out after Israell. And they left the cytye open, and folowed after Israell.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: stretch out the spere ỹ is in thyne hande towarde Hai, for I wyl geue it into thy hand. And Josua stretched out the spere that he had in hys hande, towarde the cytie. And the lyers awayte arose quyckly out of theyr place, and ran ossone as Josua had stretched oute hys hande, and they entred into the cytie and toke it, and hasted, & set the citie on fyre. And when ỹ men of Hai loked backe after them, they sawe ỹ smoke of the citie ascende vp to heauē. And they had no leysure to flye, eyther this waye or ỹ, & the people ỹ fled to the wyldernesse, turned backe agayne vpon the folowers.

And when Josua and all Israell sawe that the lyers awayte had taken the cytie, & that the smoke of it ascended, they turned againe & layed on the men of Hai. And the other ensued out of ỹ cytie agaynst them. And so were they in ỹ myddest of Israell: for these were on the one syde of them, and the rest on the other syde. * And they layed vpon them, so that they let none of them eskape, nor remayne. And the kyng of Hai they toke alyue, & brought hym to Josua. And when Israell had made an ende of slayinge, all the inhabiters of Hai in ỹ felde of ỹ wildernesse, wher they chased them, & when they were all fallen on the edge of ỹ swerde, vntyll they were wasted, all the Israelites returned vnto Hai, & smote it in the edge of the swerde. And all that fell that daye, bothe of men and women, were twelue thousande, euen all the men of Hai.

For Josua plucked not his hand backe agayn which he stretched out vpō ỹ spere, vntyl he had vtterlye destroyed all the enhabytours of Hai. * Onely the cattell and the spoyle of ỹ cytie, Israel toke vnto thē selues, according vnto the worde of the Lord, whych he commaunded Josua. C The Amorites are ouercome of Josua. It rayneth stones The sonne standeth styll. The .v. kynges are hanged.

And it fortuned, that when Adonizedech kynge of Jerusalẽ had heard how Josua had takẽ Hai and had distroyed it, and howe that * as he had done to Jericho & her kynge, euẽ so he had done to Hai & her kynge, and howe ỹ enhabytours of Gibeon had made peace wyth Israell, and were amonge them, they feared excedynglye, for Gibeon was a greate cytye, as any cytie of ỹ kyngdome, and was greater then Hai, and all the mẽ therof were very myghtye. Josua.vi.c and.viii.a.

Wherfore Adonizedech kynge of Jerusalẽ sent vnto Hoham kynge of Hebron, and vnto Piria kynge of Jarmuth, & vnto Jephia kynge of Lachis, and vnto Dabir kyng of Eglon, sayinge: Come vp vnto me, & helpe me, ỹ we maye smyte Gibeon: for they haue made peace wyth Josua and with ỹ chyldrẽ of Israel. Therfore the fyue kynges of the Amorites, the kynge of Jerusalẽ, the kyng of Hebron, the kynge of Jarmuth, the kyng of Lachis, and the kynge of Eglon gathered them selues togyther: they wt al their hostes and besieged Gibeon, & made warre agaynst it.

And the men of Gibeon sent vnto Josua, and B to the hooste of Gilgall, sayinge: wythdraw not thy hande from thy seruauntes, come vp to vs, to saue vs: & to helpe vs. For all the kynges of the Amorites whych dwell in the mountaynes, are gathered togyther agaynste vs.

And so Josua ascended from Gilgall, he and all the people of warre wyth hym, and all the men of myght, and the Lorde sayd vnto Josua: C feare them not, for I haue delyuered them into thyne hande. Neyther shall any of them stande agaynste the. Josua therfore came vnto them sodeynly, and went vp from Gilgal all nyghte. And the Lord troubled them before Israel, and slewe them wyth a greate slaughter at Gibeon, and chased them alonge the waye that goeth vp to Bethoron, and smote them to Esaka and Makeda. And ther were mo deed wyth hayle stones, then they were whom the chyldrẽ of Israel slewe wt the swerde

Then spake Josua before the Lorde, in the daye when the Lorde delyuered the Amorytes before the chyldren of Israell, and he sayde in the syght of Israel. * Sunne stãde thou stil vpõ Gibeon, and thou Moone, in Aialon. And there was no daye lyke that, before it, or after it, that the Lorde heard the voyce of a mã. For the Lord fought for Israell. Eccl.xlvi.a

And Josua retourned, and al Israel with him D vnto the host of Gilgal: but ỹ fyue kynges fled, and were hyd in a caue at Makeda. And it was told Josua of one, sayinge: the fyue kynges are foũde hyd in a Caue whych is at Makeda. And Josua layde vnle great stones vpon the mouth of the caue, and set men by it, for to kepe them.

And stande ye not styll, but folowe after your enemyes, and smyte all the hyndemost: And suffre them not to entre into theyr cities for ỹ Lord poure God hath delyuered them into your hand. And it fortuned when Josua and the chyldren of Israell had made an ende of slayenge them with an excedyng great slaughter tyll they were wasted, the reste that remayned of them, entred into walled cytyes.

And all the people returned to the hoste, to Josua at Makeda in peace, neyther dyd any mã moue hys tonge agaynst the chyldren of Israel. Then sayde Josua: open the mouth of the caue, and bryng out these fyue kynges vnto me oute of the caue. And they dyd so, and brought those fyue kynges vnto hym oute of the caue, euen the kynge of Jerusalem, the kynge of Hebron, the kynge of Jarmuth, the kynge of Lachys, and the kynge of Eglon.

℈ And it fortuned, that when they broughte oute those kynges vnto Josua: Josua called for all the men of Israell, and sayde vnto the chefe of the men of warre, whyche went wyth hym: come nere, and put youre fete vpon the neckes of these kynges. And they came nere and put theyr fete vpon the neckes of them. And Josua sayde vnto them. Ye shall not feare nor be fayntherted: But be stronge and plucke vp youre hertes, for thus shall the Lorde do to all youre enemyes agaynste whom ye fyghte.

And then Josua smote them, and slewe them, and hanged them on fyue trees. And they hanged styll vpon the trees vntyll the euenynge. And at the goyng downe of the sunne, it fortuned that Josua gaue commaundement, and they

He let nought remayne in it, but dyd vnto the kynge therof as he dyd vnto the kynge of Jericho.

℔ And Josua departed from Libna, and all Israell wyth hym vnto Lachys, and besieged it, ℭ assaulted it. And the Lord delyuered Lachys into the hande of Israel, whych toke it the seconde daye, and smote it with the edge of the swearde, and all the soules that were therin, doyng accordynge to all, as he had done to ỹ cytie of Libna.

Then Horam kyng of Geser came vp to helpe Lachys: And Josua smote hym and hys people, vntyll nought remayned of hym.

And frõ Lachys Josua departed, vnto Eglõ, and all Israell wyth hym, and they besieged it, and assaulted it, and toke it the same daye, and smote it wyth the edge of the swearde, and all the soules that were therin he vtterly destroyed the same daye, accordynge to all that he had done to Lachys.

And Josua departed vp from Eglon and all Israel with hym, vnto Hebrõ. And they fought agaynste it, and when they had taken it, they smote it wyth the edge of the swearde, and the kynge therof, and al the townes that perteyned to it, and all the soules that were therin, and he lefte nought remaynynge: but dyd accordynge to all as he had done to Eglon, and destroyed it vtterly, and all the soules that were therin.

And Josua returned, and all Israell wyth ℭ hym to Dabir, and fought agaynst it. And whẽ he had taken it, and the kyng therof, and all the townes that perteyned therto, they smote them wyth the edge of the swearde, and vtterly destroyed all the soules that were therin, neyther let he ought remayne. Euen as he dyd to Hebron, so he dyd to Dabir and the kynge therof, as he had done also to Libna and her kynge.

Josua therfore smote all the hyll countreyes, and the southe contreyes, and the valleyes, and the hyll sydes, ℭ al theyr kynges, and let nought remayne of them, but vtterly destroyed all that

¶ Ruben, Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses are sent agayne to their possessyons. They builde an altare for a memoryall.

Then Josua called vnto the Rubenytes, the Gaddites, & to the halfe trybe of Manasses, and sayde vnto them:
Nu.xxxii.f * ye haue kept all that Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded you, and haue obeyed my voyce in all that I commaunded you ye haue not left your brethren of a longe season vnto this daye, but haue kept the commaundement of the Lorde your God.

And now that the Lorde hath gyuen rest vnto your brethren as he promysed them, therfore returne ye and go to youre tentes, and vnto the land of your possession, which Moses ỹ seruaũt of the Lorde gaue you on the otherside Jordan.

But in any wyse take dyligent hede, and do the commaundement and lawe, whiche Moses

And so Josua blessed them and sent them awaye. And they went vnto theyr tentes.

B Unto the one halfe of the trybe of Manasses Moses gaue the possessiõ in Basan: and vnto the other halfe thereof gaue Josua amonge theyr brethren on this syde Jordan westwarde. And Josua sent them away also vnto their tentes, & blessed them, & sayde vnto them: retourne with moche ryches vnto your tentes, and with a greate multitude of catell, wt syluer & golde wt brasse, & yron, & with much raiment and * deuide the spoyle of your enemies wyth your brethren.
Deute.xx.c Nu.xxxi.d. Josu.viii.f 1.Re.xxx.f. And the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad, & halfe ỹ tribe of Manasses, returned, and departed from the chyldren of Israel out of Silo (whyche is in the lande of Canaan) to go vnto the contrey of Giliad to the land of theyr possession, whyche they had optayned, accordynge to the word of the Lorde by the hande of Moses.
¶ And when they cam vnto the place of Geliloth beside Jordan (that is in the lande of Canaan) there the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldrẽ of Gad and the halfe trybe of Manasses, buylte an altare fast by Jordane, and that a great altare to se to. Whych when the chyldren of Israel heard of, they sayde: beholde, the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad, and the halfe trybe of Manasses haue buylte an altare in the forefronte of ỹ lande of Canaan euen in Geliloth beside Jordan on the syde of ỹ chyldren of Israel. And whẽ the chyldren of Israel hearde of it, the whole cõgregacyon of the chyldren of Israell gathered them together to Silo, to make battell against them. And the chyldren of Israel sente vnto the chyldren of Ruben, and to the chyldren of Gad, and to the halfe tribe of Manasses into the land of Gilead, Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the Preaste, and wyth hym ten lordes, of euerye chefe house a lorde, thorowe out all the trybes of Israell, whych were heades of theyr fathers housholdes amonge the thousandes of Israell. And they went vnto the childzen of Ruben, and to the childzen of Gad, and to the childzen of the halfe trybe of Manasses, vnto the lande of Gilead, and they spake wyth them sayinge.

Jud.xx.b. * what transgressyon is thys that ye haue trãsgressed against ỹ God of Israel, to turne away this daye from the Lorde in that ye haue builded you an altare for to rebelle thys daye agaynste the Lorde? And seynge ye rebelle to daye agaynste the Lorde, it will come to passe, that to morowe he shall be wroth wyth all the congregacyon of Israell. Notwythstandynge yf ye thynke, that the lande of youre possessyon is vncleane, then come ouer vnto the lande of the possession of the Lord, where in the lordes tabernacle dwelleth, and take possessyon amõge vs. But transgresse not against the Lorde, nor prouoke vs, to buylde you any other aulter, saue the aulter of the Lorde oure God * Dyd not Acan the sonne of Zareth

E Then the chyldren of Ruben and the chyldren of Gad, and half the trybe of Manasses answered, and sayde vnto the heades ouer the thousandes of Israell: The God of goddes, the Lorde God of goddes, euen the Lorde he knoweth, and also shall Israel knowe. Yf it be to rebelle, or to transgresse agaynste the Lorde, thẽ thou Lorde saue vs not this daye. Therfore sayde we, that yf they shulde so saye to vs or to oure generacyons in tyme to come, ỹ we wolde saye agayne: Beholde the fassion of the aulter of the Lord, whych our fathers made nether for burnt sacrifices, but for a wytnes betwene vs and you, God forbyd, that we shulde rebell agaynste the Lorde, and turne thys daye from after him, and buylde any other aulter for burntofferynges, oblacions, or sacrifyces, saue the aulter of the Lorde oure God, that is before hys tabernacle.

G And when Phinehes the preaste, and the lordes of the congregacion & heades ouer the thousandes of Israel whyche were wyth hym, heard these wordes that the chyldren of Ruben, and ỹ chyldren of Gad and the chyldren of Manasses spake, they were well cõtent. And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the preast sayde vnto the chyldren of Ruben and to the childzen of Gad, and to the chyldren of Manasses: thys daye we perceaue, that the Lorde is amonge vs, because ye haue not done this trespasse agaynst the Lorde: Nowe ye haue rydde the chyldren of Israel out of the hande of the Lorde.

And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar ỹ Preast wyth the lordes returned from the chyldren of Ruben, and from the childzen of Gad out of the lande of Gilead vnto the lande of Canaan, to ỹ childzen of Israel, and brought them thys word agayne. And the sayinge pleased the childzen of Israel, and they blessed God, & dyd not entende to go against them in battel, and to destroye the land whych ỹ childzen of Rubẽ & Gad dwelt in. And ỹ chyldrẽ of Rubẽ & ỹ childrẽ of Gad called the aulter: Oure wytnesse, ỹ the Lorde is God.

¶ The .vi. Chapter.

A Josu.xiii.a AND the chyldrē of Israel *commytted wyckednes in the syght of the Lorde. And the Lorde deliuered them into the handes of Madian seuen yeares. And the hande of Madian preuayled agaynst Israel, and because of the Madianites, the chyldren of Israel made them dennes in the mountaynes and caues and stronge holdes. And whē Israel had sowen, the Madianites, the Amalechites & they of ỹ east coūtrey came vp together against them: and pytched theyr tentes agaynste them, and destroyed the encrease of the earth, euen tyl thou come vnto Azah: and lefte no sustinaunce for Israel, neyther shepe, ore, or asse: for they went vp, they and theyr cattel, and came wyth theyr tentes as a multitude of greshoppers: so that both they and also their camels were wyth
B out nombre. And they entred into the lande to destroye it. And so was Israel excedingly impouerysshed in the syght of the Madianites, & cryed vnto the Lorde. And whē the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde because of the Madianites, the Lorde sente vnto them a prophete, whych sayd vnto them: Thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: I fet you frō Egipte & brought you out of ỹ house of bōdage, and I ryd you out of the hande of the Egyptians, and out of the hande of all that oppressed you and cast thē out before you, and gaue you theyr lande. And I iiii.Regum xvii.g Jerem.v.a. sayd vnto you: I am ỹ Lorde your God, *feare not the goddes of the Amorites in whose lande you dwell. But you haue not obeyed my voyce And the angell of the Lorde came, and sate vnder an Oke whych was in Ephrah, that pertayned vnto Joas the father of the Eserites. And his sonne Gedeon pressed out wheate out of the eares in a presse, to hyde it from the Madianites: and the Angell of the Lorde apeared vnto hym, & sayd: the Lorde is wyth the, thou myghtye man of warre. And Gedeon answered hym: Oh my Lorde, yf the Lorde be wyth vs, why is all thys come vpon vs? yea, and where be al his myracles whych our fathers tolde vs of, & sayd: Dyd not the Lorde bryng vs out of Egypte? But nowe the Lorde hath forsaken vs, and delyuered vs into the handes of the Madianites.
C And the Lorde loked vpon hym, and sayd: Go hence in thys thy myght, and thou shalt delyuer Israel out of the handes of the Madianites: Haue not I sent the? And he answered hym: Oh Lorde, wherwyth shal I saue Israel? Beholde, my kynred is poore in Manasses, & I am lytle in my fathers house. The Lorde sayd vnto hym I wyll be wyth the: and thou shalte smyte the Madianites, as they were but one man. And he answered hym: Oh, yf I haue founde grace in thy syght, then shewe me a sygne, that it is thou that talkest wyth me. Departe not hence, vntyl I come agayne vnto the, & tyll I bryng myne offrynge, and haue set it before the.

agayne. And Gedeon went in, and made ready a kyd, and swete kakes of an Epha of floure, & put it wyth the flesche in a basket, and put the broth in a pot, and brought it out vnto hym vnder the Oke, and presented it. And the angell of God sayd vnto hym: take the flesche & the swete kakes, and laye them vpon thys rocke, & poure out the broth. And he dyd so. Then the angel of the Lorde put forth the ende of the staffe that he helde in hys hāde, and touched the flesche and the swete kakes. And *there arose vp fire out of the rocke, and consumed the flesche and the swete kakes. But the angell of the Lorde vanyshed out of his syght. And when Gedeon perceyued that it was an angell of the Lorde, he sayd: Alas, O Lorde God, *haue I therfore sene an angell of the Lorde face to face, that I shulde dye? And the Lorde sayde vnto hym: peace be vnto the, E feare not, thou shalt not dye. Thē Gedeō made an aultare there vnto the Lorde, and called it: The Lorde of peace. And vnto thys daye it is yet in Ephrath, that pertayneth vnto ỹ father of the Eserites. And it fortuned that the same nyght the Lorde sayd vnto hym: take a yonge bullocke out of thy fathers drove, and another of .vii. yeares olde, and destroye the aultare of Baall that thy father hath, and cut downe the groue that is by it, and make an aultare vnto the Lorde thy God vpon the top of thys rocke in a conuenient place. And take the seconde bullocke, and offer burnt sacrifice vpon the wood of the groue, whych thou shalt cut downe. Thē Gedeon toke ten men of hys seruaūtes, and dyd as the Lorde bad hym. But because he durst not do it by daye for feare of hys fathers housholde and of the men of the cytie, he dyd it by nyght.

And when the men of the cytie were vp erly F
in the mornynge: Beholde, the altare of Baal was brokē, and the groue cut downe that was by it, and the seconde bullocke offered vpon the aulter that was made. And they sayde one to another: who hath done thys thynge: & when they enquyred and asked, they sayd: Gedeō the sonne of Joas hath done thys thynge. Thē the men of the cytie sayde vnto Joas: bryng oute thy sonne, that he may dye, because he hath destroyed the aultare of Baal, and cut downe the groue that was by it. And Joas sayd vnto all that stode by him: wyl ye pleade Baals cause? or wyll ye be hys defenders? he that hath medled agaynst hym, let hym dye or the mornynge.

If he be a God let hym be auenged of hym that cast downe hys aulter. And from that day was Gedeon called: Jerobaal, because his father had sayde: Let Baal be auenged of hym, that hathe broken downe hys aulter.

G All the Madianites therfore and the Amalekites and they of the easte, were gathered together, and went, and pytched in the valey of Jesrael: but the spyrete of the Lorde came vpon Gedeon. * And he blewe a trompet, & called ‡ Abiezer to folow him, & sent messengers thorow out al Manasses, & called thē, which also dyd folow hym. And he sent messengers vnto Aser, Zabulō and Nephthalim, and they came to mete hym.

Nume.x.a. ‡Iu.vi.a.

And Gedeon sayde vnto God: wylt thou saue Israel in my hande, as thou hast sayd? Behold, I wyl put a fleece of wolle in ỹ threshing place. And yf the dewe come on the fleece onely, and it be drye vpon all the earth beside then shall I be sure, that thou wylte saue Israell by my hande, as thou saydest. And it came so to passe. For he rose vp early on the morow, and thrust the fleece together, and wrong the dewe therout, & fylled a bowle of water: and Gedeon sayd agayne vnto God: be not angry wyth me, that * I speake once more. For I wyl proue once agayne by the fleece. Let it be drye onely vpō the fleece, and dewe vpon all ỹ grounde. And God dyd so that same nyghte: For it was drye vpon the fleece only and there was dewe on all the grounde.

Jud.viii.g

Then * Jerobaal (otherwise called Gedeon) & all the people that were with him rose vp early, and pitched beside the wel of Harad, so that the hoste of ỹ Madianites were on ỹ Northside of ỹ Rocke that boweth towarde the valley. And the Lord sayde vnto Gedeon: the people that are wyth ỹ are to many for me to geue the Madianites into theyr handes, lest Israell make theyr vaunte agaynst me and saye: myne owne hande hath saued me. Nowe therfore make a proclamacion in the eares of ỹ people, & saye: * yf any mā dreade or be akerde, let him returne. And ỹ people arose early. And there departed and returned of the people whyche were at mounte Gilead. xxii. thousande, and there abode ten thousande.

Deut.xx.b. i.Mach.iii g.

B And the Lorde sayde vnto Gedeon: the people are yet to many, bryng them downe vnto ỹ water, and I wyll trye them vnto the there. And of whom I saye vnto the, this shall go with ỹ, the same shall go wyth the. And of whom soeuer I saye vnto the, thys shal not go wyth the, ỹ same shal not go. So he brought downe ỹ people vnto the water, and the Lorde sayd vnto Gedeon: as many as lappe the water with theyr tonges as a dogge doth, them put by thē selues, and so do them that knele downe vpon theyr knees to drincke. And the nombre of them that put their handes to theyr mouthes and lapped, were. iii. hundred men. But all the remnaūt of the people kneled downe vpon their knees to dryncke water. And the Lorde sayd vnto Gedeon: By these thre hūdred mē ỹ lapped water, wil I saue you: C & delyuer ỹ Madianites into thyne hande. And let al ỹ other people go euery mā vnto his place

They therfore of the people toke vitayles wō them, and theyr trompettes. And he sent all the reste of Israel, euery mā vnto hys tente, & comforted those thre hundred wyth hym. And ỹ host of Madian was beneth him in a valeye. And it fortuned that the same nyghte the Lorde sayde vnto hym: Aryse, get the downe vnto the hoste, for I haue delyuered it into thyne hande. But & yf thou feare to go downe, then go thou & Pharah thy ladde downe to the host, and thou shalt herken what they saye, and so shall thyne handes be stronge, to go downe vnto the hoste.

Then wente he downe and Pharah hys ladde, euen harde vnto the men of armes that were in the hoste. And the Madianites, the Amalekites and all they of the East, lay a long in the valey, lyke a multitude of grashoppers, and theyr camelles were without nombre, euen as the sande by the see syde in multitude. And when Gedeon was come: Behold, there was a man that tolde a dreame vnto hys neyghbour, and sayde: Beholde, I dreamed a dreame, & me thought that a lofe of barley breade, tombled into the hoste of Madian, and came vnto a tente, and smote it ỹ it felle, and ouerturned it, that the tente laye a longe. And his felowe answered and sayde: this is nothyng elles saue the sweard of Gedeon the sonne of Joas a man of Israel: for into his hand hath God delyuered Madian and all the hoste.

When Gedeon harde the tellyng of ỹ dreame, and the interpretacion of the same, he worshypped, and returned vnto the host of Israel: & sayd vp, for the Lorde hath deliuered into your hand the hoste of Madian. And he deuyded ỹ thre hūdred men into thre companyes, and gaue euery mā a trompet in his hand, wō an empty pytcher, & lampes therin, & sayde vnto thē: loke on me, & do likewyse, that when I come to the syde of the hoste, euen as I do, so do you: When I blowe wō a trompet and all that are wō me, blowe ye with trompettes also on euery syde of the hoste, & say: here is the sweard of the Lord and of Gedeon.

E

And so Gedeon and the thre hundred men that were wyth hym, came vnto the syde of the hoste in the begynnynge of the myddle watche, & reysed vp the watche men. And they blewe wō their trompettes, and brake the pitchers that were in their handes. And all the thre companyes blewe with trompettes & brake the pytchers, & helde ỹ lampes in theyr lefte handes, & the trompettes in theyr right to blowe withal. And they cryed: the sweard of the Lorde & of Gedeon. And they stode styll, euery man in hys place rounde about the hoste: And they within the hoste, ranne, and cryed and fled. And ỹ thre hundreth blewe with trōpettes, & the Lord set * euery mānes sweard vpon his neyghbour, thorowe out all the hoste. And the host fled to Bethsitah, to Zererath, and to the edge of the playne of Meholah vnto Tabath. And the men of Israel beyng gathered together out of the trybe of Nephthalim, of Aser, & of all Manasses folowed after ỹ Madianites.

And

And Gedeon sente messengers vnto all mounte Ephraim, saying: com downe agaynst the Madianites, and take before thē the waters vnto Bethbarath and to Jordan. Then all the men of Ephraim gathered together & toke the waters vnto Bethbarath, and to Jordā. And they toke two captaynes of the Madianites, Oreb and zeb, and slewe Oreb vpon the rocke Oreb, and zeb at the presse zeb, and folowed after Madian. And brought the heades of Oreb and zeb, to Gedeon on the other syde Jordan.

AND the men of Ephraim sayde vnto hym: why haste ÿ serued vs thus, ÿ thou calledest vs not, when thou wentest to fyght wyth the Madianites: and they chode wyth hym a good. ✻(& had all most done hym violence.) And he sayd vnto them: What dede haue I done lyke vnto youres: is not a cluster of Ephraim better, then the wyne haruest of Abiezer? God hath delyuered into your handes ÿ Lordes of Madiā, Oreb & zeb. And what was I able to dolyke as you haue done? And then theyr spirites abated from of hym, when he had sayde that. And Gedeon came to Jordan to passe ouer, he and the thre hūdred men that were wyth him, very fayute, and yet folowed the chace. And he sayd vnto the mē of Socoth: geue I pray you kakes of breade vnto the people that folow me: for they be fayntie, that I maye folowe after zebath, and zalmona kinges of Madian. And the Lordes of Socoth sayde: are the handes of zebath & zalmona nowe in thyne handes, that we shulde geue breade vnto thyne armye? Gedeon sayde, therfore when ÿ Lorde hath delyuered zebath and zalmona into myne hande, I wyl teare the flesshe of you with the thornes of the wyldernes and wyth breers. And he wente vp thence to Phanuel, and spake vnto them lykewyse. And the men of Phanuel aunswered him, as dyd the men of Socoth. And he sayed also vnto the men of Phanuell when I come agayne in peace, I wil breake downe this towre. zebath & zalmona were in Carkar, and theyr hostes wyth them, vpon a. xv. thousande men, which were all ÿ were lefte of all ÿ hoostes of thē of ÿ Easte: For there was slayne a hūdred and twenty thousand mē, that drew swordes.

And Gedeō went thorow them ÿ dwelt in tabernacles on ÿ East syde of Nobah & Jebahah, & smote the host: for ÿ hoste dyd cast no perylles. And whan zebah & zalmona fledde, he folowed after them, & toke ÿ two kynges of Madiā, zebath and zalmona, & discomforted all the hoste.

And Gedeon the sonne of Joas returned frō battell, afore the sunne was downe, and caught a ladde of the men of Socoth, & enquered of him And he wrote of hym the lordes and elders of Socoth. lxxvii. men. And he came vnto the mē of Socoth, and sayde: Beholde, here I haue zebath and zalmona, with which ye dyd cast me in the tethe, sayinge: are the handes of zebath and zalmona alredy in thyne hande, that we shulde geue breade vnto thy fayntie men? And he toke the elders of the cytye, and thornes of the wyldernesse and breers, and made the men of Socoth to kele thē. And he brake downe the towre of ✻Phanuel, and slewe the men of the cytie. iii.reg.xii.f

And then sayde he vnto zebath and zalmona, E what maner of men were they whom ye slew at Thabor? and they aunswered: the lykenesse of the and them is all one, euen after the fashyon of the chyldren of a kynge. And he sayde: they were my brethren, euen my mothers chyldren. As truly as ÿ Lord lyueth yf ye had saued theyr lyues, I wolde not sley you. And he sayde vnto Jether hys eldest sonne: vp and slaye them: But the lad drue not hys swearde, for he feared, because he was yet yong. Then zebath & zalmona sayde: Ryse thou, and falle vpon vs: for as the man is, so is his strength. And Gedeō arose and slewe zebath and zalmona, and toke awaye the ornamentes, that were on their camels neckes.

Then the men of Israel sayde vnto Gedeon: Reygne ÿ ouer vs, bothe ÿ, thy sonne & thy sonnes sōne, for ÿ hast deliuered vs out of ÿ hāde of Madiā. And Gedeō sayde vnto thē: I wyll not reygne ouer you, nether shall my childe reygne F ouer you, but the Lorde shall reygne ouer you.

And agayne Gedeon sayd vnto them: I wold desyre a certayne requeste of you, cuē ÿ you wold Exo.xxxii.a geue me euery man the* earynges of his praye. For they had goldē earinges because they were Ismaelites: and they aunswered: We wyll gyue thē. And they spred a mantel, and dyd cast there in euery man the earynges of his praye: and the weyght of the golden earinges that he required was a thousande & seuen hūdred sycles of gold, besyde cheynes, pommāunders and purple rayment that was on the kynges of Madian, & besyde the cheynes, that were about theyr camels neckes. And Gedeon made an Ephod therof, & put it in hys cytie Ephrah And all Israell went Eze.xviii.b and.xx.g a* whorynge after it, in the same place, whyche thynge became a ruyne vnto Gedeon and to his house. Thus was Madian brought low before the chyldrē of Israel, so that they lyfte vp theyr heades no more. And ÿ countreye was in quietnes forty yeres in the dayes of Gedeon. G iiii.reg.x.a

And Jerobaal ÿ sonne of Joas went, & dwelt in his owne house. And Gedeō had* lxx. sonnes of hys body begotten, for he had many wyues. And his concubine that was in Sichē, bare him a sonne also, whose name he called Abimelech. And Gedeon the sonne of Joas dyed, in a good age, & was buryed in the sepulchre of Joas hys father, euen in Ephrah, that perteyned vnto the father of the Ezrites.

But it fortuned, that as sone as Gedeon was dead, the chyldren of Israell turned awaye and wente a whorynge after Baalim, and made a couenaunt wyth Ball to be theyr God, and the chyldren of Israell thoughte not on the Lorde theyr god, whych had delyuered them out of the handes of all their enemyes on euery syde. Neyther shewed they mercy on ÿ house of Jerobaal, otherwyse called Gedeon, accordynge to all the goodnes whyche he had shewed vnto Israell.

ABimelech the sonne of Jerobaal went to Sychem, vnto hys mothers brethren, and comuned with them & with all his mothers fathers kinred, saying saye I praye you, in the eares of all the enhabytoures of Sychem: whether is better for you, þ all the sonnes of Jerobaal (whych are. lxx. persones) reigne ouer you, eyther that one reygne ouer you? Remembre, that I am of your bone, and of youre flesche. And hys mothers brethren spake of hym in the audience of the men of Sichem all these wordes, & theyr hartes were moued to folowe Abimelech. For they sayde: he is our brother. And they gaue him. lxx. peces of syluer out of þ temple of Baal Berith, wher wyth Abimelech hyred vayne & lyght persons whych went with him. And he went vnto hys fathers li.par.vii.a house at Ephrah* and slewe all his brethrē, the sonnes of Jerobaal: euen. lxx. persons wyth one stone. Notwithstādyng, yet Joathā þ yongeste sonne of Jerobaal escaped, for he hyd hym selfe. And all þ mē of Sichē gathered togither, & al þ house of Mello, & came & made Abimelech king in þ playne, where þ great stone was by Sichē.

And when they tolde it to Joatham, he went and stode in the toppe of mount Garizim, & lyft vp hys voyce, and cryed, and sayde vnto them:
B Herken vnto me you men of Sechim, that God iiii.Eldre. maye herken vnto you.* The trees went forth iiii.b. to anoynte a kynge ouer them, & sayde vnto the Olyue tree: reygne thou ouer vs. But the olyue tree sayde vnto thē: shulde I leaue my fattenes, whych both goddes and men prayse in me, & go to be promoted ouer þ trees? And þ trees sayde to the fygge tree: come thou, and be kynge ouer vs. The fygge tree answered thē: shulde I forsake my swetnes, and my good frute, & go to be promoted ouer the trees? Then sayde the trees vnto the vyne: come thou and be kyng ouer vs. The vyne sayde vnto them: shulde I leaue my wyne wherby I cheare both goddes and men, & go to be promoted ouer the trees? Then sayd all the trees vnto þ fyre bushe: com thou & reygne ouer vs. And þ fyre bushe sayd vnto the trees: yf it be true that ye will anoynt me kynge ouer you, then come, and put youre truste vnder my shadowe. Yf no, the fyre come oute of the fyre bushe, and waste the Cedre trees of Libanon.

¶ Nowe therfore, yf ye do truly & vncorruptly, to make Abimelech kyng: and yf ye haue dealte well with Jerobaal and hys house, & haue done vnto hym accordynge to the deseruynge of hys handes, iudge ye. For euē he (my father) fought for you, and aduentured hys lyfe, and rydde you out of the hand of Madian. And ye are rysen vp agaynste my fathers house thys daye, and haue slayne hys chyldren, euen. lxx. persones wyth one stone, & haue made Abimelech þ sonne of his mayde seruaūt, kinge ouer the men of Sichem, because he is your brother: yf ye then haue dealt truly & purely with Jerobaal & with his house thys daye then reioyce ye with Abimelech, & let hym reioyce wyth you. But yf you haue not dealt truly, then I praye God a fyre may come out of Abimelech, and consume the men of Sichem & the house of Mello. And that there may come a fyre from amonge the men of Sichem, and oute of þ house of Mello, and consume Abimelech. And Joatham ranne away, and fledde, and went to Beer and dwelte there, for fear of Abimelech hys brother. When Abimelech had reygned thre yere, God sent a spyrite of hate betwene Abimelech, and the mē of Sichem. And the citezens of Sichem rayled vpō Abimelech, and wysshed that the wyckednes done to þ. lxx. sonnes of Jerobaal myght come on hym, & that God wolde lay the bloud of them vnto Abimelech theyr brother whych slewe them, and vpon the other men of Sichem whych ayded him in þ kyllyng of hys brethrē. And the cytezens of Sichem set mē to lay awayte for hym in the toppe of the mountaynes: whych men* (whyle they taried for hys commynge) robbed all that came a longe the waye by them. And it was tolde Abimelech.

D And Gaal the sonne of Abed came wyth hys brethren, and they gat them to Sichē. And the men of Sichem put theyr cōfidence in him. And they went out into þ feldes, & gathered in theyr grapes, and trode them, and made mery: & went into the house of theyr goddes, and dyd eate and drincke, & cursed Abimelech. And Gaal the sōne of Abed sayd: what is Abimelech? and what is Sichem? that we shulde serue hym? Is he not þ sonne of Jerobaal? & zebul is his offycer? Serue suche as come of* Hemor the father of Sichem, for what reason is it that we shulde serue hym? Wolde God thys people were vnder my hande, thā wolde I take Abimelech oute of the waye. And he spake agaynste Abimelech: make thyne hoste greater: and go oute. And when zebull the ruler of the citie harde þ wordes of Gaall þ sōne of Abed, he was wrothe, & sent messengers vnto Abimelech priuely, saying: Beholde, Gaal þ sonne of Abed and hys brethren be come to Sichem: and beholde, they set the cytie against the. Now therfore vp by nyght, thou & al the people that is wyth þ, and lye in wayte in þ felde. And ryse early in the mornyng as soone as the sunne is vp, and fall vpon the cytie. And yf he and the people that is wyth hym, come out agaynst the, do to hym what thyne handes shalbe able. And E Abimelech rose vp, and all the people that were wyth hym by nyght. And they layd awayt against Sichem in foure companies. And Gaal þ sonne of Abed went oute, and stode in the entrynge of the gate of the cytie. And Abimelech rose vp, & the folke þ were wyth him, from lyinge awayt. And when Gaal sawe the people, he sayde to zebul beholde, ther come people downe from þ top of the mountaynes. And zebul sayde vnto hym: the shadow of þ hylles seme men vnto þ* (& by perroure art þ disceaued.) & Gaal answered agayne, and sayd: se, ther come folke downe by the myddel of the land, & another company come a long by the playne of the charmars. Then sayd zebul vnto hym: where is now thy mouth that sayde: what felowe is Abimelech, that we shuld serue him? Is not this the people that þ hast despised?

¶ The.xiii.Chapter.

¶ The marryage of Samson. He kylleth a lyon. He propoundeth a ryddle. He kylleth thyrtie. His wyfe forsaketh him and taketh another.

A SAmson went downe to Thānath, and sawe a womā in Thānath of ỹ doughters of the Philistines, and he came vp, and tolde hys father and hys mother, & sayd: I haue sene a woman in Thamnath of the doughters of ỹ Philistynes. And nowe geue me her to wyfe. Then hys father and mother sayde Deut.vii.a vnto hym: * Is ther neuer a woman among the doughters of thy brethren, and amonge all my people, but that thou muste go, and take a wyfe of the vncircumcysed Phylystines? And Samson sayde vnto hys father: geue me this woman for she pleaseth me well. But his father and mother wyste not that it was the Lordes doyng, & ỹ he sought an occasyon agaynst ỹ Philistines, for at ỹ tyme ỹ Philistines raigned ouer Israel.

Then wēt Samson & his father & his mother downe to Thamnath, & cam to the vyneyardes

And he tare hym, as he wolde haue rent a kydde, and yet had nothynge in his hand, neyther tolde hys father & mother what he had done. And he wēt downe, & talked wt the womā, which semed well fauored in ỹ syght of Sāson.

And wythin a shorte space after as he wente thither agayne to take her to wyf, he turned out of the waye, to se ỹ carkasse of ỹ liō. And behold, ther was a swarme of bees and hony in the carkasse of the lion. And he toke of the honye in his handes, and wente eatyng, & came to hys father and mother, and gaue them also. And they dyd eate. But he tolde not them, that he had taken the hony out of the carkasse of the lyon.

C And so hys father came vnto the woman and Samson made ther a feast, for so vsed the yonge men to do. And whē they-(the cytesyns of that place) sawe hym, they brought .xxx. companyons to be wyth hym. And Samson sayd vnto thē: I wyll nowe put forth a ryddle vnto you: And yf you can declare it me wythin .vii. dayes of the feast, and fynde it out, I wyll geue you .xxx. shyrtes, & xxx. chaunge of garmētes: But and yf you cannot declare it me, then shal ye geue me .xxx. shertes and .xxx. chaunge of garmētes. And they answered hym: put forth thy ryddle, that we maye heare it. And he sayde vnto them: Out of the eater came meate: & out of the stronge came swetnes. And they coulde not in .iii. dayes expounde the riddle. And when ỹ seuenth daye was come, they sayd vnto Sāsons wyfe: flater thyne husbande, -(and perswade hym) that he maye declare

And Samsons wyfe wept before hym-*(complayned) and sayd: Surely thou hatest me and louest me not: for thou hast put forthe a ryddle: vnto the chyldren of my folke and hast not tolde it me. And he sayde vnto her: Behold, I haue not tolde it my father and my mother, and shall I tell it the?

And Samsons wyfe wepte before hym .vii. dayes, whyle the feast lasted. And the .vii. daye he tolde her, because she laye so sore vpon hym. And she tolde it the chyldren of her folke. And ỹ men of the cytie sayde vnto hym ỹ seuenth daye, before the sonne wente downe. What is sweter then honye, & what is stronger then a lyō? Then sayde he vnto them: Yf ye had not plowed wyth my caulfe, ye had not foūde out my ryddle. And the spyrete of ỹ Lorde cam vpō him. And he went downe to Askalō, & slewe thyrtye men of them, and spoyled them, & gaue chaunge of garmentes vnto them whych expounded the ryddle. And he was wroth, and wente vp to hys fathers house. But Samsons wyfe was geuen to one of hys companyons, that he had taken vnto hym.

Samson sayde vnto thē: Nowam I more blameles thē the Philistines, & therfore wyll I do them displeasure.

And Samson went out, and caught thre hundred fores, and toke fyrebrandes, and fastened tayle to tayle, & put a fyrebrande in the myddes betwene two tayles. And the spyrite of the Lord came vpō him, and ỹ cordes that were vpon his armes, became as flaxe that was burnt w̄ fyre, for the bādes loosed frō of his handes. And he founde a rotten iawebone of an asse, and put forthe his hande, and caught it, and slue a thousande men therwith.

D And Samsō sayd: w̄ the iawe of an asse haue I made heapes of them: with the iawe of an asse haue I slayne a thousand men. And whē he had left speaking: he cast awaye the iawbone out of his hande, and called the place: Ramath Lehi.

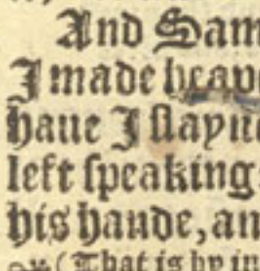
¶ The.xvj.Chapter.

¶ Samson lyfteth vp the gates of Gaza. He was deceyued by Dalila. He putteth downe the house vpon the Philistines, and dyeth with them.

A Otherwyse called Gaza.



Hen went Samson to Azah, *and sawe there an harlot, & went in vnto her. And it was tolde the Azathites: saying: Sāson is come hither: And they wēt about, & layd wayt for him there all night in ỹ gate of ỹ citie, & were styll all ỹ night, saying: in ỹ morning when it is day we shall kyl him. And Sāson toke his rest tyl midnight & arose at midnight, and toke the dores of ỹ gate of ỹ citie, & the two syde postes, & rent them of, with the barre and all, and put them vpon his shoulders, and caryed them vp to the toppe of an hyll that is before Hebron.

B And after this it fortuned, that by the ryuer of Sorek, he loued a woman called Dalila: vnto whome came the lordes of the Philistines, and sayd vnto her: persuade hym, and se where in his great strength lyeth, and by what meane we maye ouercome hym, that we maye bynde hym, to bryngе hym vnder: and euery one of vs shall gyue the a leuen hundred syluerlinges.

And Dalila sayde to Samson: Oh, tell me where thy great strength lyeth, and howe thou myghtest be bounde, and brought vnder. Sāson answered vnto her: Yf they bynde me with seuen greene wythes that were neuer dryed, I shall be weake as other men:

And then ỹ lordes of the Philistines brought her seuē wythes that were yet grene and neuer dryed, and she bounde him therwith. Notwithstandyng she had men lying in wayte with her in the chaumbre. And she sayde vnto hym: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And immediatly he brake the wythes as a strynge of towe ✱ ✱(that is twyned) breaketh, when it feleth fyre. ✱ And so his strength was not knowen.

And Dalila sayde vnto Samson: Se, thou C hast mocked me & tolde me lyes. Nowe therfore tel me wherwith ỹ mightest be boūd. He answered her: yf they bynde me w̄ newe ropes ỹ neuer were occupyed, I shalbe weake, and as another man. Dalila therfore toke newe ropes, & bound him therwith, & sayd vnto him: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And there were lyers of wayte in the chambre, & he brake them from of D his armes, as they had bene but a threde. And Dalila sayd to Sāson, hytherto thou hast begiled me & told me lyes: yet tel me how thou mightest be bounde. He sayde vnto her: Yf thou plattedest ỹ .vij. lockes of my heed w̄ an heere lace. And she fastened them with a nayle, and sayde vnto hym: the Philistines be vpon the Samsō. And he awooke out of his slepe, and plucked awaye the nayle that was in the plattynge with the heere lace. And she sayde vnto hym agayne: Howe canst thou saye that thou louest me, when thyne herte is not with me? Beholde, thou hast mocked me this thre tymes, and hast not tolde me wherein thy great strength lyeth.

And as she laye vpon hym with her wordes continually vexing of him, his soule was encōbred euen vnto the death. And so he tolde her al his herte, and sayd vnto her: *there neuer came Num. vi.a

And when Dalila sawe that he had tolde her all his herte, she sente, and called for the lordes of the Philistines, sayinge: come vp yet this ones, for he hath shewed me all his herte.

Then ỹ lordes of the Philistines came vp vnto her, & brought ỹ money in their handes. And she made him slepe vpō her knees ✱ ✱(& to lay his heed downe in her lap,) ✱ and she sēt for a man, and he dyd shaue of the seuen lockes of his heed, and began to vexe him, & his strength was gone from him And she sayd: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And he awoke out of his slepe, and sayde. I wyll go out now as at other tymes, and shake E my selfe, and he wyst not ỹ the Lord was departed from him. But the Philistines toke him, & put oute his eyes, and brought hym downe to *Azath, and bounde hym with two fetters of O: Gaza.
brasse. And he dyd grynde in the prison house: howbeit the heere of his heed began to growe agayne after that he was shauen.

Then the lordes of the Philistines gathered thē togyther for to offre a solēpne offryng vnto Dagon their God, and to reioyse: for they sayd:

our god hath delyuered Samson oure enemye into our handes. And when the people sawe him they prayse theyr god, for they sayde: oure god hath delyuered into our handes our enemy and destroyer of our country, whiche slue manye of vs. And when theyr hertes were merye, it fortuned, that they sayde: sende for Samson, that he maye make vs laugh.

G And they fet Samson out of the prisõ house, and he played before them, and they set hym betwene the pyllers. And Samson sayd vnto the ladde that led hym by the hande: set me that I maye toutche the pyllers that the house stande vpon, and that I maye leane to them. And the house was full of men and women. And there were all the lordes of the Philistines. And there were vpon the roofe a thre thousande men and women that behelde whyle Samson played.

And Samson called vpon the Lorde, & sayd: O Lorde God thynke vpon me, and strengthen me, at this tyme onely: O God that I maye be auenged of the Philistines for my .ii. eyes. And Samsõ caught the two midle pillers on which the house stode, and on which it was borne vp: the one in his right hand, & the other in his left, and sayde: me soule shall dye wt the Philistines, and bowed them wt all his myght. And ỹ house fell vpon the lordes & vpon all the people that were therein. And so the deed whiche he slue at his death were mo then they which he slue in his lyfe. And thẽ his brethrẽ & all the house of his father came downe and toke hym vp, & brought hym and buryed hym betwene Zarah and Estahol, in the buryinge place of Manoah his father And he iudged Israel twentye yeres.

¶ Of Micah, whose mother made hym an ydoll of syluer.

A THere was a man in mounte Ephraim named Micah, and he sayde vnto hys mother: the leuẽ hundred syluerlinges that were taken from the about which thou cursedest and spakest it in myne eares. Beholde, ỹ syluer is wt me, I toke it away. And his mother sayd: blessed be thou my son in ỹ Lorde. And whẽ he had restored the leuen hundred syluerlinges to his mother agayne, his mother sayd I vowed ỹ syluer to the Lord of myne hand for ỹ my son, ỹ thou shuldest make a grauen ymage and an ymage of metall. And ỹ man departed out of the cytie of Bethlehẽ Iu- da, to goo dwell where he coulde fynde a conue- D nient place. And he came to mount Ephraim to the house of Micah as he iourneyed. And Micah sayd vnto him: Whence cõmest thou? The Leuite answered hym: I am of Bethlehem Juda, and go to dwell where I may fynde a place ✻ (and whence I maye espye it to be for my profyte.) And ✻ Micah sayde agayne vnto hym: dwell with me and be vnto me a father and a preest. And I wil gyue the ten syluerlynges by yere, two garmẽtes, and thy meate and drynke.

And the Leuyte was content to dwell with the man, and was vnto him as one of his owne sonnes. And Micah consecrated the hand of the Leuite, and the yonge man became his preeste, and was in the house of Micah. Then sayd Micah: now I am sure that the Lorde wyl be good vnto me: seinge I haue a Leuite to my preest.

It is better for the to be a preest vnto the house of one man, then to be a preest vnto a trybe or kynred in Israel? And ỹ preest was glad and toke the Ephod and Theraphim, and the grauen ymage, and wente with the people. And they turned & departed, and put ỹ childzen the catel and theyr other substaūce before them.

F And when they were a good waye from the house of Micah, the men ỹ were in the houses, & in Micahs house, made out crye, & folowed after the childzen of Dan, and called vnto them. And they turned theyr faces, & sayde vnto Micah: what ayleth the, that thou makest an outcrye? And he sayd: ye haue taken away my goddes which I made, and also the preest, and goo youre wayes with them. And what haue I more? howe then saye ye vnto me: what ayleth the? And the chyldzen of Dan sayde vnto hym: let not thy voyce be hearde amonge vs, lest angrye felowes runne vpon the, and thou lese thy lyfe with the lyues of thyne housholde. And so the chyldzen of Dan went theyr wayes.

And whē Micah sawe ỹ they wer to strong for hi, he turned, & wēt back vnto his house agayne

G And they toke the thynges whiche Micah had made, and the preest which he had, and came vnto Lais, euen vnto a people that were at rest and without mistrust, and smote them with the edge of the swearde, and burnte the cytie with fyre. And there was no man to helpe, bycause Lais was farre from Sidon, and they had no meddlynge with any other man. And the cytye stode in the valleye that lyeth by Betherod.

And they buylt them there a citie, and dwelt

And the childzen of Dan set them vp the grauen ymage. And Jonathan the sonne of Gesrō the sonne of Manasses & his sōnes were the prestes in ỹ trybe of Dan * vntyll they were caried Iof xviii.g away out of ỹ land captyue. And they set them vp the kerued ymage which Micah made, all ỹ whyle that the house of God was in Silo.

¶ The.xix.Chapter.

¶ Of the Leupte, whose wyfe was bylaynously kylled in Gibea.

IT chaunced in those dayes, whē there A was no kynge in Israel, ỹ a certayne Leuite sotourning on the syde of moūt Ephraim: toke to wyfe a cōcubine out of Bethlehē Juda, & his concubyne played the whore by him, and went away from him vnto her fathers house to Bethlehē Juda, & there cōtinued foure monethes. And her husband arose and went after her, to speake frendly vnto her, and to bringe her home agayne, haupng his lad with hym: and a couple of asses.

And she brought him vnto her fathers house, and when the father of the damsell sawe hym, he reioysed of his commynge. And his father in lawe the damesels father kepte hym. And the Leuite abode with hym thre dayes, and so they dyd eate and drynke, and lodged there.

The fourth daye when they arose erly in the B morning, the man stode vp, to departe. And the damesels father sayd vnto his sonne in lawe: cō fort thyne hert with a morsell * of breed, & then Ge.xviii.a. go your way. And they sat downe, & dyd eate & drynke bothe of them togyther. And the damesels father sayde vnto the man: Be contente I praye the, and tarye al nyght, and let thyne hert be merye. And when the man stode readye to departe, his father in lawe compelled him to turne agayne, and tarye all nyght there. And he arose vp early the fyfth daye to departe, and the damesels father sayde: comforte thyne herte: and they taryed vntyll after mydday. And they dyd eate both of them togyther.

And when the man arose to departe wt his cō C cubine and his lad, his father in lawe the damsels father sayd vnto him: beholde, the daye goeth fast awaye and draweth towarde euen, tarye all nyght: at ỹ leest waye tarye this day here, ỹ thyne hert may be mery. And tomorow get you yearlye vpon your waye, that thou mayest get the to thy tent. Neuerthelater, the man wolde not tarye, but arose & departed, & came as far as Jebus (which is at Jerusalē) and his two asses laden, and his concubine and his lad with hym. And whē they were fast by Jebus the day was fore spent, and the younge man sayde vnto his master: come I praye the, & let vs turne in, into this cytie of the Jebusites, and lodge all nyght D there. His master aunswered him: we wyll not tourne in to a straunge cytie that are not of the chyldzen of Israel: we wyll go forth to Gibea. And he sayde vnto his lad: goo forewarde, and we shall come to one of these places, to lodge al nyght either in Gibea or in Rama. And they went forewarde vpon theyr waye, and ỹ sunne went downe vpō them, when they were fast by Gibea which belongeth to them of Ben Jamin And they turned thytherward to go in & lodge all nyght in Gibea. And when he came he sate him downe in a strete of the cytie, for there was no mã that toke them to lodgyng. And beholde there came an old man from his worke, out of ỹ felde at euen, which was also of mount Ephraim, and dwelt as a straũger in Gibea. But the men of the place were the chyldren of Jemini.

E And when he had lyfte vp his eyes, he sawe a wayfaryng man in the stretes of ỹ cytie. And ỹ olde man sayd: whither goest thou? And whẽce camest thou? He answered hym: we came from Bethlehẽ Juda, towarde the syde of mount Ephraim: frõ thence am I, and I went to Bethlehem Juda, & go now to the house of the Lord. And there is no mã that receyueth me to house We haue strawe & prouander for our asses, and breed & wyne for me & thy handemayde, and for the lad that is wt thy seruaũt: & we lacknothig.

The olde man sayd: peace be wt the, all ỹ thou

F lackest shalt thou fynde wt me: onelye abyde not in ỹ strete al nyght, and so he brought him into his house, and gaue fodder vnto his asses. And they washed their feet, & did eate & drynke. And as they were making their hertes mery, behold the men of the cytie which were wicked, beset ỹ house round about, and thrust at ỹ doore & spake to the man of the house, the olde man, sayinge: bring forth the man that came into thyne house that we maye knowe hym.

Gene.xix.b * And the man of the house, the olde mã wẽt out, and sayde vnto them: Oh naye my brethrẽ do not so wickedly, seing that this man is come into myne house: doo not so vnmete a thynge. Beholde, here is my doughter, a mayden, and this mans cõcubine, them wil I bring out now vnto you, and hũble them, and do wt them what semeth you good: but to this man do not so abhominable a thinge. But the mẽ wolde not herken to him. And the mã toke his cõcubyne, and brought her out vnto thẽ, which knewe her and abused her all ỹ night, euẽ vntoỹ morning. And when the daye began to spryng, they let her go.

And thẽ came the woman in the dawning of

G the daye, and fell downe at ỹ doore of the mans house where her lord was tyl it was daye. And her lorde arose vp in the morninge, & opened the dores of the house & wẽt out to go his way. And Beholde, the woman, euen his concubyne lay a longe before the doore of the house, and her handes stretched out vpon the threshold. And he

* (thynkynge her to haue bene aslepe) sayd vnto her: vp and let vs be goig. But she answered not. Thẽ

* the man * (perceyuynge that she was deed) toke her vp vpõ an Asse, and stode vp, and gate hym vnto his owne home. And when he was come to his house, he toke a knyfe and caught his cõcubyne and deuyded her with the bones into twelue peces, and sẽt her into all quarters of Israel. And all that sawe it sayde: there was no suche dede done or seene syns the chyldren of Israell came out of Egypt vnto this daye, consydre the mater, take aduisement and saye your myndes.

A Then all ỹ chyldren of Israel went oute: and the congregacyon was gathered togyther as it had bene but one man, euen from Dan to Beersleba, and vnto the lande of Gilead vnto the Lorde in Mispa, & there stode folke out of all quarters and of all the trybes of Israel, in the congregacion of the people of God foure hundred thousande footemen that drewe swerdes. And when the childzen of Ben Jamin herde that the chyldren of Israel were gone vp to Mispa, and had sayde: O ye chyldren of Israel, tell vs howe this wyckednesse happened. And the Leuyte the womans husbande ỹ was slayne, answered and sayd, I came vnto Gibea that is in ben Jamin wt my cõcubine to lodge al nyght, and the mẽ of Gibea arose agaynst me, & beset the house rounde about vpon me by night and thought to haue slayne me, & my cõcubyne haue so forced ỹ she is deed. And I toke my concubyne, and cut her in peeces, and sente her thorowout al ỹ landes of the enheritaũce of Israel. For they haue cõmitted abhominacion & folye in Israel. Behold, ye are al childrẽ of Israel. Ponder this matter, & gyue your aduyse in the case.

B And al the people arose as it had ben one mã, saying: there shal not a mã of vs go to his tent, neither turne into his house. But this shalbe it ỹ we wyll do to Gibea. We wil go vp by lotte agaynst it. And we wyll take ten men of the hũdred thorowout all the trybes of Israel, and an hundred of the.M., and a thousand out of.x.M. to fet vytayle for the people to make that they may go agaynst Gibea Ben Jamin, bycause of all the abhominacion, that they haue wrought in Israel. And so all the men of Israel gathered togyther agaynst the cytie, knyt togyther, as it had bene but one man. And the tribes of Israel sent men thorowe all the trybe of Ben Jamin, saying: * what wickednesse is this that is hap- Jos.xxii.d.
pened among you? Now therfore deliuer vs the mẽ, these childrẽ of Belial which are in Gibea, ỹ we may slay thẽ, & put away euil from Israel.

Neuerthelater, the chyldren of Ben Jamin wolde not herken vnto the voyce of their brethrẽ the childzen of Israel: but gathered thẽ selues togyther out of ỹ cities vnto Gibea, to com out and fyght agaynst the chyldren of Israel. And the childzen of Ben Jamin were nombred at that tyme out of the cities.xxvi. thousand mẽ that drewe swerdes, besyde the inhabitours of Gibea, which were nõbred seuen hundred chosẽ men. And amonge all these folke were seuen hũdred lefte handed men, which euerye one coulde slynge stones at an heer breadth, and not mysse. And the childzen of Israel besyde Ben Jamin, were nõbred foure hundred thousand men that drewe swerdes, and were all men of warre.

And the childrẽ of Israel arose, & went vp to C Bethel, & asked coũsayl of God who should begyn the battayl agaynst the childzen of Ben Jamin. And ỹ Lorde sayde: Juda shal begyn. And the childrẽ of Israel stode vp early and besieged Gibea.

Gibea. And the men of Israell went out to battell agaynste Ben Jamin, and the men of Israell put them selues in araye to fyghte agaynste them, beſyde Gibea. And the chyldren of Ben-Jamin came out of Gibea, and deſtroyed of the Israelites that daye. xxii. thousande men, and brought them to the earthe.

And the folke of the chyldren of Israell plucked vp theyr hertes, and went to agayn, & made battel in the same place where they dyd the fyrst daye. And the chyldren of Israell went vp and wepte before the Lorde vnto euen, and asked of the Lorde, sayinge: shall we go agayne to battayle agaynste the chyldren of Ben Jamin oure brethren? And the Lorde sayde: go vp agaynste them. And the chyldren of Israell came out agaynste the chyldren of Ben Jamin the seconde day. And ỹ chyldrē of Ben Jamin wēt agaynst them out of Gibea, the second daye, and destroyed to the earthe of the chyldren of Israel once agayne. xviii. thousande men that drewe swardes euery man of them. Then the chyldren of Israell and all the people wente vp and came vnto Bethell, and wepte and satte there before the Lorde, and fasted the same daye vnto euen, and offered burnte offrynges and peace offerynges before the Lorde. And the chyldren of Israel asked the Lorde: for there was the arke of the appoyntment of God in those dayes. And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar, ỹ sonne of Aaron wayting vpon it at that tyme, sayde: shall I get me vp to go out any more to battell agaynst ỹ chyldren of Ben Jamin my brethren, or shal I cease? The Lorde sayde: go for to morowe I wyll delyuer them into your handes. And Israel set lyars a wayte rounde about Gibea. And ỹ childrē of Israell went vp agaynste ỹ children of Ben-Jamin the thyrde tyme, and put them selues in araye agaynst Gibea, as twyse before. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin came out agaynste the people, and were drawen awaye from the cytie. And they began to smyte of the people dead (as twyse before, by two hye wayes of whyche one goth vp to Bethel & the other to Gibea thorow the felde) vpon a thyrtye mē of Israell. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin sayde. They are fallen before vs, as at the fyrste. But the chyldren of Israel sayde: let vs flye and plucke them away from the cytye, vnto the hye wayes.

And all the men of Israel rose vp out of theyr place, & put thē selues ī araye at Baal Thamar. And lykewyse ỹ lyers in wayte of Israell came forth out of theyr places, euē out of ỹ medowes ỹ were about Gibea, & came agaynst Gibea: ten thousande chosen men out of all Israell, & there was a sore battell. But the other wyst not that so great euil was so nye thē. And ỹ Lord plaged Ben Jamin before Israel, & ỹ children of Israel destroyed of ỹ Beniamites the same daye. xxv. thousand & an hundred mē, ỹ drue swardes euery one of them. And whā ỹ chyldrē of Ben Jamin saw ỹ they were put to ỹ worst ỹ men of Israel gaue roume to ỹ Beniamites, because they trusted vnto ỹ lyers in wayte which they had layd beſyde Gibea. And ỹ lyers in wayte hasted, and ranne vpon Gibea, & went & smote all ỹ cytie wt ỹ edge of ỹ swearde. And an apoyntment had ỹ men of Israel frō ỹ lyers in wayte ỹ they shulde make a great smoke ryse vp out of ỹ cytye. And when ỹ mē of Israel fled in the battell: Ben Jamin began to smyte deade of the chyldren of Israell, aboute a thyrty personnes, and sayde: the other are put to the worse before vs, as in the fyrst battell. But whā there began to arise out of the cytye a pyller of smoke, the Beniamites loked backe: and beholde, the wastynge of the hole cytie began to ascende vp to heauen.

When ỹ men of Israel also turned agayne, the men of Ben Jamin were abasshed, for they saw ỹ euell approched them. And therfore they turned theyr backes before ỹ mē of Israel vnto ỹ waye ỹ leadeth to ỹ wildernesse, but the men of warre ouertoke thē. And beſyde ỹ, they which cam out of ỹ citie, destroyed them in ỹ middle of thē. And thus they cōpassed ỹ Beniamites about, & chased thē to Menuha, & ouer rāne thē to Gibea on ỹ eastsyd: & ther wer slaine of Ben Jamin. xviii thousand, which were al mē of warre. And they turned & fled to ỹ wyldernes warde, & vnto the rocke of Rimmō. And ỹ other slue by ỹ waye of ỹ rest of thē, fyue thousande men, & sticked vnto thē, vntyl they came to Gibeō, & slue two thousande men of thē. But they suffised them not. And the people had cõpassion on Ben Jamin, because that God had made a gappe in the trybes of Israell. ¶ Ruth gathereth corne in the feldes of Booz.

A AND Naomis husband had a kynsmā of strength and myght (which was of ỹ kynred of Elimelec) named Booz. shalt gyue it me nowe: and yf thou wylte not, I wyll take it with violence. And the synne of the yonge men was very greate before the Lorde. For men abhorred the offrynge of the Lorde.

But the chylde Samuell mynistred before the Lorde, gyrded about with a lynnen Ephod. Moreouer, his mother made hym a lytle cote, and brought it to hym from yere to yere, when she came vp with her husbande, to offre the offrynge in the solempne feastes: and Eli blessed Elkana and his wife, and sayd: the Lorde gyue the seed of this woman, for the peticyō that she asked of the Lorde. And they went vnto theyr owne home. And the Lorde vysited Hanna, so that she conceyued, and bare thre sonnes, and two doughters. And the chylde Samuel grew before the Lorde.

E Eli was very olde, and hearde all that hys sonnes dyd vnto all Israel, and how they laye with the women that wayted at the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and he sayd vnto them: why do ye suche thynges? For of all these people, I heare euyll reportes of you. Oh, naye, my sonnes: for it is no good report that I heare howe that ye make the Lordes people to trespasse. If one mā synne agaynst an other, dayes men may be iudges: but if a man synne against the Lorde, who wyll be his daysman? Notwithstandynge, they hearkened not vnto the voyce of theyr father, bycause the Lorde wolde slaye them. The chylde Samuel proffyted * & grewe Luke.ii.c and was in fauour both with the Lorde, and also with men.

F And there came a man of God vnto Eli, and sayd vnto hym: thus sayeth the Lorde: dyd not I apeare vnto the house of thy father whē they were in Egypte, subiecte vnto Pharaoes house? And I chose thy father out of all the trybes of Israel to be my preast, to offre vpō myne Leuit.x.d aultare, and to burne incense, * & to weare an Deut.xii.b Ephod before me. And I gaue vnto the house of thy father all the burntoffrynges of the childzen of Israel. Wherfore tread you downe my sacrifice and myne offrynge, which I commaunded to be made in the tabernacle, and honoureste thy childzen aboue me, to make your selues fat of the fyrst frutes of all the offrynges of Israel my people? Wherfore, the Lorde God of Israel sayeth: I sayde, that thy house and the house of thy father shoulde walke before me for euer.

¶The Lorde calleth Samuel thre tymes.

A And the chylde Samuel ministred vnto the Lorde before Eli: and the worde of the Lord was precious in those dayes, nether was ther any open vision. And it chaunsed at that tyme, yͤ Eli laye in his place, and hys * eyes beganne to waxe dymme that he coulde not se. And yer the lampe of God wente i.Reg.iiii.c out, Samuel layd hym downe to slepe in yͤ temple of the Lorde, wher the arke of God was. And the Lorde called Samuel, and he sayde, here I am, & he ran vnto Eli, and sayde: here am I, for thou calledst me. And he sayde: I called the not: go agayn, and slepe. And he went and layd hym downe to slepe. And yͤ Lorde called once agayne: Samuel, and Samuel arose and went to Eli, & sayde: I am here: for thou diddest calle me. And he answered: I called yͤ not my sonne. Go agayn & take thy rest: Samuel knewe not yet yͤ Lorde, nether was the worde of the Lorde yet opened vnto hym. And the Lorde wente to and called Samuel the thyrde tyme. And he arose, and B went to Eli, and sayd: I am here for thou haste called me. And Eli perceaued that the Lorde had called the chylde. Therfore Eli sayd vnto Samuel: go, and lye downe: and yf he cal yͤ agayne, then saye speake on Lorde, for thy seruaunt heareth. So Samuel went, and layde hym downe in hys place. And the Lorde came, and stode, and called as before Samuel Samuel. Samuel answered: speake on for thy seruaūte heareth. And the Lorde sayde to Samuel: beholde, I wyll do a thynge in Israel, yͤ both the eares of as many as heareth it, shall tyngle. In that daye I wyll rayse vp agaynst Eli, all thinges which I haue spoken concernynge hys house from the begynnynge to the endynge. I haue tolde hym * that I i.Reg.ii.g. wyll iudge hys house for euer. For the wyckedC nes which he knoweth. For whē the people cursed hys sonnes for the same wyckednes, he hath not corrected them. And therfore I haue swore vnto the house of Eli, that the wyckednesse of Elies house, shall not be purged wyth sacrifyce nor offrynge for euer. Samuel laye tyl the morninge, & opened yͤ doores of yͤ house of the Lorde.

And Samuel feared to shew Ely the vision. Then Eli called Samuel, & sayd: Samuel my sonne. And he answered: here I am. He sayde: what is it that the Lorde hath sayd vnto the? I praye the hyde it not from me. * God do so, and Ruth.i.c. so to the, yf thou hyde any thinge from me, of al D that he sayde vnto the. And Samuel tolde him euery whyt, & hyd nothing frō him. Israel is fled before the Philiſtynes, and there is a greate ſlaughter chaunſed among the people, and thy two ſonnes, Hophni & Phinehes are dead, & the arke of God is taken. And it fortuned that whan he made mencyon of the arke of God, Eli fell frõ of hys ſtole backwarde vpon the threſholde of the gate, and hys necke brake, and he dyed: for he was an olde man and heuye, and iudged Israell fourtye yeares.

A AND the Philiſtines toke ỹ arke of God and caried it from the helpe ſtone vnto Aſdod, agayne the Philyſtines toke ỹ arke of God, & brought it into ỹ houſe of Dagon, and ſet it by Dagon. And when they of Aſdod were vp in ỹ nexte daye in ỹ morning, beholde. Dagon laye vpon the earth before the Arke of the Lorde. And they toke Dagon, & ſet hym in hys place agayne. And when they were vp early in the nexte mornyng, beholde, Dagon laye vpon ỹ grounde before the arke of ỹ Lord, and hys head, and hys two handes cut of vpon ỹ threſholde, that only ỹ ſhape of a fyſh was lefte on hym. And when the mẽ of Aſdod ſawe that it was ſo, they ſayd: the arke of the God of Israel ſhal not abyde here with vs, for his hande is ſore vpõ vs and vpon Dagon our God. They ſent therfore and gathered all the lordes of ỹ Philiſtynes vnto them, and ſayde: what ſhall we do wt the Arke of ỹ God of Israel? They anſwered: let the arke ¶ of ỹ God of Israel be caryed about vnto Gath. And they caryed the arke of the God of Israell aboute. sent the arke of God to Akaron. And assone as the arke of God, came to Akaron, the Akaronites cryed out sayinge: they haue brought ỹ arke of ỹ God of Israel to vs, to slee vs & our people.
D And so they sent, and gathered together all the lordes of the Philistines and sayde: send awaye the arke of ỹ God of Israel, to go agayne to his owne place, that it slee vs not and our people. For there was great lamentacion ouer the dead thorowe out all the cytye, and the hande of God was exceadynge sore there. And the men that dyed not, were smitten with the Emerodes: and the crye of the cytye went vp to heauen.

¶ The kyne bringe home the arke wyth the rewardes.

A THe arke of the Lorde was in the countreye of the Phylystynes seuen monethes and the Philistines called for the prestes & ỹ sothsayers, sayinge: what shall we do wyth the arke of the Lorde? tell vs where with we shal sende it home agayne? They sayd. Yf you sende the arke of the God of Israel home agayne, sende it not emptye. But reward it wyth trespace offryng: & thẽ ye shalbe whole, and it shalbe knowen to you, why hys hande departeth not from you.

Then sayde they: And what shalbe the trespasse offrynge, whyche we shall rewarde him wt They answered: fyue golden arses and. v. golden myce, accordyng to the nombre of the lordes of ỹ Philistines. For it is one maner of plage on you al, & on your lordes. Wherfore ye shal make ymages lyke to your arses and ymages lyke to your myce ỹ corrupt ỹ land, & ye shal geue glory vnto ỹ God of Israel: ỹ he may take his hãd frõ of you, & frõ of your goddes, & frõ of your lande.
B Wherfore do ye harden youre hertes as the Egipcians and Pharao hardened theyr hertes? whych when he toke on agaynst them, dyd they not let the people go, and they departed? Nowe therfore, make a newe carte, & take two melche kyne: on whose neche there hath come no yock. And tye the kyne to the carte, and bryng the calues home from them. And take the arke of the Lorde, & laye it vpon the carte, & put the iewels of golde (whych ye rewarde him with for a synoffryng) in a cofre by the syde therof, and send it awaye, that it maye go. And yf ye se that he go vp by the waye of hys owne coaste to Bethsames: then it is he that dyd vs thys greate euyll. Yf no, we shall knowe then, ỹ it is not hys hand that smote vs: but it was a chaunce that happened vs. And the men dyd euen so: and toke two kyne that gaue mylke, and tyed them to ỹ carte, and kepte the calues at home, and they layde the arcke of the Lorde vpon the carte and the cofer with the myce of golde, and with the ymages of theyr arses. And ỹ kyne toke the streyght waye to Bethsames, & went on the streyght waye: & as they wẽt, lowed, & turned nether to the ryght hãde ner to ỹ lefte. And ỹ lordes of ỹ Philistines went after thẽ, vntyll ỹ borders of Bethsames.

And they of Bethsames were reappynge theyr wheate herueste in the valey. And they lyfte vp theyr eyes, and spied the arck. And reioysed whẽ they saw it. And the carte came into the felde of one Iehosua a Bethsamite, and stode styl there. There was also a great stone. And they claue ỹ wod of ỹ carte & offred the kyne a burntoffringe vnto the Lord. And the Leuites toke downe the arck of the Lorde and the cofer that was wyth it, wherin ỹ iewels of golde were: and put them on the greate stone. And the men of Bethsames sacrificed burntsacrifice, and offered offerynges that same daye vnto the Lorde. And when the fyue lordes of the Phylystynes had sene it, they D returned to Akarõ the same daye. And these are the golden arses whych the Philistines gaue to amendes for a trespaceoffryng, to the Lorde: for Asdod one: for *Gaza one: for Askalon one: for Gath one: & for Akaron one: And golden myce, accordynge to the nombre of all the cytyes of ỹ Philistines, euen accordynge to the fyue lordes, both of walled townes & of townes vnwalled: euen vnto the great stone of lamentacyõ, wherõ they set downe the arcke of ỹ Lorde: which stone remayneth vnto thys daye in the felde of Iehosua the Bethsamite. And he plaged the men of Bethsames, because they had sene the arcke of ỹ Lorde. And he slue amonge ỹ people fyftye thousande and thyrty and ten men. And the other people lamented, because the Lord had slayne ỹ people with so great a slaughter. Wherfore the men of Bethsames sayde: who is able to stande before the Lord so holy a God: & to whom shall he go from vs? And they sent messengers to the enhabyters of Kariath Jarim saying: The Philistynes haue brought agayne ỹ arke of ỹ Lord: come ye downe therfore, and fet it vp to you. *Or Azo.

And Samuel spake vnto all the house of Israell sayinge: yf ye be come agayne vnto the Lorde wyth all youre hertes, then *put awaye the straunge goddes and Astharoth frõ among you: and prepare youre hertes vnto the Lorde, & serue hym *only: for he shall ryd you out of the hande of the Phylystynes. Then the chyldren of Israel dyd put awaye Baalim and Astaroth, & B serued the Lorde onely. And Samuel sayde: gather all Israell to Mizpa, and I wyll praye for you vnto the Lorde. And they gathred together to Mizpa, and drewe water: and powred it oute before the Lorde, & fasted the same daye & sayde there: we haue synned agaynste the Lorde. And Samuel iudged the chyldren of Israel in Mizpa. When the Philistines hearde ỹ the chyldren of Israel were gathered together to Mizpa, the lordes of the Philistines went vp agaynste Israel. Gene. vi. c in the morynge, it was told Samuel, ỳ Saul was come to Carmel: and behold, he hath made hym there a place, and is turned, and departed, and gone downe to Gilgal.

D And Samuel came to Saul, and *(Saul offered burntsacrifyce vnto ỳ Lord of the fyrst of ỳ spoyles which he had brought frō Amalec: & whē Samuel was come vnto Saul)

Saul sayd vnto him: Blessed be thou in ỳ Lord I haue fulfylled ỳ cōmaundemēt of ỳ Lord. Samuel sayd: what meaneth then the bleatyng of the shepe in myne eares, and the noyse of ỳ oxen whiche I heare? Saule aunswered: they haue brought them frō the Amalekites. For the people spared the best of the shepe and of the oxen to sacrifyce them vnto the Lorde thy God. And the remnaunt haue we destroyed vtterly.

Samuel sayde to Saul: let me tel the what the Lorde hath sayde to me this nyght. And he sayd vnto him: saye on. Samuel sayde: *when thou wast lytle in thyne owne syght, wast thou not made the heed of the trybes of Israel? And the Lord anoynted the kyng ouer Israel. And ỳ Lorde sent the on a iourneye, and sayde: Go, and vtterly destroye those synners the Amalekites and fyght agaynst them, vntyl thou vtterly destroye them. And wherfore hast thou not herkened vnto the voyce of the Lorde, but hast tourned to the praye, and hast doone that whiche is wycked in the syght of the Lorde.

E And Saul sayde vnto Samuel: yea, I haue herkened vnto the voyce of the Lord: and haue gone ỳ way which the Lorde sent me vnto, and haue brought Agag the kynge of Amalek, and haue vtterly destroyed the Amalekytes. But ỳ people toke of the spoyle, shepe, oxen, and ỳ chefest of the thynges whiche shoulde haue ben destroyed, to offre vnto the Lord thy God in Gilgal. And Samuel sayde: hath ỳ Lorde as great pleasure in burntsacrifyces & offrynges, as whē the voyce of ỳ Lord is obeyed? Behold, to obeye is better thē sacrifyce, & to herken is better then the fat of rammes. For rebellion is as the synne of *wytchcraft, and stubbernesse is as the wickednesse of ydolatrye. Bycause thou hast cast awaye the worde of the Lorde, therfore hath the Lorde cast awaye the also from beinge kynge.

F And Saul sayd vnto Samuel: I haue synned, for I haue gone further then the sayinge of the Lord and thy wordes, bycause I feared the people, and obeyed theyr voyce. Nowe therfore take awaye my synne, and turne agayne with me, that I maye worshyp the Lorde. And Samuel sayd vnto Saul: I wyll not returne with the: for thou hast casten awaye the worde of the Lorde, and the Lorde hath cast awaye the, that thou shalt not be kyng ouer Israel. And as Samuel turned hym selfe to go awaye, he caught the lappe of his coote, and it rent. And Samuel sayd vnto hym: the Lorde hath rent the kyngdome of Israel from the this day, & hath gyuen it to a neyghbour of thyne, ỳ is better thē thou. The strength of Israel wyll not begyle nor repent: for he is not a man that can repent.

G He sayde: I haue synned. But nowe honour me before ỳ elders of my people, & before Israel and turne agayne wt me, that he maye worshyp the Lorde thy God: And so Samuel tourned agayne, & folowed Saul. And Saul worshypped the Lorde. Then sayde Samuel: Bynge ye hyther to me Agag the kyng of the Amalekites. And Agag came vnto hym delicately. And Agag sayd: truly thy bytter death commeth on. And Samuel sayd: as thy swerd hath made wo mē childlesse, so shal thy mother be childelesse aboue other womē: And Samuel hewed Agag in peces before ỳ Lord in Gilgal. And thē *Samuel departed to Rama. And Saul went home to his house, to Gibea Saul. And Samuel cam no more to se Saul vntil ỳ day of his deth. Neuertheless Samuel mourned for Saul, & the Lord repēted, ỳ he had made Saul kyng ouer Israel.

THe Lorde sayde vnto Samuel: Howe A long wylt ỳ mourne for Saul, seinge I haue cast him awaye frō raygnynge ouer Israel? Fyl thyne horne wt oyntement, & come, ỳ I maye send the to Isai ỳ Bethlehemite, for I haue prouyded me a kyng amōg his sōnes. And Samuel sayd: how cā I go? For yf Saul heare it, he wyll kyll me. The Lord answered: Take an heyfer with the, and saye: I am come to offre to the Lorde. And call Isai to the offrynge, and I wyll shewe the, what thou shalt do: and thou shalte annoynt him whome I name vnto the. And so Samuel dyd as ỳ Lorde bad him, & came to Bethlehē, & the elders of the towne were astonyed at his cōmyng, and sayd: *Cōmest thou peaceably? He answered: Yea, I am come to offre vnto the Lorde. * Sanctifye your selues, & come with me to the offring. And he sanctifyed Isai and his sōnes, and bad them to the offryng. And when they were come he loked on Eliab, and sayd: Surely the Lordes annoynted is before hym. But ỳ Lorde sayd vnto Samuel: loke not on his fassyon, or on ỳ heygth of his stature, bycause I haue refused hym: For God seeth not as mā seeth. For man loketh on ỳ outwarde apperaunce: but God beholdeth the hert. Thē Isai called Abinadab, and made him come before Samuel. And he sayd: neyther hath the Lorde chosen this. Then Isai made Sāma come, and he sayde: neyther yet hath the Lorde chosen him. Agayne Isai made seuen of his sonnes to come before Samuel: & Samuel sayde vnto Isai: the Lorde hath chosen none of these.

¶ And Samuel sayd vnto Isai: are here all thy chyldrene? He sayde: there is yet a lytle one behynde that kepeth the shepe. And Samuel sayd vnto Isai: sende and fet him, for we wyl not syt downe, tyll he be come hyther. And he sent, and brought him in. And he was browne, & of an excellent beauty, *and welfauoured in sight. And the Lord sayd: Aryse, and annoynt him for this is he. Therfore Samuel toke the horne with the oyntment, and annoynted hym in the myddes of his brethren. And the spyrite of the Lord came vpon Dauid, from that daye forewarde. And Samuel rose vp, and went to Rama.

D But the spyrite of the Lorde departed from Saul, and an euyl spyrite sent of ỹ Lord vexed him. And Sauls seruaũtes sayd vnto him: Beholde, an euyll spyrite sent of God vexeth ỹ, let our lorde therfore cõmaund his seruaũtes (that are before the) to seke a mã, ỹ is a cõnyng player with an harpe: that when the euyl spyrit sent of God cõmeth vpon the, he maye playe with his hande, and thou shalt be eased. Saul sayd vnto his seruantes: prouyde me a man then that can play wel, and brynge hym to me. Then answered one of his seruaũtes, and sayd: Beholde, I haue sene a sonne of Isai a Bethlehemyte, that can playe vpon instrumentes, and is an actyue felowe, and a man of war and prudent in doing of feates, & well made, and ỹ Lord is with him. Wherfore Saul sent messẽgers vnto Isai, and sayd: sende me Dauid thy sonne, whiche is with the shepe. And Isai toke an asse ladẽ with bred and a flacket of wyne, and a kyd, and sent them by Dauid his son vnto Saul. And Dauid came to Saul, & stode before hym, & he loued him very well, & he was made his harnesbearer. And Saul sẽt to Isai, saying: let Dauid remayne wt me, for he hath foũd fauour in my sight. And so it fortuned, ỹ when ỹ euyll spyrite sent of God came vpõ Saul, Dauid toke an harpe & played with his hand, & so Saul was refreshed, & dyd amende, and the euyl spyrite departed frõ hym.

A THe Philistines gathered theyr hoofte to battayl, and came togyther to Socoth whiche is in Juda, and pytched betwene Socoth and Azecah, in the coost of Dammin: And Saul and the men of Israel came togyther, and pytched in the ocke valleye, and put them selues in araye to fight agaynst the Philistines. And ỹ Philistines stode on an hyll on the one side, and Israel stode on an hyll on the other syde, and there was a valleye betwene them. And there came a man betwene them both out of ỹ tentes of the Philistines, named Goliah* of Gath. vi. cubites & an hãdebredeth lõg, & had an helmet of brasse vpõ his hed & a cote of mayle about him. And ỹ weyght of his cote of mayle was. v. M. sicles of brasse. And he had bootes of brasse vpõ his legges, & a shild of brasse vpon his shoulders. And the shafte of his speare was lyke a weauers beame. And hys speare heed weyed syxe hundred sycles of yron. And one bearynge a shylde went before hym.

And he stode and cryed agaynst ỹ hoost of Israel, and sayd vnto them: Why are ye come out in araye to battayle? am not I a Philistine and you seruauntes to Saul? chose you a man from amonge you, and let hym come downe to me. And yf he be able to fyght with me, & to beate me: then wyl we be your seruaũtes But if I cã ouercome him & beate hym, then shall ye be oure seruauntes, and serue vs. And ỹ Philistine sayd I defye the hoost of Israel this daye, gyue me a man, that we maye fight togyther. Whẽ Saul and all Israel harde those wordes of the Philistine, they were discouraged, & greatly afrayed. Dauid was ỹ sonne of an Ephrathite* (of whom mencyon is made afore) of Bethlehem Juda, named Isai which had eyght sonnes. And was an olde man in the dayes of Saul, & came to age amõg mẽ. And ỹ thre eldest sonnes of Isai went, & folowed Saul to ỹ battayle. And ỹ names of his thre sõnes ỹ wẽt to battayl were: Eliab ỹ eldest and ỹ next Abinadab, & the third Sãma, & Dauid was ỹ leest. And the thre eldest went after Saul. Dauid also went, & departed from Saul to feede his fathers shepe at Bethlehem. And the Philistine came forth in the mornynge, and euenynge, and continued fourtye dayes.

E And Isai sayde vnto Dauid his sonne: take for thy brethren an Epha of this parched corne & these ten loues, & bryng it to the hoost to thy brethren. And cary these. x. fresh cheses vnto ỹ capitayne, and loke howe thy brethren fare, and fet out thẽyr pledge. And Saul and they, and al the men of Israel were in the ocke valley, fyghtyng with the Philistines. And Dauid rose vp early in the mornynge, and left the shepe with a keper, and toke & went as Isai had cõmaunded hym, and came within the compasse of the hoost And the hooste went out in a raye, and shouted in the battayle: for Israel and ỹ Philistines had put them selues in araye, the one agaynst the other. And Dauid put downe the gere from hym and put them vnder the handes of the keper of the vessels, and ran into the host, and came: and saluted his brethren. And as he talked with thẽ: Beholde, there stode a man in the myddes (Goliah the Philistine by name of Gath) out of the aray of the Philistines, and spake of the maner aboue rehersed, ỹ Dauid herde it. And al the mẽ of Israel, whẽ they sawe ỹ mã, ran awaye from hym, and were sore afrayed. And euery man of Israel sayde: Sawe ye this man come forth? euen to reuyle Israel is he come. *And to hym that beateth hym wyll the kyng gyue great ryches, and wyll gyue hym his doughter thereto yea, and make his fathers house free in Israel. Iosu. xv. c

D And Dauid spake to the men that stode by, and sayd: What shalbe done to the mã that beateth this Philistine, & taketh awaye the shame from Israel? And what is this vncircumcised Philistine, ỹ he shulde reuyle the hoost of the lyuynge God? And ỹ people answered hym (after this maner) saying: so shal it be done to the mã, that beateth hym. And Eliab his eldest brother heard when he spake vnto the men, and Eliab was angrye with Dauid, & sayde: Why camest ỹ downe hyther? and wt whom hast ỹ left those fewe shepe in the wildernesse? I know thy pryde and the

and the malyce of thyne hert, that thou art com downe to se the battayl. And Dauid sayd. And what haue I now done? is there not a worde? And he departed from him into the presence of an other, and spake of the same maner, and the people answered hym agayne as before.

And they ỹ herde the wordes which Dauid spake, rehearsed thē before Saul, which caused him to be fet. And Dauid sayd to Saul: Let no mans hert fayle him bycause of hym. Thy seruaunt wyll go, & fyght with yonder Philistine And Saul sayd to Dauid agayne: thou art not able to go agaynst yonder Philistine to fight wt̄ him. For ỹ arte but a chylde, but he is a man of war, euen frō his youth. Dauid answered vnto Saul: Thy seruaūt kept his fathers shepe, and 1.Reg.xvij.b Ebr.xxi.c there came a *lyon & lyke wyse a beere, & toke a shepe out of the flocke. And I wēt out after him & and smote him, & toke it out of his mouth. And whē he arose agaynste me, I caught him by the beerde, & smote him & slue hym. And so thy seruaūt slue the lyon & the beere (also) hath thy seruaunt slayne. And truly this vncircūcised Phiꝟ listine shalbe as one of them. ꝟ (Nowe wyll I go, & take away the rebuke of the people, for what is this vncircumcysed Philistine?) seing he hath rayled on the hoste of the lyuyng God. And Dauid spake moreouer: the Lorde ỹ delyuered me oute of ỹ hande of the lyon, & out of the hande of ỹ beere, he shall delyuer me also out of the hande of the Philistine.

And Saul sayd vnto Dauid: go, & the Lord shall be with the. And Saul put his rayment vpō Dauid, and put an helmet of brasse vpō his heed, & put a cote of mayle vpon hym, and gyrded Dauid with his owne swerde vpon his rayment. And he assayed to go. And bycause he neuer proued it, Dauid sayd vnto Saul: I cannot go with these, for I haue not vsed my selfe therto: And Dauid put them of hym, and toke hys staffe in his hande, & chose hym fyue smothe stones out of a brooke, & put them in a shepeherdes bag which he had, & in a slynge poke: & his sling was in his hand, and he went to the Philistine.

F And ỹ Philistine came and drue nere agaynst Dauid, and the man ỹ bare the shylde went before hym. And when the Philistine loked about and sawe Dauid, he disdayned him, for he was but ponge, and well coloured, & goodly to loke vpon. And the Philistine sayd vnto Dauid: am I a dogge, that thou cōmest to me with a staffe? And the Philistine cursed Dauid in the name of his goddes. And the Philistine sayd to Dauid: come to me, & I wyll gyue thy flesh vnto the fowles of the ayre, and to the beastes of the felde. Then sayde Dauid to the Philistine: thou commest to me with a swerde, a speare and a shylde: But I come to the in the name of the Lorde of hoostes, the God of the hooste of Israel, whome thou hast rayled vpon. This day shall the Lord delyuer the into my hande, and I shal smyte the and take thyne heed from the, and wyll gyue ỹ carkasses of the hoste of the Philistines this day vnto ỹ foules of the ayre, and to the beastes of ỹ erth ỹ all they which be in the worlde may know that there is a God in Israel. And all this congregation shall knowe: that the Lorde saueth not with swerde and speare. For the battayl is the Lordes, & he shall gyue you into our hādes.

And whē ỹ Philistine arose to come & drawe nye vnto Dauid, Dauid hasted & ran into ỹ battayle euē agaynst ỹ Philistine. And Dauid put his hand in his bag, & toke out a stone, & slang it & smote ỹ Philistine in his forehed, ỹ the stone sonke into his forehead * and he fell grouelynge 1.Reg.xvij.a

But Dauid ranne, & stode vpon ỹ Philistine, and toke his swerde and drue it out of his sheeth, & slue him, and cut of his heed therwith. And when the Philistines sawe, ỹ theyr champyon was deed, *they fled. And the men of Is- Iudi. vii.e
rael & Juda arose, & shouted, & folowed after ỹ Philistines, vntyll they came to the valley, and vnto ỹ gates of Akarō. And the Philistines fell downe wounded by the waye to Saaraim, euē vnto Gath & Akaron. And the childrē of Israel returned from chasynge after the Philistines, & spoyled theyr tentes. And Dauid toke the heed of the Philistine, and brought it to Jerusalem: But he put his armour in his tent. G.

Whē Saul sawe Dauid go forth agaynst ỹ 1.re.xvii.a Philistine, he sayd vnto * Abner ỹ captayne of his hoost: Abner, whose sonne is this yongmā? Abner answered: as truly as thy soule lyueth, (O king) I cānot tel. And ỹ king sayd: Enquire ỹ whose sonne the ponglyng is. And when Dauid was returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, Abner toke hym, and brought hym before Saul, with the heed of the Philistine in his hande. And Saul sayd to hym: whose sonne art thou, thou yongman? Dauid answered: I am ỹ sonne of thy seruaunt Isai the Bethlehemite.

¶The bonde betwene Dauid and Jonathas. Saul goeth about to slaye Dauid.

AND whē he had made an end of speakyng vnto Saul, ỹ soule of Jonathas was knit wt̄ the soule of Dauid, and Jonathas loued hym as his owne soule. And Saule toke hym that daye, and wolde let him goo nomore home to his fathers house. And Jonathas made a couenaūt wt̄ Dauid bicause he loued him as his owne soule. And Jonathas put of his owne cote ỹ was vpō him & gaue it Dauid, & therto his cloke, his swerde, his bowe & his gyrdle. And Dauid went oute whyther soeuer Saul sent him, & behaued hym selfe wysely. And Saul set him ouer his men of warre, & he was accepted in the syght of all the people: and in the syght of Sauls seruauntes.

And it happened as they went, when Dauid B was retourned from the slaughter of the Philistine, that women came oute of all cyties of Israel, syngynge and daunsynge agaynste kynge Saul, and with tymbrels, with ioye, and wt̄ instrumentes of musyke. And ỹ womē answered one an other in their playe, & sayd * Saul hath 1.reg.xxi.d

Wherfore Saul sayd to Dauid: thou shalt this day be my sonne in lawe in the other doughter. And Saul cōmaūded his seruaūtes to cōmen with Dauid secretly, and to saye: Beholde, the kynge hath a fauour to the, and al his seruauntes loue the, be nowe therfore the kynges sonne in lawe.

F And Sauls seruauntes spake these wordes in the eares of Dauid. And Dauid sayd, semeth it to you a lyght thyng to be a kynges sonne in lawe? I am a poore man & of small reputation. And ỹ seruaūtes brought Saul word agayne, saying: of this maner spake Dauid. But Saul thought to make Dauid fal into the hādes of ỹ Philistines. And when his seruauntes tolde Dauid these wordes it pleased Dauid well, to be the kynges sonne in lawe. Then sayd Dauid: who shal tel me if thy father answer cruelly? And Jonathas sayde vnto Dauid, come, and let vs go out into the felde. And they went out both of them into the felde.

And Jonathas sayd vnto Dauid: ỹ Lorde God C of Israel loke on it, when I haue groped my fathers mīde, one time or other wtin this iij. dayes ỹ it stād wel wt Dauid. Yf I thē sēd not vnto the & shewe it the, ỹ Lorde do so & so vnto Jonathas But if my father haue any plesure to do ỹ euyl, I wil shew ỹ also, & send ỹ away ỹ thou mayest go in peace. And ỹ Lorde be wt the as he hath ben with my father. And thou shalt perfourme vnto me the mercye of the Lorde, not onely whyle I lyue, but euen when I am deed, and pluck not thy mercye away fro my house for euer: No, not when the Lorde hath destroyed the enemyes of Dauid, euery one from the face of the earth.

And so Jonathas made a bonde with the house of Dauid, desyrynge that the Lorde shuld seke it out by the handes of Dauids enemyes, (yf it were broken.) And with other wordes dyd Jonathas sweare vnto Dauid, bycause he loued him. For he loued him as his owne soule.

Then sayd Jonathas to Dauid: tomorowe D is ỹ firste day of ỹ moone. And thou shalt be missed, bycause the place where ỹ wast wont to syt shalbe emptye. Therfore this daye thre dayes, come downe in any wyse vnto ỹ place where ỹ dyddest hyde thy selfe, whē ỹ busynesse was in hand: euen by ỹ stone Esel. And I wil shote thre arowes by ỹ one syde thereof, as though I shot thē at a marke, & wyl sende a lad, & byd hym go seke ỹ arowes. And if I say vnto ỹ lad: se, the arowes are on this syde ỹ: bring them: then come thou: for it is peace & no hurt, as sure as ỹ Lorde lyueth. But & yf I saye vnto the lad: behold, the arowes are beyonde the, then go * (in peace) for ỹ * Lorde hath sent the awaye. And as touchynge this whiche thou and I haue spoken: beholde, ỹ Lorde be betwene the & me for euer. And so Dauid hyd hym selfe in the felde. And when ỹ newe moone was come, the kynge sat hym downe to eate meate. And the kyng sat hym downe after the olde maner, in his seate by the wall. And Jo E nathas arose, and Abner sat by Saules syde, & Dauids place was emptie. Neuertheless, Saul sayde nothyng at all that daye. For he thought: some thyng hath chaunced him, ỹ he is not clene But on the morowe which was the second day of the newe moone, it happened, that Dauids place was emptye agayne. And Saul sayd vnto Jonathas his sonne: Wherfore cōmeth not ỹ sonne of Jsai to meate, neyther yesterdaye nor todaye? And Jonathas answered vnto Saul. Dauid asked licēce of me to go to Bethlehē, for he sayd: let me go, I praye the, for our kynrede doth hold an offring in ỹ citie, & my brother hath sent for me. And therfore I haue foūd fauour in thyne eyes: let me go, & se my brethren. This is the cause that he cōmeth not vnto the kinges table. Then was Saul angrye with Jonathas, F and sayd vnto him: Thou wycked rebel, do not I kowe, that thou hast chosen the sonne of Jsai vnto thyne owne rebuke, and vnto the rebuke & shame of thy mother? For as longe as the sonne of Jsai lyueth vpon the earth, thou shalt not be

And Jonathas answered vnto Saul his father, and sayde vnto hym: Wherfore should he dye? what hath he done? And Saul lyfte vp a speare to hit him, wherby Jonathas wyst wel that it was vtterly determined of his father to slaye Dauid. And so Jonathas arose from ỹ table in a great angre, and dyd eate no meate at ỹ seconde daye of the moneth, for he was sory for Dauid, bycause his father had done him shame
On the next morning Jonathas went out into the felde, at the tyme appoynted with Dauid, & a lytle lad with him. And he sayd vnto his boy: runne, and seke out myne arowes which I shot: and as ỹ boy ran he shot an arowe beyond him.
And when the lad was come to the place whyther Jonathas had shotte the arowe, Jonathas cryed after the lad, and sayd: Is not the arowe beyonde the?
G And Jonathas cryed after the lad agayne, make spede, and stand not styl. And Jonathas lad gathered vp the arowes, and came to his master. But the lad wyst nothyng of the matter. Onelye Jonathas and Dauid wyst it.
And Jonathas gaue his weapons vnto the lad that was with him, and sayd vnto him: go & carye them to the towne. And assone as ỹ lad was gone, Dauid arose out of a place that was toward the south, and fell on his face to ỹ groūd and worshipped thre tymes. And they kissed either other, and wept togyther so longe, tyl Dauid exceaded in weppyng. And Jonathas sayde to Dauid: go in peace. And ỹ thinges which we haue sworne both of vs in the name of the Lord saying: ỹ Lord be betwene the & me, & betwene thy seed & myne, let thē stād for euer. And he arose & departed. And Jonathas wēt ito ỹ town.

¶Dauid flyeth into Nob to Ahimalech the preest, and getteth of hym ths shewbreed to satisfye his hungre. Afterwarde he flyeth to kynge Achis, and there fayneth hym selfe mad.

A Then came Dauid to Nob, to Ahimelech the preest. And Ahimelech was astonyed at the sodayne comming of Dauid, & sayd vnto hym: Why art thou aloone, and noman with the? And Dauid sayd to Ahimelech ỹ preest the kynge hath cōmaunded me to do a certayne thyng, and hath sayd vnto me: let nomā know whereabout I sende the, and what I haue commaunded the to do. And ther was there the same day a certayne man of the seruauntes of Saul abyding before the Lorde, named Doeg an Edomyte, the chefest of Sauls herdemen.
And Dauid sayd vnto Ahimelech: is not here C vnder thyne hande eyther speare or swerde, for I haue neither brought my swerd nor my harnesse wt me, bycause the kynges busynesse requyred haste. And the preest sayd: the swerd of Goliath the Philistine whom thou slouest in ỹ ockevalleye, beholde, it is here wrapte in a cloth behynde the Ephod. Yf thou wylt take that, take it: for ther is none other saue that here. And Dauid sayd: there is none to that, gyue it me.
And Dauid arose and fled the same daye frō the presence of Saul, and went to Achis ỹ king of Geth. And the seruauntes of Achis sayde of hym: is not this Dauid the kynge of the lande? dyd they not synge vnto hym in daunces, sayinge: * Saule hath slayne his thousande, and Dauid his ten thousande. i.re.xviii.b & .xxix.c
And Dauid put those wordes into his herte, D and was sore afrayd of Achis the kyng of Geth And he chaunged his speache before them, and fayned him selfe mad in theyr handes, and scrabled on the dores of the gate, and let his spettle fall downe vpon his beerde.
Then sayde Achis vnto his seruauntes: Lo: ye se that this man is besyde hym selfe, wherfore then haue ye brought hym to me? Haue I nede of mad men, that ye haue brought this felowe to playe the madde man in my presence? Shall he come into my house?

When his brethren also and all his fathers house herde it, they went downe thyther to him: And there gathered vnto him alle mē ỹ were in cōbraūce & det, & troubled in theyr myndes, and he became a captayne ouer them.
And there were with him vpon a foure hundred men. And Dauid went thence to Mispa in the lande of Moab: and sayd vnto the kynge of Moab: Let my father and my mother (I praye the) come forthe vnto you, tyll I knowe what God wyll do for me. And he brought thē before the kynge of Moab. And they dwelt with hym all the whyle that Dauid kept him selfe in hold.
And the prophet Gad sayd vnto Dauid: abyde not in holde, but depart and go into the land of Juda. Then Dauid departed and came into the forest of Hareth. And Saul herde that Dauid was come abrode, and also the mē that were wt B him. And Saul sat in Gibea vnder a tre in Rama, hauyng his speare in his hande, and all his men stode about him. Then answered Doeg the Edomyte whiche also stode by the seruauntes of Saul, and sayd: Jsawe the sonne of Jsai when he came to Nob, to Ahimelech the sonne of Ahitob, which asked counsayle of the Lorde for hym, and gaue hym vytayles, and the swearde of Goliah the Philistine also. Then the kynge sent and called for Ahimelech the preest the sonne of Ahitob, and all his fathers house, that is to saye: the preestes that were in Nob.

¶ And they came all to the kynge. And Saul sayde: heare now thou sonne of Ahitob. He answered: here Jam my lorde. And Saul sayd vnto him: why haue ye cõspyred agaynst me, thou and the son of Jsai, in that thou hast geuen him vitayle, & a swearde, and hast asked coũsayle of God for him, that he shoulde aryse agaynst me, and lye awayte for me this day? Ahimelech answered the kynge, and sayd: who is so faythful amonge all thy seruauntes as Dauid, and therto the kynges sonne in lawe, & goeth at thy biddyng, and is had in honour in thyne house? haue Jthis daye fyrst begon to aske coũsayle at God for him? That be farfro me (if Jhad knowẽ it) let not the kynge put suche a thyng vnto his seruaunt, in all the house of my father. For thy seruaant knewe nothynge of all this, eyther lesse, or more. The kynge sayde: thou shalt surely dye Ahimelech, thou, and all thy fathers house. And the kynge sayde vnto the fotemen that stode aboute hym: tourne, and slaye the preestes of the Lorde, both bycause they hand is with Dauid, and bycause they knewe when Dauid fled, and shewed it not to me. But the seruauntes of the kynge wolde not moue theyr handes to fal vpõ the preestes of the Lorde.

¶ And the kynge sayde to Doeg: tourne thou, and fall vpon the preestes. And Doeg the Edomyte tourned, and ranne vpon the preestes, and slue that same daye foure score and fyue personnes that dyd weare a lynnen Ephod. And Nob the cytie of the preestes smote he with the edge of the swerde, bothe men and women, chyldren and sucklynges, oxen, asses and shepe.

And one of the sonnes of Ahimelech, the son of Ahitob (named Abiathar) escaped and fledde to Dauid. And Abiathar shewed Dauid, howe that Saul had slayne the Lordes preestes. And Dauid sayd vnto Abiathar: Jwyst it the same daye, when Doeg the Edomyte was there, that he wolde tell Saul.

And Jam cause of the death of all the soules of thy fathers house. Abyde thou with me, and feare not. For yf anye man seke my soule, he shall seke thyne also, with me thou shalte be in sauegarde.

¶ Dauid flyeth into the wyldernesse of ziph.

Then they tolde Dauid, sayinge: Beholde, the Philistines fyght agaynst Keilah, and spoyle the barnes. Therfore Dauid asked the Lordes aduice sayinge: shall Jgoo and smyte these Philistines? And the Lorde answered vnto Dauid: go and smyte the Philistines, and saue Keilah. And Dauids men that were with hym, sayde vnto hym: se, we be afrayed here in Juda: howe moche more then yf we come to Keilah agaynst the hoost of the Philistines? Then Dauid asked the Lorde agayne. A

And the Lorde answered hym, and sayde: Aryse, and go downe to Keila, for Jwyll delyuer the Philistines into thyne hande.

And so Dauid and his men wẽt to Keilah, & fought with the Philistines, and droue awaye theyr cattel, and smote thẽ with a great slaughter. And so Dauid saued the enhabitours of Keila. And it chaunced when Abiathar the sonne of Ahimelech fled to Dauid to Keila, that he brought an Ephod with hym in his hande.

And it was told Saul that Dauid was come to Keila. And Saul sayde: God hath delyuered hym into myne hande. For he is shut in nowe that he is come into a towne that hath gates & barres. And Saul called all the people togyther to warre, for to goo downe to Keila, and to besiege Dauid and his men. And Dauid haunynge knowledge that Saul ymagened myschefe agaynst him, sayd to Abiathar the preest. *Bring the Ephod. Then sayd Dauid: O Lorde God of Jsrael, thy seruaũt hath herde, that Saul is about ta come agaynst Keila to destroye the cytie for my sake: wyl the mẽ of Keila delyuer me into his hande? And wyll Saul come downe as thy seruaunt hath herde saye? O Lorde God of Jsraell, tell thy seruaunte. And the Lorde sayd: he wyll come downe. Then sayde Dauid: wyll the men of Keila delyuer me and the men, that are with me into the hande of Saul? and the Lorde sayde: thy wyll betraye you. B

Then Dauid and his men which were vpon a syxe hundred arose, and departed out of Keila and wente whyther they coulde. And it was tolde Saule, that Dauid was fled from Keila, and he let the iourney alone. Dauid abode in the wyldernesse in stronge holdes, and remayned in a mountayne in the wildernesse of ziph. And Saul sought him euery daye, but God delyuered him not into his hand. And Dauid sawe that Saul was come out to seke his lyfe. And Dauid was in the wildernesse of ziph in a thycket. And Jo- C

Then came the ziphites to Saul to Gibea, sayinge: doth not Dauid hyde hym selfe faste by vs in stronge holdes, in a thycket that is by the hyll of Hachila, on the ryghte syde of the welderneſſe? Nowe therfoꝛe kynge, thou mayest come downe accoꝛdyng to all the lust of thy soule: come downe, and oure part shalbe to delyuer him into the kynges hād. And Saul sayd: Blessed are ye in the Loꝛde: foꝛ ye haue compassyon on me. Go, I pray you, and oꝛdre the matter well, knowe and se his haunt, where his fote hath ben, and who hath sene him there, foꝛ it is tolde me ỹ he is very subtyle, and woꝛketh craftely. Se therfoꝛe, & knowe all the lurkyng places where he hydeth hym selfe, and come ye agayne to me wt the certentie, & I wyll go wt you. And yf he be in the land, I will serche hym out thoꝛowout al the thousādes of Juda.

D And they aroſe and wēt to ziph befoꝛe Saul But Dauid and his mē were in the wilderneſſe of Maon, in the playne that is on the ryght hād of Jesimon. Saul also and his men wēt to seke and they tolde Dauid. Wherfoꝛe he went vnto a rocke, and abode in the wylderneſſe of Maon. And when Saul hearde that, he folowed after Dauid in the wilderneſſe of Maon. And Saul and his men went on the one syde of the mountayne, and Dauid and his men on the other side And Dauid toke thought, how to get frō Saul foꝛ Saul and his men compaſſed Dauid and his men, round about, to take them. But there came a messenger to Saul, saying: haste the: and come, foꝛ the Philistines are come into the land. Wherfoꝛe Saul retourned from persecutynge Dauid, and went agaynst the Philistines. And therfoꝛe is it, that they called the place: the rocke of separation. And Dauid went thence, & dwelt in stronge holdes at Engaddi.

[¶ Dauid flyeth vnto Engaddi, and there hydeth hym in a caue. Saul commeth in thyther to do his easement.

A WHen Saul was come agayne from folowyng after the Philistines, it foꝛtuned that there were which told him sayinge: beholde, Dauid is in the wilderneſſe of Engaddi. Thē Saul toke thꝛe thousande chosen men out of all Israel, and went to seke Dauid and his mē in the heygth of the rockes, where wylde gootes remayne.

And he came to the flockes of shepe in ỹ way And Saul went into a caue to couer his feete. And Dauid and his men remayned in the inwarde partes of the caue.

B And the men of Dauid sayd vnto him: se, the daye is come, of which the Loꝛde sayd vnto the Beholde, I wyll delyuer thyne ennemyes in to thyne hand, and thou shalt do to hym as it shal seme good in thy syght. Then Dauid aroſe and cut of a lappe of Sauls garment pꝛiuilye. And immediatly Dauids hert smote hym bycause he had cut of a lap of Sauls garmēt. And he sayd vnto his men: the Loꝛde kepe me from doinge that thynge vnto my maſter the Loꝛdes anoynted, to laye myne hande vpō him, seing he is the annoynted of the Loꝛde. * (Foꝛ as truly as the Loꝛde lyueth, excepte the Loꝛde smyte hym, oꝛ excepte his daye come, oꝛ yf he go not downe to warre and perysh: the Loꝛde be merycyfull vnto me, that I laye not myne hande vpon the Loꝛdes annoynted.) And so Dauid kepte of his seruauntes with these woꝛdes, and suffered them not to aryse agaynste Saule.

But Saul roſe vp out of the caue and went C awaye: Dauid also aroſe, and went oute of the caue, and cryed after Saul, sayinge: Myy loꝛde kynge. And when Saul loked behynde hym: Dauid stouped to the earth, and bowed him selfe and sayd to Saul: wherfoꝛe giuest thou an eare to mens woꝛdes that saye: Dauid seketh euyll agaynst the? Behold, this daye thyne eyes hath sene, how that the Loꝛd hath delyuered the this daye into myne hande in the caue. And some bad me kyll the, but I had compaſſion on the, & sayde: I wyll not laye myne handes on my maſter, foꝛ he is the Loꝛdes annoynted. And moꝛeouer my father: beholde and se yet the lappe of thy garment in my hande, in asmoche as I kylled the not, when I cut of the lap of thy garmēt. Understande therfoꝛe and se, that there is neyther euyll noꝛ wyckednesse in me, and ỹ I haue not synned agaynste the. And yet thou hunteſt after my soule to take it. The Loꝛde be Judge, and Judge betwene the and me, and se, and pleate my cause, and auenge me of thyne hande.

When Dauid had made an ende of speakyng D these woꝛdes to Saul, Saul sayd: * is this thy i.re. xxbi.e voyce my sonne Dauid? and Saul lyfte vp his voyce, and wepte, and sayde to Dauid: thou art ryghtoser thē I, foꝛ thou hast rewarded me with good, where as I haue rewarded the with euyl. And now beholde, I wot well that thou shalt be kynge, and hat tthe kyngdome of Israel shalbe stablisshed in thyne hande.

A Kre.xxbiij.a

AND * Samuel dyed, and all the Israelites gathered togyther, & lamented hym, and buryed hym in his owne house at Rama.

And Dauid arose, and gat hym to the wylderneſſe of Pharā. And there was a man in Hoan whose possessiō was in Carmel, and the man was excedyng mighty & had thre thousāde shepe, & a thousand gootes. And he was sherynge his shepe in Carmel.

The name of the man was Nabal, and the name of his wyfe was Abigail, and she was a woman of synguler wysdome, and beautifull. But the man was churlysh, and of shreude condicions, and was of the kynred of Caleb. And Dauid herd in the wildernesse ẏ Nabal did shere hys shepe. And Dauid sent out ten ponge men
B and sayd vnto them: Get you vp to Carmel and go to Nabal, and grete him in my name. And thus shall ye say: peace be to the, peace be to thy house, and peace be vnto all that thou hast. Beholde, I haue herde saye, that thou hast sherers. Now thy shepherdes were with vs *(in the wylẏ derneſſe,) and we dyd them no spyte, neither was ẏ there ought *(of the flocke) mysſing vnto them al the whyle they were in Carmel: aske thy laddes and they wyll shewe ẏ. Wherfore let these yong men fynde fauour in thyne eyes (for we come in a good season) and *gyue I pray the, whatso-6.Ke.vij.a euer commeth to thyne hande vnto thy seruauntes, and to thy sonne Dauid.

And when Dauids younge men came, they tolde Nabal al those wordes in the name of Dauid, & then helde theyr peace. And Nabal answered Dauids seruaūtes, & sayd: what is Dauid? and what is the sonne of Isai? there is plentye of seruaunkes nowe a dayes, that breake away euery mā from his master. Shal I thē take my breed, my water & my flesche that I haue kylled
C for my sherers, & gyue it vnto mē whom I wot not whence they be? And so Dauids seruaūtes turned theyr waye, and went agayne, and came and tolde hym all those thynges. And Dauid sayd vnto his men: gyrde euery man his swerde about him. And they girded euery mā his swerd about hym: and Dauid was gyrded with hys swerde. And there folowed Dauid vpō a foure hundred men, and two hundred abode by the stuffe. But one of the laddes tolde Abigail Nabals wyfe, sayinge: Beholde, Dauid sente messengers vnto our master out of the wyldernesse to salute hym, and he rayled on them. And yet ẏ men are very good vnto vs, and dyd vs no displeasure, neyther mysſed we any thyng as lōge as we were conuersaunte with them, when we were in the feldes. They were a wall of defence vnto vs both by nyght and daye, all the whyle we were with them kepyng shepe: Nowe therfore take hede, and se what thou hast to doo, for there is an occasion of euyll gyuen agaynst our master and all his housholde, seing he is a sonne of Belial vngratious to speake to. Then Abigail made haste, and toke two hundred loues, & two bottels of wyne, and fyue shepe redy dressed, and fyue measures of parched corne, and an hundred frayles of reysynges, and two hūdred topnttes of fygges, and laded them on asses, & sayd vnto her ponge men: go ye before me. Beholde, I come after you. But she tolde her husbande Nabal nothyng therof. And as she rode on her asse, she came priuilye downe the syde of the hyll, and beholde, Dauid and his men came downe agaynst her, and she met them.

And Dauid sayde: in vayne haue I kepte all D that this felowe hath in the wildernesse, so that nought was mysſed of all that perteyned vnto hym. And he hath quyte me euyl for good. So & so do God vnto the enemyes of Dauid, if I leue of all that perteyneth to hym, by the dawnyng of the daye, any thyng that pysseth agaynst the wal. And when Abigail saw Dauid, she hasted and lyghted of her asse, and fel before Dauid on her face, & bowed her selfe to the grounde, & fell at his fete, and sayd: Let this vnhappye dede be counted myne, my lorde, & let thyne hādmayde speake in thyne audience, and heare the word of thyne handmayde. Let not my lorde *(the kynge) ẏ regarde this vnthryftie man Nabal: for as hys name is, so is he: Nabal is his name, and folye is with hym. But I thyne handemayde sawe not the ponge men of my lorde whom thou sentest. Now therfore my lorde, as sure as the Lord lyueth, & as thy soule lyueth, the Lord hath withholden the from cōming to shed bloude, & withdrawe thou thyn hande from bloudshed. Nowe I praye God, that thyne enemyes & they that intende to do my lorde euyll, maye be as Nabal. E
And now this is the blessyng which thyne hādmayde hath brought vnto my lord, & let it be gyuen vnto the pongemen, that folowe my lorde. Forgyue the trespasse of thyne handmayde, for the Lorde wyll make my lorde a sure house, by cause my lorde fighteth the battayles of ẏ Lord and there coulde none euyll be founde in the in all thy dayes. And yf any man ryse to persecute the, and to seke thy soule, the soule of my lorde shalbe bounde as in the bondell of the lyuyng wt the Lorde thy God. And the soules of thyne enemyes shal God cast out, euē as out of the mydle of a slyng. And when the Lorde shall haue done to my lorde all the good ẏ he hath promysed the, and shall haue made the ruler ouer Israel: then shall it be no decaye vnto the, nor discourage of herte vnto my lorde, that thou hast not sheadde bloude causeleſſe, nor auenged thy selfe.

But when the Lorde shall haue dealt wel wt F my lorde, then thynke on thyne handemayde.
And Dauid sayd to Abigail blessed be the Lorde God of Israel, which sent the this daye to mete me. Blessed is thy sayinge, and blessed arte thou, whiche hast kept me this daye from commynge to shed bloude, and from auengyng my selfe with myne owne hande. For in very dede, as sure as the Lord God of Israel lyueth, which hath kept me backe from hurtynge the, excepte thou haddest hasted and met me, thynkest thou, there had ben left vnto Nabal by the dawnyng of the daye, a pysser agaynste the walle: And so Dauid receyued of her hand that which she had brought hym, and sayde to her: goo vp in peace to thyne house. Beholde, I haue herd thy voyce and haue accepted thy person.

G And Abigail came to Nabal: and beholde, he held a feast in his house, lyke the feast of a kyng and Nabals hert was merry within him, for he was very dronken. Wherfore she told hym nothynge, neyther lesse nor more, vntyll the morowe daye. But in the mornyng when the wine was goone oute of Nabal, his wyfe tolde hym those wordes, and his herte dyed within hym, & he became as a stone. And vpon a ten dayes after, the Lorde smote Nabal, that he dyed. And when Dauid hearde, that Nabal was deed, he sayd: Blessed be the Lorde that hath iudged the cause of my rebuke of the hande of Naball, and hath kept his seruaunt from euyll, and hath recompensed the wickednesse of Nabal, vpon his owne heed. And Dauid sent to commune with Abigail: to thintēt to take her to his wyfe. And when the seruauntes of Dauid were come to Abigail to Carmel, they spake vnto her, saying Dauid sent vs to the, to take ỹ to his wyfe. And she arose, & bowed her selfe on her face to ỹ erth, and sayd: beholde, let thy handemayde be a seruaũt, to wash ỹ feet of the seruaũtes of my lord And Abigail hasted, and arose, and gat her vp vpon an asse, with fyue damesels of hers, that went at her feet, and she went after the messengers of Dauid, and became his wife. Dauid also toke Achinoã of Jezrael, and they were both his wiues. But Saul gaue * Michol his dough- *i.Re.iii.c

¶ Saul slepeth in his tent, and Dauid taketh away his speare and a cruse of water that stode at his heed.

A The ziphites came vnto Saul to Gibea, sayinge: Doth not Dauid hyde hym selfe in ỹ hyl of Achila which is before Jesymon? Saul arose, and wente downe to the wyldernesse of ziph, hauyng thre thousande chosen men of Israel with hym for to seke Dauid in the wyldernesse of ziph. And Saul pytched in the hyl of Achila which lyeth before Jesimon by the wayes syde: But Dauid dwelt in the wildernesse. And he sawe that Saul came after hym into the wildernesse. Dauid therfore sent out spyes, and vnderstode, that Saul was come in very dede.

And Dauid arose & came to the place where Saul had pytched, and Dauid beheld the place where Saul laye, and Abner the sonne of Ner which was his chefe captayne. Saul lay within, and the people & the hoost round about him. Thē answered Dauid, and spake to Ahimelech the hethite, and to Abisai the sonne of zaruia & brother to Joab, sayinge: who wyll go downe with me to Saul to the hoost? And Abisai sayd I wyll go downe with the.

B And so Dauid and Abisai came downe to ỹ people by nyght. And beholde, Saul laye slepynge within the hoost, and his speare stacke in the grounde at his heed. But Abner and the people lay rounde about hym. Then sayd Abisai to Dauid: God hath delyuered thyne enemye into thyne hande this daye. Nowe therfore, let me smyte hym ones with my speare to the erth, and I wyll not smyte hym the seconde tyme. And Dauid sayde to Abisai: destroye hym not. For who can laye his hande on the Lordes annoynted, and be gyltlesse? And Dauid sayde furthermore: as sure as the Lorde lyueth: ỹ Lorde shal smyte hym or his daye shall come to dye: or he shall descende into battayle, and there perysh.

vpō ỹ Lordes annoynted. But take thou nowe the speare that is at his heed, & the cruse of water, & let vs go. And so Dauid toke the speare & the cruse of water from Sauls heed, & they gat them awaye, and noman sawe it, or marked it, or awaked. For they were all a slepe, bycause ỹ Lorde had sent a deed slepe vpon them. Then Dauid went ouer into the other syde, and stode on the toppe of an hyl afarre of (a great space beinge betwene them) and Dauid cried to the people, and to Abner the sonne of Ner, sayinge: Hearest thou not Abner? Abner answered, and sayd What arte thou that cryest to the kynge? And Dauid sayd to Abner: art not thou a mā: & who is lyke the in Jsrael? Wherfore then hast thou not kept thy lord the kyng? For there came one of the folke in to destroy the kynge thy lorde. It is not goodý thou hast done. As truly as ỹ Lord lyueth, * ye are worthy to dye, bycause ye haue *i.reg.xx.e

* is this thy voyce my sonne Dauid? & Dauid *i.re.xxiiij.d
sayd: it is my voyce, my lorde, O kyng. And he sayd: wherfore doth my lord thus persecute his seruaũt? for what haue I done? or what euyl is in myne hande? Nowe therfore let my lorde the kynge heare the wordes of his seruaunt. Yf the Lorde haue styred the vp agaynste me, let hym smell the sauour of a sacrifyce. But and yf they be the chyldren of men, cursed be they before the Lorde. For they haue cast me out this daye frō abydynge in the enheritaunce of the Lord, sayinge: hence: and go serue other goddes. Now therfore let not my bloude fall to the earth before ỹ face of the Lord. For the kyng of Jsrael is come out to hunt a flye, as whē one doth hunt a partryge in the mountaynes. Then sayde Saul: I haue synned: come agayne my sonne Dauid, for I wyll do the nomore harme, bycause my soule was precious in thyne eyes this daye. Beholde, I haue played the foole, & haue erred exceedingly And Dauid answered, and sayde: Beholde the kynges speare, let one of ỹ yongmen come ouer, and fet it. The Lorde rewarde euery man accordynge to his ryghteousnesse and fayth: for the Lorde delyuered the in to my hande this daye, but I wolde not laye myne hande vpon ỹ Lordes annoynted. And beholde, lyke as thy lyfe was moche set by this daye in myne eyes: so be my lyfe set by in the eyes of the Lord, that he delyuer me lyuer me oute of all tribulation. Then Saul sayde to Dauid: Blessed art thou my sonne Dauid, for thou shalt be a doer, and preuayle.

Dauid flyeth to Achis kynge of Geth.

AND Dauid sayd in his hert: I shall perysshe one daye or other by the hande of Saul. Therfore is there nothyng better for me, then to flye and saue my selfe in the lande of the Philistines, and Saul shall ceasse, and seke me nomore in all the coostes of Israel, and so shall I escape oute of his hande. And Dauid arose, and he and the syxe hundred men that were with hym went vnto Achis the sonne of Macho, kynge of Geth. And Dauid dwelt with Achis at Geth, both he and his mē, euery man with his housholde, and Dauid with his two wyues: Ahinoam the Jezrahelite, and Abigail Nabals wyfe of Carmel.

B And it was told Saul that Dauid was fled to Geth, and he sought nomore for hym. And Dauid sayd vnto Achis: Yf I haue now founde grace in thyne eyes, let them gyue me a place in some towne in the feldes, ỹ I maye dwel there. For why shoulde thy seruaunt dwel in the heed cytie of the kyngdome with the? Then Achis gaue him zikleg that same day, for which cause zikleg pertayneth vnto the kynges of Juda vnto this day. And the tyme that Dauid dwelt in

C the countrye of the Philistines, was four moonethes and certayne dayes. And Dauid and his men went vp, and ranne vpon the Gesurites, ỹ Gerzites and the Amalekites: For those nacions were from the begynning the enhabitours of the lande, as men go to Sur, vnto the land of Egypt. And Dauid smote the land, and left neither man nor woman alyue, and droue awaye the shepe, the oxē, the asses, camels, and clothes and returned & came to Achis. And Achis sayd:

D where haue ye bene a rouynge this daye? And Dauid answered: Towarde the south of Juda, and towarde the south of the Jezrahelites, and towarde the south of the Kenites. And Dauid saued neither mā nor woman alyue, nor suffred them to come to Geth, for feare (sayeth he) lest they shulde tel on vs, saying: so dyd Dauid, and so wyl be his maner all the whyle he dwelleth in the cōtrie of ỹ Philistines. And Achis beleued Dauid, sayinge: He abhorreth his people of Israel, and therfore he shalbe my seruaūt for euer.

¶The Philistines moue warre agaynst Saul, which seketh after an enchaunter.

AND it chaunced in those dayes, that ỹ Philistines gathered theyr hoost together to warre, to fight with Israel And Achis sayde to Dauid: Be sure, thou shalt go out with me to the battayle, thou and the men that are with the. And Dauid sayd to Achis: then thou shalte knowe what thy seruaunt can do. And Achis sayde agayne to Dauid: Then I wyll make the keper of my heed for euer. *Samuel was then deed, and all Israel 1.reg.xv.a had lamented hym, and buryed hym in Rama his owne cytie. *And Saul had put the womē er.xxii.e that had spyrites of prophecye & the sothsayers out of the lande. And the Philistines gathered togither, and came, and pitched in Sunem: And Saul gathered al Israel togyther, and they pitched in Gilboa: And when Saul sawe the hoost of the Philistines, he was afrayed, and his hert was sore astonyed. And when Saul asked cōsayle of the Lorde: the Lord answered hym not neither by dreames nor by Vrim, nor yet by prophetes. Then sayd Saul vnto his seruauntes: *seke me a womā that hath a spyrite of prophecye, that I maye go to her, & aske of her. And his Leui.xix.e seruauntes sayd to hym: Behold, there is a woman that hath a spyrite of prophecy at Endor.

And Saul chaunged hym selfe, and put on B other rayment, and then went he and two men with him, and they came to the womā by night And he sayd: prophecye vnto me by the spyrite, and bringe me hym vp whom I shall name vnto the. And the womā sayd vnto hym: Behold, thou knowest what Saule hath doone, howe he hath destroyed the women that had prophecyinge spyrites, & the sorcerers out of the lande. Wherfore then settest thou an occasion agaynst my soule, that he may kil me? And Saul sware to her by the Lorde, saying: As surely as ỹ Lord lyueth, there shal no harme chaunce the for this thynge. Then sayd the womā: whom shal I set vp vnto the? He answered: Bringe me vp Samuel. Whē the womā sawe Samuel, she cryed with a loude voyce, and spake to Saul: saying: why hast thou disceyued me? for thou art Saul And the kynge sayde vnto her: be not afrayed. What seest thou? The womā sayd vnto Saul: I se goddes ascendynge vp out of the earth. He sayde vnto her agayne: what fashion is he of? She answered: there cōmeth vp an olde man wt a mantel vpon hym. And Saul perceyued that it was Samuel, and he stouped with his face to the ground and bowed hym selfe. And Samuel sayd to Saul: why hast thou disquyeted me, to make me be brought vp? Saul answered: I am sore encombred. For the Philistines make war C agaynst me, & God is departed fro me, and answereth me nomore, neyther by prophetes neyther by dreames. And therfore I haue called the that thou mayest tell me what I shall do. Then sayd Samuel: wherfore doest thou aske of me, whyle the Lorde is gone frō the: and is become thyne enemye? Truly the Lorde hath done for hym selfe, euen as he spake by my hande. *For 1.reg.xv.f the Lorde hath rent the kyngdome out of thyne hande, & gyuen it thy neyghboure Dauid. Because thou obeyedest not the voyce of the Lord, nor executedst his fearce wrath vpon the Amalekytes, therfore hath the Lorde done this vnto the this daye. And moreouer, the Lorde wyll delyuer Israel with the into the handes of the Philistines. *Tomorowe shalte thou and thy 1.re.xxvi.a sonnes be with me, and the Lorde shal gyue the hoost of Israel into the handes of the Philistines. Then Saul fell streyght waye flat on the earth as longe as he was, and was sore adread

bycause of the wordes of Samuel:

D And there was no strength in hym, for he had eaten no breed all the daye and the nyght before. And the woman came vnto Saul, & sawe that he was sore troubled, and sayde vnto hym: Se, thyne handemayde hath obeyed thy voyce, and *haue put my soule in myne hande, & haue herkened vnto thy wordes which thou saydest vnto me: Nowe therfore hearken thou also vnto the voyce of thyne handmayde, and let me set a morsell of breed before the, that thou mayeste eate and get the strength, and then goo on thy iourneye. He refused, and sayde: I wyl not eate. But hys seruauntes and the woman togyther compelled hym, and he hearkened vnto theyr voyce. And so he arose from the earth, and sate hym on a bedde. The woman had a fat calfe in the house, and she hasted, and kylled it, and toke floure and kneded it, and dyd bake swete cakes therof, and brought them before Saul and before his seruauntes. And when they had eaten, they stode vp, and went awaye the same night.

¶ Dauid goeth with kynge Achis to fyght agaynst Saul.

A The Philistines were gathered togyther with all theyr armyes vnto Aphec: And the Israelites pytched in Ain, whiche is in Jesrahel. And the lordes of the Philistines went forth with the hundredes and thousandes But Dauid and his men came behinde with Achis. Then sayde the lordes of the Philistines: what are yonder Hebrues? Achis sayd vnto the lordes of the Philistines: Is not this Dauid the seruaunte of Saul the kynge of Israel, whiche hath ben with me these dayes or yeres? I haue founde no faut in hym, syns he fled vnto me vnto this daye. And the lordes of the Philistines B were wroth with hym, and sayde vnto hym. Make this felowe returne, that he maye goo agayne to his place whiche thou hast appoynted hym, and let hym not go downe with vs to battayle, lest in the battayle he be an aduersarye to vs. For wherwith coulde he better obtayne the fauoure of his master, then with the heedes of these men? Is not this Dauid, to whome they sange in daunces: *Saul slue his thousand, and Dauid his ten thousande? Then Achis called C Dauid, and sayd vnto hym: As sure as ỹ Lorde lyueth, thou hast ben honest & good in my sight, when thou wentest oute and in with me, in the hoost: neyther haue I founde euyll with the syns thou camest to me vnto this daye: Neuertheles the lordes of the Philistines fauoure the not. Wherfore nowe returne, and go in peace, that thou displease not the lordes of the Philistines. And Dauid sayd vnto Achis: And what haue I done? what hast thou founde in thy seruaunt as longe as I haue bene with the vnto this day: that I maye not go fyght agaynst the enemyes of my lorde the kynge?

D Achis answered, and sayd to Dauid: I know that thou art good, and arte in my syght, as an Aungell of God. Notwithstandyng, the lordes of the Philistines haue sayd: Let hym not go vp with vs to battayle. Wherfore nowe, ryse vp earlye in the mornynge with thy masters seruauntes that are come to the: and whē ye be vp earlye (as soone as ye haue lyght) departe. And so Dauid and his men rose vp earlye to departe in the mornynge, and to retourne into the lande of the Philistines. And the Philistines wente vp to Jesrahel.

A But when Dauid and his mē were come to Ziklag the thyrde daye, the Amalechytes had rushed in vpon the south, and vpon Ziklag, and had smytten Ziklag, and burnte it with fyre, and had taken the women (that were therin) prisoners, both small and great: but slue not a man, saue caryed them with them; and went theyr wayes. And Dauid was in a shreude combraunce: for the people entēded to stone hym, bycause the hertes of al the people were vexed for theyr sōnes & theyr doughters.

B But Dauid toke a good courage to hym in the Lorde his God, and *sayde to Abiathar the preeste Abimeleches sonne: I praye the bringe me the Ephod. And Abiathar brought the Ephod to Dauid. And Dauid came to the playne of Perazim, and smote them there and sayde: the Lozde hath deuyded myne ennemyes asondze before me, as waters be deuyded asondze. And therfoze the name of ỹ place was called: The playne of Perazim. And there they left theyz ymages, and Dauid & his men toke them vp. ¶The.vi.Chapter.

¶The arke is bzought forth of the house of Abinadad; Uza is stryken, and dyeth. Dauid daunceth before it, and is therfoze despysed of his wyfe Michol.

A Gayne, Dauid gathered togyther all the chosen men of Israel, euen thyzty thousande, & arose and went with al ỹ folke that were with hym of the men of Juda to fet away from thence ỹ arke of God whose name is called the name of the Lozde of hooftes ỹ dwelleth vpon it, betwene the cherubins. And Dauid and all ỹ house of Israel played before ỹ Lozd in sondzy instrumentes made of Cedze wood, with harpes, of psalterpes, tymbzels, fedles, and symbals.

And when they came to Nachons thze shing B

And the Lozde was wzoth with Uza, and God smote hym in the same place foz his fault, and there he dyed before ỹ arke of God: And Dauid was displeased, bycause the Lozde had smytten Uza. And the name of the place was called perez: Therenting of Uza vntyll this daye. And Dauid was then afrayed of the Lozde, and sayde: how shall the arke of the Lozde come to me? And so Dauid wolde not bzynge the arke of the Lozde vnto hym into the cytie of Dauid. But Dauid caryed it into the house of Obeth Edom, a Gethite. And the arke of the Lozde continued in the house of * Obeth Edom the Gethyte, thze i.par.xvi.a

And Dauid went and brought the arke of God from the house of Obeth Edom, into the cytie of Dauid with gladnesse. ❧ (And there were w Dauid seuen sortes of dauncers, & calues for sacrifice) And when they that bare the arke of the Lorde had gone syxe spaces, he offred an oxe and a fat shepe. And Dauid ❧ (played on harpe strynges, and) daunced before the Lorde with all his myght, and was gyrded with a lynnen Ephod. So Dauid and al the house of Israel, brought the arke ❧ (of the couenaunte) of the Lorde with shoutynge and trompet blowynge.

C And it fortuned, that as the arke of ỹ Lorde came into the cytie of Dauid, Michol Saules doughter loked thorowe a windowe, and sawe kynge Dauid springe, and daunce before the Lorde, and she despysed hym in her herte. And when they brought in the arke of the Lord they set it in his place, euen in ỹ myddes of the tabernacle ỹ Dauid had pitched for it. And Dauid offred burntoffrynges & peaceoffrynges before ỹ Lord. And as soone as Dauid had made an end of offrynge burntoffringes & peaceoffrynges he blessed the people in the name of ỹ Lord of hoostes, and gaue amonge all the folke, eue among the hole multitude of Israel, as well to the women as men, to euery one a cake of breed, and a pece of flesche, and a flacket of drynke. D Then Dauid returned to blesse his housholde and Michol the doughter of Saul came out to mete Dauid, and sayde: O how glorious was the kynge of Israel this daye, which was vncouered today, in the eyes of the maydens of hys seruaũtes, as ỹ it had bene a lyght brayned fellowe vncouered! And Dauid sayde vnto Michol: I thought to daũce before the Lord, which chose me rather then thy father, and all his kyn, and cõmaunded me to be ruler ouer all the peopie of the Lorde, euen ouer Israel. And therfore wyl I play before ỹ Lord. And wil yet be more vyle then so, and wyll be meke in myne owne syght: and of the very same maydeseruauntes, which thou hast spoken of, shall I be had in honoure. Therfore Michol the doughter of Saul had no chylde, vnto the daye of her death.

A IT fortuned, that as the kynge sat in his house (after ỹ the Lord had gyuen him rest rounde about frõ all his enemyes) he sayd vnto Nathã ỹ prophet behold, I dwel now in an house of Cedar trees: but ỹ arke of God dwelleth within ỹ curtayne. And it fortuned the same nyghte, that the worde of the Lorde came vnto Nathan, saying go, and tell my seruaunt Dauid, thus sayth the Lord: shalt thou buyld me an house to dwel in? For I haue not dwelt in any house syns ỹ tyme that I brought ỹ childrẽ of Israel out of Egipt vnto this daye: but haue walked in a tent & tabernacle. In all the places wherein I haue walked with all the chyldren of Israel, spake I one worde with any of the trybes of Israel (syns I commaunded the iudges to fede my people Israel) saying: why buylde ye not me an house of Cedar trees? And so became ỹ Moabytes Dauids seruauntes, and payed tribute. Dauid smote also Hadarezer the sonne of Rehob kynge of zoba as he went to recouer his bordre at the ryuer Pherar. And Dauid toke a thousãd and seuen hũdred horsemẽ of his hoost, and twenty thousand footemen, & cut

And when the Syrians of Damascõ came to succoure Hadarezer kyng of zoba, Dauid slue of the Syrians two & twenty thousande men, and put soudiars in Siria Damascon. And the Syrians became seruauntes to Dauid, payinge tribute. And thus the Lorde saued Dauid, in all that he went vnto. And Dauid toke the shyldes of golde that belonged to the seruauntes of Hadarezer, and brought them to Jerusalem. And out of Beta, and Berothai (cyties of Hadarezer) did Dauid bringe exceadynge moche brasse: o* (wherof Salomon made all the brasen vessell in the temple, and the brasen lauatorye, and the pyllers, and the aultare.)

Whiche brasse kyng Dauid dyd dedicate vnto the Lord with the syluer and golde that he had consecrated of all nacions, whiche he subdued: of Siria, of the Moabites, and of the childzen of Ammon D of the Philistines, and of Hamalecke, and of the spoyle of Hadarezer sonne of Rehob kynge of zoba. And Sadok the sonne of Ahitob, and Ahimelech ỹ sonne of Abiathar were the preestes, and Saraia was the scrybe. And Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada was ouer the Crethites and ỹ Plethites: and Dauids sonnes were cheke rulers.

AND Dauid sayde: is there yet any man A left of the house of Saul? Then kynge Da- B uid sent, and fet hym out of the house of Machir the sonne of Amiel out of Lodeber. Now when Miphiboseth the sonne of Jonathas, the sonne of Saul was come vnto Dauid, he fell on hys face, and dyd reuerence. And the kynge sayde: Miphiboseth? He answered. Beholde thy seruaunt. Dauid sayde vnto hym: feare not, for I wyll surely shewe the kyndnesse, for Jonathas thy fathers sake, and wyl restore the all the feldes of Saul thy father, and thou shalt eate bred on myne owne table continuallye. And he bowed hym selfe, and sayde: What is thy seruaũt that thou shouldest vouchesafe to loke vpon suche a deed dogge as I am?

The messengers of Dauid are vylaynously entreated of the kynge of Moab.

A IT happened after this, that ỳ kynge of the chyldren of Ammon dyed, and Hanõ his sonne raygned in his stede. Then sayd Dauid: I wyl shew kyndnesse vnto Hanõ ỳ sõne of Nahas, as his father shewed kyndnesse vnto me. And Dauid sent to cõfort him by the hande of his seruauntes ouer
 (the death of) his father. And Dauids seruaũtes came into the lande of the chyldren of Ammon, and the lordes of the chyldren of Ammon sayde vnto Hanon theyr lorde: thynkest thou that Dauid doth honour thy father, that he hath sent cõfortours to the? hath not Dauid rather sent his seruauntes vnto the, to searche the cytie, and to spye it out, and to ouerthrowe it?

B Wherfore Hanon toke Dauids seruauntes, and shaued of the halfe of euery mannes beerde, and cut of theyr garmentes in the myddle, euen harde to the buttockes of them, and sente them awaye. When they tolde it vnto Dauid, he sent to mete them (for they were men excedyngly ashamed) and the kynge sayde: tarye at Iericho vntyll your beerdes be growen, & then returne. And when the chyldren of Ammon sawe, that they stanke in the syght of Dauid, they sent and hyred the Syrians of the house of Rehob, and the Syrians of zoba twenty thousande fotemẽ, and of kynge Maacha a thousande men, and of Istob twelue thousand men. And when Dauid herde of it, he sent Joab & all the hoost of strong men. And the chyldren of Ammõ came out, and waged battayle at the entrynge in of the gate, and the Syrians of zobah, of Rehob, Istob, & Maacah were by them selues in the felde.

C When Joab sawe that the fronte of the battayle was agaynst hym, before & after, he chose of all the freesh yonge men of Israel, and put thẽ in araye agaynst the Syrians. And the rest of ỳ people he delyuered into the hande of Abisai his brother, ỳ he myght put them in araye agaynst the chyldren of Ammon. And he sayd: if the Sirryans be stronger then I, thou shalte helpe me. But yf the chyldren of Ammon be to stronge for the, I wyll come and succoure the. Therfore quyte the lyke a man, and let vs stand styffe for our people, and for the cyties of our God. And the Lorde doo that whiche is good in his owne eyes. And Joab proceded forth, and the people that was with hym to fyght with the Syriãs. But they fled before hym. And whẽ the childrẽ of Ammõ sawe that ỳ Syrians were fled, then fled they also before Abisai, and entred into the cytie. And so Joab returned from the chyldren of Ammõ, and came to Ierusalem. And when ỳ Syrians sawe that they were put to the worse before Israel, they gathered them togyther. And Hadarezer sent, and brought out the Syryans that were beyonde the ryuer. And they came with theyr armye, and zobah ỳ captayne of the hoost of Hadarezer went before them.

And when it was shewed Dauid, he gathered all Israel togyther, and passed ouer Jordan and came to Helam: And the Syrians set them selues in aray agaynst Dauid, and fought with him: & the Syrians fled before Israel. And Dauid destroyed seuen hundred charettes of the Sirians, & fourty thousande horsemen, and smote Sobah the captayne of their hoost, whiche also dyed there. And when all ỳ kynges (ỳ were seruaũtes to Hadarezer) sawe ỳ they were put to ỳ worse before Israel, they made peace wt them, and serued them. And so the Syrians feared to helpe the chyldren of Ammon any more. D

A AND it came to passe that (after the yere was expyred) in the tyme whẽ kynges vse to go forth to battayle, Dauid sent Joab and his seruauntes with hym, & all Israel, which * destroyed the childrẽ of Ammon, and besieged Raba. But Dauid taryed styl at Ierusalem. And it chaũced in an euening that Dauid arose out of his bed, & walked vpõ the roofe of the kynges palace, & from the roofe he sawe a woman * washyng her selfe: and the woman was very beautyful to loke vpõ. And he sent to enquyre what woman it shoulde be, sayinge: is it not Bethsabe the doughter of Eliam, and wyfe to Vrias the Hethite? And Dauid sent messengers, & fet her. And she cam in vnto him * he laye wt her. And  (immediatly) she was purifyed from her vnclennesse, and returned vnto her house. And ỳ woman cõceyued, and sent & told Dauid, & sayd: I am wt chylde. And Dauid sent to Joab (saying:) sende me Vrias the Hethite. And Joab sẽt Vrias to Dauid. And whẽ Vrias was come vnto him, Dauid demaunded of him, howe Joab dyd, and how the people fared, & how the mẽ of warre prospered. And Dauid sayde to Vrias: goo downe to thyne house, and wash thy fete. And Vrias departed out of the kynges palace, and there folowed him a seruyce frõ ỳ kynges table. But Vrias slept at the dore of

C Which when they had tolde Dauid (sayinge: Uzias went not downe into his house) Dauid sayd vnto Uzias: Camest thou not frō thy iourney? why dyddest thou not go downe then vnto thyne house? Uzias answered Dauid. The arke & Israel and Juda dwel in pauilions: & my lozd Joab and the seruauntes of my lozd lye vpon ỹ flat earth, and shal I then go into myne house, to eate and drynk, and lye with my wyfe? * By thy lyfe, and by the lyfe of thy soule, I wyll not do this thynge. And Dauid sayde vnto Uzias: * tarye here this nyghte also, and tomozowe I wyll let the departe. And so Uzias abode in Jerusalem that daye, and the mozowe. And when Dauid had called hym, he dyd eate and drynke before him, & he made hym dronke. And at euen he went out to lye on his couch with the seruaūtes of his lozde, but wēt not downe to his house On the mozowe Dauid wrote a letter to Joab and sent it by the hande of Uzias. And he wrote thus in the letter, sayinge: put Uzias in the foze front of the sharper battayle, and come ye backe from hym, that he may be smytten, and dye. So when Joab besieged the cytie, he assygned Uzias vnto a place, where he wyste that stronge men were. And the men of the cytie came oute, and fought with Joab. And ther were certayne ouerthrowen of the people, and of the seruauntes of Dauid, and Uzias the Hethite dyed also.

D Then Joab sente, and tolde Dauid all the thynges concernyng the warre, and charged the messengers, sayinge: when thou hast made an ende of tellyng the matters of ỹ warre vnto the kynge, yf he begynne to fume, and say vnto the: wherefoze approched ye so nye vnto the cytie, when ye dyd fyght? wyst ye not that they wold hurle and shote from the wall? Who smote Abimeleeh sonne of Jereboseth? * Dyd not a woman cast a peece of a mylstone vpō hym from of the wall, and he dyed in Thebes? Why went you nye the wall? Then saye thou: thy seruaunt Uzias the Hethith is deed also.

So the messenger went, & came and shewed Dauid all ỹ Joab had sent hym foz: and ỹ messenger sayde vnto Dauid: the men preuayled agaynst vs, & came out vnto vs into the felde, & we (wyth byolence) stacke vnto them, euen vnto the entryng of ỹ gate. And the shoters shot frō ỹ walles vpō thy seruauntes, and some of ỹ kynges seruantes be deed. And thy seruaunt Uzias the Hethite is deed also. And Dauid sayde vnto the messengers: thus shalt thou saye vnto Joab let not ỹ thynge trouble the. Foz * (the chaunce of warre is dyuers, and) ỹ swerde deuoureth one as wel as an other: make thy battayle moze stronge agaynst the cytie to ouerthrow it, and se ỹ thou courage Joab. And when ỹ wife of Uzias herd that her husbande was deed, she mourned foz hym. And when the mournynge was past, Dauid sent & fet her to his house, and she becam his wyfe, and bare hym a sonne. But this thynge that Dauid dyd, displeased the Lozde.

And Dauid sayd vnto Nathan: * I haue synned agaynst the Lozde. And Nathan sayd vnto Dauid: ỹ Lozd also hath put away thy synne, ỹ shalt not dye. Howbeit, bycause in doinge this dede, thou hast gyuē ỹ ennemies of the Lozde a cause to raple, the childe ỹ is bozne vnto the shal surely dye. And Dauid sayd vnto his seruauntes: is the chylde deed? They sayd: yea. And Dauid arose from the earth, and washed and annoynted hym selfe, and chaunged his apparell, and came into the house of the Lord, and worshypped, and afterwarde came to his owne house, and bad that they shoulde set bred before hym, and he dyd eate. Then sayd his seruaũtes

G Joab fought agaynst Raba the cytie of the chyldren of Ammon, and toke the cytie of the kyngdome. And Joab sent messẽgers to Dauid saying: I haue made assaut at Raba, and haue taken the cytie with waters. Now therfore gather the rest of the people togyther, and besiege ỹ citie, that thou mayest take it, lest I take it, & call it after my name. And Dauid gathered all the people togyther, and went agaynste Raba,

And it was set on Dauids heed: & he brought out the spoyle of the cytie in exceding great aboundaunce. And he carped out ỹ people that was therein, and put them vpõ sawes and vpon yron harowes, and vpõ axes of yron, and thrust them into the tyle kel. Thus dyd he with all ỹ cities of the childzen of Ammõ. And so Dauid & all the people returned vnto Jerusalem.

A After this, chaunced, that Absolom the sonne of Dauid had a fayre syster, named Thamar, whom Ammon the son of Dauid loued: And he was so sore vexed ỹ he fell sycke for the loue of his syster Thamar: for she was a virgin, & he thought it harde for him, to haue his purpose of her. But Ammõ had a frende called Jonadab, the sonne of Simeah Dauids brother: and Jonadab was a very wyse man. And he sayd vnto hym: how commeth it, that thou beinge the kynges sonne art thus consumed euery daye? Wylt thou not tell me? Ammon answered hym: I loue Thamar my brother Absloms syster. Jonadab sayd vnto hym: laye the downe on thy bedde, and make thy selfe sycke. And when thy father is come to se the, saye vnto hym: Oh, let my syster Thamar come, and gyue me meate, & dresse it in my syght, that I may se it, and eate it of her hand.

And so Ammon laye downe, and made him B selfe sycke. And when the kynge was come to se hym, Ammon sayde vnto hym: Oh let Thamar my syster come, and make me a couple of frytters in my syghte, that I maye eate of her hande. Then Dauid sent home to Thamar, sayinge: go now to thy brother Ammons house, & dresse hym meate. So Thamar went to her brother Ammons house, and he was layed downe. And she toke floure, and made paste, and dressed frytters in his syght, and dyd bake them, & toke a platter, and poured them out before hym: but he wold not eate. And Ammon sayd: Haue out all men fro me. And they went al out from him And Ammon sayde vnto Thamar: bryng the meate into the chãbre, that I may eate of thyne hande. And Thamar toke the frytters, whiche she had made, and brought them into the chambre to Ammon her brother: And when she had
C set them before hym to eate, he toke her, & sayde vnto her: come lye with me my syster. And she answered hym: naye my brother, doo not force me, for there hath no suche thyng be done in Israel: do not thou this abhominacyon. For whither shal I be able to go wt my shame. And thou shalt be as one of ỹ foles in Israel. O speake vnto the kyng, and he shal not denye me vnto the.

Howbeit, he wolde not hearken vnto her voyce, but toke her, and *forced her, & lay with ge.xxxiiii.a Le. xviii.a her. And then Ammon hated her excedyngly: so that the hate wherwith he hated her, was greater then the loue, with which he before loued her And Ammon sayde vnto her: vp, and get the hence. She answered hym: thou hast no cause. This euyl that thou puttest me awaye, is greater then the other, that thou dyddest vnto me. Neuertheles, he wolde not heare her, but called his boye that serued hym, and sayde: put awaye this woman fro me, and bolt the doore after her. And she had a kyrtle of dyuers colours
D vpon her: for with such were the kynges doughters (that were virgins) appareld. Then his seruaunte brought her out, & locked the doore after her. And Thamar toke, & put asshes on her heed and rente her gaye kyrtle that was on her, and layed her hand on her heed, & so went: and as she went, cryed. And Absolõ her brother sayd vnto her: hath Ammon thy brother bene wt the? Now yet be styll my syster: he is thy brother. Let not this thinge greue thyne herte. And so Thamar remayned desolate in her brother Absolõs house But when kynge Dauid herde of al these thinges, he was very wroth.  (And he wold not vexe the spyrite of Ammon his sonne: for he loued hym, bycause he was his fyrstborne.) And Absolom sayde vnto his brother Ammon neyther good nor bad. Howbeit, Absolom hated Ammon, bycause he had forced his syster Thamar.

And it happened after two yere, that Absolõ E Gen.xxxi.c had *shepeshearers in ỹ playne of Hazor beside e.xxxviii.c the tribe of Ephraim, & bad all the kynges sonnes, nes, and came to the kyng & sayde: beholde, thy seruaunt hath shepeherers, let the kynge wt his seruauntes come to thy seruaunt: The king answered Absolom: naye my sonne. We wyll not go all, nor be chargeable vnto the. And Absolō laye sore vpon hym: howbeit, he wolde not go, but blessed hym. Then sayde Absolom: Yf thou wylt not come, then let my brother Ammon go with vs. And the kynge answered hym: What nedeth it, that he goo with the? But Absolom made such instaunce, that he let Ammon and al the kynges chyldren go with hym.

F Now had Absolom cōmaunded his yongmē saying: marke when Ammons herte is mery wt wyne, & when I byd you smyte Ammon, then kyl him: and feare not: haue not I bydden you? be bolde therfore, & play the men. And the yong men of Absolom dyd vnto Ammō, euen as Absalom had cōmaunded. And all the kynges sonnes arose, and euery man gat hym vp vpon his mule, & fled: And it fortuned, ỹ while they were yet in ỹ way, tydynges came to Dauid, saying Absalō hath slayne al the kynges sōnes, & there is none left alyue. Thē Dauid arose, and *tare his garmētes, & lay alonge on the earth, and all his seruaūtes stode by wt their clothes rent. And Jonadab the son of Simeach Dauids brother answered and sayde: let not my lorde suppose ỹ they haue slayne all the yonge men the kynges sonnes, saue Ammon onely is deed. For ỹ hath ben determyned in Absolōs mynde, syns he forced his sister Thamar. Now therfore let not my lorde the kynge take the thynge so greuously, to thynke that all the kynges sonnes are deed, saue Ammon onely is deed.

But Absolom fled. And the yonge man that G kept the watche lyfte vp his eyes, & loked. And beholde, there came moche people by a waye, alonge by the hynder part on an hilles syde. And Jonadab sayd vnto the king: beholde, ỹ kinges sonnes come. As thy seruaūt sayde, so it is. And as soone as he had left speappynge, beholde, the kynges sonnes came, and lyft vp theyr voyces, and wept. The kynge also and all his seruauntes wept exceedingly. But Absolō escaped & wēt to Thalmai the sonne of Amihur kynge of Gesur. And Dauid mourned for his son euery day. And so Absolom escaped and went to Gesur, & was there thre yeres. And kyng Dauid desyred to go forth vnto Absolom: For where as Ammon was deed, he was comforted ouer hym.

¶ The.xiiij. Chapter:

A Joab the sonne of Zaruia perceyued, ỹ the kynges herte was towarde Absalon, and he sent to Thekoa, and fette thence a wyse woman, and sayde vnto her: fayne thy selfe to be a mourner, and put on mournynge apparell. And anoynt not thy self with oyle. But be as a woman that had longe tyme mourned for some dead body. And come to the kynge, and speake of this maner vnto hym. And so Joab taught her what she shoulde saye.

B And when the woman of Thekoa had fallen on her face to the grounde, and done obeysaunce she sayde vnto the kynge: helpe me, O kynge.

The kynge sayde vnto her: what ayleth the? She answered: I am a wyddowe, and my husbande is deed. And thy handmayde had two sonnes, and they two foughte togyther in the felde (where was noman to go betwene them) but the one smote the other, and slue hym. And beholde, the hole kynred is rysen agaynst thyne handmayde, and they sayde: *delyuer vs hym, that smote his brother: that we maye kyl hym, for the soule of his brother whome he slue. We wyll destroye the heyre also. And so they shall quenche my sparkle whiche is left, that he shall styre vp (to my husbande) neither name nor issue vpon the earth. And the kynge sayd vnto ỹ woman: go home to thyne house, I wyl gyue a C charge for the. And the womā of Thekoa sayd vnto the kynge: My lorde, O kynge, this trespasse be on me, and on my fathers house, and ỹ kynge and his seate be gyltlesse. And the kynge sayde: Yf any man saye ought vnto the: bryng hym to me, and he shall hurt the nomore. Then sayde she: Let the kynge remembre his Lorde God, that the auenger of the bloude gather not on heapes togyther to destroye, and that they slaye not my sonne. And he answered: as sure as the Lorde lyueth, * there shall not one heere of thy sonne fall to the earth. *1. reg. xxiiij. g

The woman sayde: let thyne handmayde D speake one worde more with my Lord the king And he sayd: saye on. The woman sayd: wherfore then hast thou determyned suche a thynge agaynst the people of God? For the kynge doth speake this thynge as one which is fautye, that he shoulde not fet home agayne his banysshed. For we must nedes dye, and perysshe as water spylt on the grounde, which cannot be gathered vp agayne. Neyther doth God spare any soule. Let the kynge therfore fynde the meanes, that his banysshed be not vtterly expelled from him Now therfore am I come, to speake of this thīg vnto the kynge my lorde. For they that be of ỹ people wyll feare me. And thy handmayd sayd E Now wyl I speake vnto the kynge, peraduenture the kynge wyl perfourme the requeste of his handmayde. And the kynge shal heare his handmayde, to delyuer her out of the hande of ỹ man that wolde haue destroyed me, and also my son out of ỹ enheritaūce of God. And thyne handemayde sayde: the worde of my Lorde the kynge shall nowe be comfortable. For my lorde the kyng is as an aūgel of God in hearyng of good

Then the kynge answered, and sayde vnto the woman: hyde not from me (I praye the) the thynge that I shall aske the: And the woman sayde: let my lorde the kynge now saye on. And the kyng sayde: Is not the hande of Joab with the in all this matter? The woman answered, & ii.Re.yi.b sayde: *as sure as thy soul lyueth my lorde kyng there is els noman (on the ryght hande nor on ỹ left) but as my lorde the kyng hath spoken, thy seruaunte Joab he bad me, and he put all these wordes in the mouth of thyne handmayde. For to the intent that I shoulde alter my communicacion, hath thy seruaunt Joab done this thing And my lorde is wyse euen as an Aungel of God to vnderstande all thynges that are in the erth. And the kynge sayde vnto Joab: beholde: I am content to do this thynge. Go and fet home the chylde Absalom agayne. And Joab fell to the grounde on his face, and bowed hym selfe, and blessed the kynge. And Joab sayd: now thy seruaunt knoweth, that I haue found grace in thy syght (my lorde, O kyng) in that the kyng hath fulfylled the request of his seruaunt. And so Joab arose, and went to Gesur, and broughte Absalom to Jerusalem. And the kynge sayde: let him turne to his owne house, and not se my face And so Absalom retourned to his owne house, and sawe not the kynges face.

But in all Israel there was not so goodly a ℣ man as Absalom, for he was verye beautyfull: in somoche that from the sole of his foote to the toppe of his heed, there was no blemish in him. And whē he shaued his heed, for at euery yeres ende he shaued it, bycause the heere was heuy on hym, and must neades shaue it) the heere of hys heed weyed two hundred sycles after the kynges weyght. And this Absolō had thre sonnes borne hym, and one doughter named Thamar: whiche was a fayre woman to loke vpon. So Absalom dwelt two yere in Jerusalem, & sawe not the kynges face. Therfore Absalom sent for Joab, to haue sente hym to the kynge. But he wold not come to hym. And when he sēt agayne he wolde not come. Therfore he sayde vnto his seruauntes: beholde, Joab hath a parcel of lāde fast by my place, & hath barly therein. Go, & set it on fyre. And Absalōs seruaūtes set it on fyre.  (And Joabs seruauntes came w̄ theyr garmentes rent, and sayde: Absoloms seruauntes haue burnt the pece of land w̄ fyre.)

Then Joab arose, and came to Absalom vn ℊ to his house, and sayde vnto hym: wherefore haue thy seruauntes burnt my felde with fyre? And absalom answered Joab: beholde, I sente for the, desyrynge the to come, bycause I wolde haue sent the to the kynge, for to saye: wherfore am I come from Gesur? It had bene better for me to haue ben there styll. Nowe therfore wold I se the kynges face. And yf there be anye tresspasse in me, kyll thou me. And so Joab came to the kynge, and tolde hym: whiche when he had sent for Absolom, he came to the kynge, and fell to the grounde on his face before hym. And the kynge kyssed Absolom.

After this it fortuned, that Absalom ℟ gat hym charettes and horses, and fyfty men to runne before hym. And he arose vp early in the mornynge, and stode in the place of the entrynge in of the gate. And euery man that had any matter, and came to the kynge for iudgement, hym dyd Absalom call vnto hym, and sayd: of what citie art thou? He answered: thy seruaunte is of one of the trybes of Israel. And Absalom sayd vnto hym: se, thy matter is good and ryghteous, but there is noman deputed of the kynge to heare the. Absalom sayd moreouer: Oh that I were made iudge in the lande, that euery man which hath any ple ℣ and matter in the lawe, myght come to me, and that I myght do hym iustice! And when anye man came nye to hym, and dyd hym obeysaūce, he put forth his hand and toke hym to hym, and kyssed hym. And on this maner dyd Absalom to all Israel, that came to the kynge for iudgement: and he stale the hertes of the mē of Israel. And after fourtye yeres it fortuned, that Absalom sayd vnto the kynge: let me go nowe to Hebron, and paye my vowe which I haue vowed vnto the Lorde, for thy seruaunt vowed a vow (when I was in Gesur, in the lande of Siria) sayinge: Yf the Lorde shall brynge me agayne from Jerusalem, I wyll serue the Lorde. And the kynge sayd vnto hym: go in peace. And so he arose, and went to Hebron. ¶

But Absalom sent spyes thorowout all the trybes of Israel, sayinge: assoone as ye heare the voyce of the trompet blowe, ye shall saye: Absalom raygneth kyng in Hebron. And with Absalom went two hundred men out of Jerusalem, that were called. And they wente with pure hertes, not knowynge of any thyng. And Absalom sent also for Ahithophel the Gilonite Dauids counsayler, that he shoulde come out of his cytie Gilo, whyle he offred sacrifyces. And there was wrought stronge treason. For the people wente, and encreased with Absalom in multitude. And there came a messenger to Dauid, and sayd: the hertes of the mē of Israel are turned after Absalom. And Dauid sayde vnto all his seruauntes that were with hym at Jerusalem: vp, that we maye be gone, for we shall not els escape from Absalom. Make spede, to de parte, lest he come sodaynly & catche vs, & bring some mischefe vpō vs, & smyte the cytie with ỹ edge of the swerd. And Ithai answered the kynge, & sayd: as truly as God liueth, and as my lord the king lyueth, in what place my lorde the kyng shalbe whether in death or lyfe, euen there also wil thy E seruaunt be. And Dauid the kynge sayde to Ithai: come then, and goo forewarde. And Ithai the Gethite went forth, and all his men, and all the chyldren that were with hym. And all the countrye wepte with a loude voyce, and so dyd all the people that went forth. The kynge also hym selfe passed ouer the brooke Kydron. And all the people went towarde the waye that leadeth to the wylderneſſe. And Sadok and al the Leuytes were with hym, and bare the arke of the appoynctemente of God. And there they set downe the arke of God: And Abiathar wēt vp, vntyll the people were all come ouer, out of the cytie. And the kynge sayde vnto Sadok: Carye the arke of God agayne into the tytie. Yf I shal fynde fauoure in the eyes of the Lorde, he wyll bring me agayne, and shewe me both it and the tabernacle therof. But & if the Lorde thus saye: I haue no luſt vnto the, beholde, here am I: let hym do with me, what semeth good in his eyes.

The kynge sayd also vnto Sadok the preest

Thē sayd Absalom: cal also Husai the Arachite, and let vs heare his counsayle. When Husai was come to Absalom, Absalom spake vnto hym, saying: Ahithophel hath gyuen suche counsayl: Shal we do after his saying, or no: tell thou

B Husai answered vnto Absalō, the coūsayle that Ahithophel hath gyuē, is not good at this tyme: For (sayde Husai) thou knowest thy father, and his men, how that they be strong. And they be chafed in theyr myndes, and are euen as a *beere robbed of her whelpes in the feld. Thy Pro.xvii.a father is a man also practysed in the warre, and maketh no taryinge with the people. Beholde, he lurketh nowe in some caue, or in some other, (stronge) place. And though some of his men be ouerthrowen at the fyrste brunt: yet they that heare it wyll saye: The people that folowe Absalō be put to the worse. And the best men thou hast, whose hertes are as the hertes of lions shal schrynke thereat. For all Israel knoweth, that thy father is a myghtye man, and they whiche be with hym, are all men of warre.

Therfore my counsayle is, that all Israel be
C gathered vnto the, frō Dan to Beersleba (which are as the sande of the see in nombre) and that thou go to battayle in thyne owne person. For so shal we come vpon him in one place or other, where we shal fynde him, and we wyl vpō him euen as thicke as the dewe falleth on ỹ ground. And of all the men that are with hym, we shall not leaue hym one. Moreouer, yf he be goten in to a towne, then shal all the men of Israel bring ropes to that cytie, & we wyll drawe it into the ryuer, vntyl there be not one stone found there. And Absalom and all the men of Israel sayd: the counsayl of Husai the Arachite is better, then the counsayl of Ahithophel. ‡For it was euen ỹ ‡ii.sa.xvij.c

dok & Abiathar the preestes: of this and ỹ maner dyd Ahithophel and the elders of Israel coū sayle Absalō. And thus & thus haue I counsayled. Now therfore send quyckly, and shewe Dauid, sayinge: tary not all nyght in the feldes of ỹ wyldernesse, but get the ouer, lest the kynge be deuoured and all the people that are with him. Now Jonathas and Ahimaaz abode by ỹ wel of Rogel: (for they myght not be sene to come into the cytie.) And a wenche wente, and tolde them. And they wēt and shewed kyng Dauid.

Neuertheless, a lad sawe them, and tolde it to Absalō. But they went both of them awaye quyckly, and came to a mans house in Bahuri, E whiche had a well in his yarde, into the whiche they went downe. And a womā toke and spred a couerlet ouer the welles mouthe, and strawed furmentye corne thereon. And the thynge was not espyed. And whē Absalōs seruauntes came to the wyfe to the house, they sayde: Where is Ahimaaz & Jonathas? The woman answered them: they be gone ouer the lytle brooke of water. And when they had sought them, and could not fynde them, they returned to Jerusalem. And as soone as they were departed, the other came out of the well, and went and told kynge Dauid, and sayde vnto hym: vp, and get you F quyckly ouer the water, for suche counsayl hath Ahithophe gyuen agaynste you: Then Dauid arose, and all the people that were with hym, & they were come ouer Jordane by that it was daye: so that there lacked not one of them, that was not come ouer Jordan. And when Ahithophel sawe, that his counsayl was not folowed, he sadled his asse, and arose, and gat him home to his owne house, and to his owne cytie, & put his housholde in ordre, and hanged hym selfe, & dyed, & was buryed in ỹ sepulchre of his father

Then Dauid came to Mahenaim. And Ab G salom passed ouer Jordan, he and all the men of Israel with hym. And Absalom made Amasa captayne of the host in the stede of Joab, which Amasa was a mannes sonne named Jethra, an Israhelite, that went into Abigail ỹ doughter of Nahas, syster to Zeruia, Joabs mother. The.xviij.Chapter.

Absalom is ouercome in battayle. He hangeth by the heere in an oke. He is kylled and put in a dytche. Dauid is so sozowful foz the death of Absalō, that he wepeth.

AND Dauid nombred the people that were with hym, and set captaynes of thousandes & of hundzeds ouer them. And Dauid sent fozth the thyrde part of the people vnder the hande of Joab, and an other parte vnder the hande of Abisai the sonne of zeruia Joabs brother, and the other thyrde parte vnder the hand of Ithai the Gethite. And the kynge sayd vnto the people: I wyl go with you also. And the people answered: Thou shalt not goo foz the: foz yf we flye, oure aduersaryes wyll not care foz vs: neyther shall they regarde vs though halfe of vs were slayne: but thou art worthy ten thousande of vs: Wherfoze it is better, that thou succoure vs out of the cytie. And the kynge sayde vnto them: What semeth you best, that I wyll do.

B And the kynge stode by the gate syde, and all the people came out by hundzedes and by thousandes, and the kynge commaunded Joab and G.re.xbi.d Abisai, and *Ithai, sayinge: entreate the yonge man Absalom gently foz my sake. And al ỹ people herde that the kynge gaue all the captaynes charge concernyng Absalom. And so the people went oute in the felde agaynste Israel, and the battayle was in the wood of Ephzaim: Where the people of Israel were put to the worse before the seruauntes of Dauid, and there was a great slaughter that daye, euen of twenty thousande men. For the felde was fought there in dyuers places, all abzode vpon the earth. And the wood deuoured mo people that daye then dyd the swerde. And Absalom came before the seruauntes of Dauid, rydyng vpon a mule, which carryed hym vnder the thycke bowes of a greate oke. And his heed was caught of the oke, and he was lyfte vp betwene heauen and earthe: and the mule that was vnder hym went his waye. And one that sawe it tolde Joab, sayinge: Beholde, I sawe Absalom hange in an Oke, and Joab sayde vnto the man that tolde hym: Yf thou dyddest se him, why dyddest not thou there smyte hym to the grounde, and I wold haue gyuen the ten sycles of syluer, and a gyrdle.

C The man sayd vnto Joab: though thou woldest laye a thousande sycles of syluer in myne hande, yet wolde I not stretche out myne hand agaynst the kynges sonne. For we herde with our eares, when the kynge charged the, and Abysai, and Ithai, sayinge: Beware, that none touche the yonge man Absalom. Moreouer, yf I had done it, I shoulde haue done agaynste myne owne lyfe: foz there is no matter hyd frō the kynge: yea, and thou thy selfe woldest haue bene agaynst me. Then sayd Joab: I maye not stande thus taryinge with the.

And he toke thre speares in his hande, and D thrust them thorowe Absalom, whyle he was yet alyue on the body of ỹ tree. And ten seruaūtes that bare Joabs weapons, turned & smote Absalom, and slue hym. And when Joab blewe the trōpet, the people returned from folowyng Israel. For Joab spared the people. And they toke Absalom, and cast him into a great pyt in the wood, and layed a mighty great hepe of stones vpō hym. And all Israel fled to theyr tētes. And this Absalō yet in his lyfe tyme *toke coū- i.reg.xv.e saple: & reared vp a pyller, whiche is in kynges dale. For he sayd: I haue no son. And therfoze, to kepe my name in remembraunce do I it. And he called the pyller after his owne name. And it is called vnto this daye: Absaloms pyller.

Then sayde Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadok: E let me runne now, and beare the kyng tydinges howe that the Lozde hath iudged hym quyte of the hande of his enemyes. And Joab sayd vnto hym: thou art no man to beare good tydynges today: thou shalt beare tydinges an other time but todaye thou shalte beare none: bycause the kynges sonne is deed. Then sayd Joab to Chusi: goo, and tell the kynge, what thou hast sene. And Chusi bowed hym selfe vnto Joab, and ranne. Then sayd Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadoc agayne to Joab: come what come wyll, let me also runne after Chusi. And Joab sayd: Wherfoze wylt thou runne my sonne, seing that foz ỹ tydynges thou shalt haue no reward: wel (sayd he) come what wyl, let me runne. He sayd vnto him: runne. Then Ahimaaz ranne by the playne waye, and came before Chusi.

And Dauid sat betwene the two gates. And F the watcheman wente vp to the rooke ouer the gate vnto the wall, and lyfte vp hys eyes, and sawe, and beholde, there came o man runnyng alone. And the watcheman cryed, and tolde the kynge. And the kyng sayd: yf he be aloone, there is good tydynges in his mouth. And he came, & drewe nye. And the watchemann sawe another man runnynge, and he called vnto the porter, and sayde: beholde, there commeth an other mā runnynge alone. And the kynge sayde: he is also a tydynges bringer. And the watchman sayd: me thynketh the runnyng of the formost is lyke the runnynge of Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadok. The kynge sayd: he is a good man, and cōmeth with good tydynges. And Ahimaaz called, and sayd vnto the kynge: good tydynges, and he fel downe flat to the earth vpon his face before the kynge, and sayde: blessed be the Lozde thy God, which hath shut vp the men that lyfte vp theyr handes agaynste my lozde the kynge. And the kynge sayde: is the yonge man Absalom safe? Ahimaaz aunswered: when Joab sent (Chusi) the kynges seruaunte, and me thy seruaunte, I sawe moche ado: But I wot not what it was: And the kynge sayd vnto hym: turne, and stande here. And he turned, and stode styll.

And beholde, Chusi came also, and sayde: G Good tydinges my lozde the kyng, foz ỹ Lozde hath quyte hath quyte the this daye out of the hande of all them that rose agaynst the. And the kyng sayd vnto Chusi: Is the younge man Absalom safe? Chusi answered: The enemyes of my lorde the kynge, and all that ryse agaynste the to doo the hurte, be as that yonge man is. And the kynge was moued, and wēt vp to a chambre ouer the gate, and wept. And as he went, thus he sayde: O my sonne Absalom, my sonne, my sonne Absalom, wolde God I had dyed for the: O Absalom my sonne, my sonne.

The Dauid is restored to his kyngdome and brought agayne to Jerusalem.

AND it was tolde Joab: Beholde, the kynge mourneth and wepeth for Absalom. And the victorye of that daye was turned into mournynge vnto all the people. For the people hearde saye that daye how the kynge sorowed for his sonne. And the people stale awaye that daye from goinge into the cytie, as people confounded to steale awaye when they flye in battayle. But the kynge hyd his face, and cryed with a loude voyce. O my sonne Absalom, O Absalō my sonne, my sonne.

B And Joab came into the house to the kynge, and sayd: thou hast shamed this day the faces of all thy seruauntes, which this daye haue saued thy lyfe, & the lyues of thy sōnes & of thy doughters, & the lyues of thy wyues, & of thy concubines, in ý thou louest thyne enemies, & hatest thy frendes. For thou hast declared this day, ý thou regardest neither thy lordes nor seruaūtes. And this daye I perceyue, ý yf Absalom had lyued, & all we had dyed this daye, ý had pleased the wel Now therfore vp, & come out, and speake kyndly vnto thy seruaūtes: For I sweare by ý Lord, excepte thou come out, there wyll not tarye one man with the this night. And that wil be worse vnto the, then all the euyll ý fell on the from thy youth vnto this houre. Then the kynge arose, & sat downe in the gate. And they tolde vnto all the people, saying: Beholde, the kynge doth syt in the gate. And all the people came before the kynge. But Israel fled euery man to his tent.

C And it fortuned, that all the people were at stryfe throwe out all the trybes of Israel, saying: the kynge saued vs out of the hande of our enemyes, he delyuered vs out of the hand of the Philistines, and now he is fled out of the lande for Absalō. But Absalom whom we anoynted ouer vs is dead in battayle. Therfore why are ye so styll, ý ye brynge not the kynge agayne? And kyng Dauid sent to Sadok & Abiathar ý preestes, saying: speake vnto the elders of Juda and saye: why are ye behynde to bryng the king agayne to his house, seing that suche tydynges is come from all Israel vnto the kynge, euen to his house? ✻ (For the kynge had sayde: Thus shall ye saye vnto the people of Juda:) Ye are my brethren, my bones and my flesh: wherfore then are ye the last ý bryng the kynge home agayne? And saye ye to Amasa: art thou not of my bone & of my flesche? God do so & so to me, yf thou be not captayne of the hoost to me for euer in the roume of Joab.

And he bowed ý hertes of al ý men of Juda, euē as the hert of one man: so ý they sent this worde to ý kynge: Returne thou wt all thy seruauntes. So the kynge returned, & came to Jordan. And Juda came to Gilgal, for to go downe to mete the kyng, & to cōuey hym ouer Jordan. And Simei ✻ the sonne of Gera, ý son of Jemini, which was of Bahurim, hasted and came with ý men of Juda to mete kyng Dauid and there were a thousand men of Ben Jamin wt him, and ✻ Ziba the seruaunt of ý house of Saul, and his .xv. sōnes and twentye seruauntes with hym. And they went quyckly ouer Jordan before ý kyng. And there went ouer a boote that caryed ouer ý kynges housholde, and they dyd hym pleasure. ✻ ii.re. vbi.b ✻ ii.re. vbi.a

D And Simei the sonne of Gera fell before the kynge (as he was come ouer Jordan) and sayd vnto hym: let not my lorde impute wyckednesse vnto me, nor remēbre the thynges that thy seruaunt dyd wyckedly when my lorde the kynge departed out of Jerusalem) that the kyng shuld take it to hert. For thy seruaunt doeth knowe, how that I haue done amysse. And therfore beholde, I am the fyrst this daye of all the house of Joseph, that am come to go downe, to mete my lorde the kynge. But Abisai the sonne of Zeruia answered, and sayde: shall not Semei dye for this, bycause he cursed the Lordes annoynted? And Dauid sayde: what matter is betwene you and me, ye sonnes of Zeruia? For this daye ye be aduersaryes vnto me. Shall there any man dye this daye in Israel? Doo not I knowe, that I am this daye kynge ouer Israel? And therfore the kynge sayd vnto Semei: thou shalt not dye and the kynge sware vnto hym.

E And Miphiboseth the sonne of Saul came also to mete the kyng, and had neither washed his feet, nor shauen his beerde, nor washed hys clothes from the tyme the kynge departed, vntyll he came agayne in peace. And it fortuned, ý when he was come to Jerusalē, and met ý king the kyng sayd vnto him: wherfore wentest not thou with me Miphiboseth? He answered: my lorde, O kynge, my seruaunt disceyued me. For thy seruaunt sayd: I wold haue myne asse sadled to ryde theron, for to go to the king, bycause thy seruaunt is lame. And Ziba hath falsely reaported of thy seruaunt vnto my lord the kynge. And my lorde the kyng is as an aungel of God: do therfore what semeth good in thyne eyes. For al my fathers house were but deed men before my lord ý kynge, and yet diddest thou put thy seruaūt amōg them ý did eat at thyne owne table. What ryght therfore haue I yet, to crye any more vnto the kynge. And the kynge sayde vnto him: why speakest thou yet in thyne owne cause? ✻ (It is determyned, that) I haue sayd: thou & Ziba deuyde the landes betwene you. ✻ And Miphiboseth sayd vnto the kyng: yea, let him take all: for so moche as my lorde the kynge is come agayne in peace vnto his owne house.

And Berselai the Giliadite came downe frō Roglim, and went ouer Jordan wt the kynge, to cōuey him ouer Jordan. Berselai was a very aged man, euen foure score yere olde, & prouided the kynge

I am this day fourescore yere olde: and can I decerne betwene good or euyll? Hath thy seruaunt any taste in that he eateth or drynketh? Can he heare anye more the voyce of syngynge men and women? Wherfore then shulde thy seruaunt be yet a burthen vnto my lorde the kynge? Thy seruaunte wyll go a lytle waye ouer Jordan with ỹ kyng and why wyll the kyng recompence it me with suche a rewarde? O let thy seruaūt turne backe agayne, that I maye dye in myne owne cytie, and (be buried) in the graue of my father and of my mother. Beholde, here is thy sernaunt Chimeam, let hym go with my lorde the kyng, and do to hym what shall please the.

And the kynge answered: Chimeam shall go G with me. And I wyll do to hym that thou shalt be content with. And whatsoeuer thou shalt requyre of me, that same wyll I do for the. And al the people went ouer Jordan. And when ỹ king was come ouer Jordan, he kyssed Berselai, and blessed hym, and he went backe agayne vnto his owne place. And then ỹ kynge went to Gilgal, and Chimeam went with hym, and so dyd all the people of Juda, and brought ouer the kyng and there were but halfe the men of Israel.

And beholde, all the men of Israel came to ỹ kyng, and sayd vnto him: why haue our brethrē ỹ men of Juda stolen the away, & haue brought the kyng & his houshold, and all Dauids men wt hym ouer Jordan? And all the men of Juda answered ỹ men of Israel: the kynge is nere of kyn to vs: wherfore be ye angry for ỹ matter? thinke ye ỹ we eate of the kynges cost, or ỹ we take vs any gyftes? And ỹ men of Israel answered the men of Juda, & sayde: We haue ten partes in the kyng, & haue therto more right to Dauid then ye. Why thē dyd ye dispyse vs, that our aduyse shuld not be fyrst had, in restoring our kynge agayne? And the wordes of ỹ men of Juda were fearcer then the wordes of the men of Israel.

¶ Seba the sonne of Bichri rayseth Israel agaynst Dauid: Joab kylleth Amasa traytously: The heed of Seba is delyuered to Joab: Dauids recepuers are nombred.

A When there came thyther a certayne man of Belial (named Seba, the sonne of Bichri, a man of Gemini) he blewe a trompet, & sayd: We haue no part in Dauid, neither haue we enheritaunce in the sonne of Jsai, let the men of Israel departe vnto theyr tentes. And so euery mant of Israel wen from Dauid and folowed Seba the sonne of Bichri. But the men of Juda claue fast vnto theyr kynge, from Jordan to Jerusalem.

And Dauid came to his house to Jerusalem, *and toke the ten women his concubines, that ii.reg.xb.d & xpi.d. he had lefte behynde hym to kepe the house, and put them in warde, and fedde them: but laye no more with them. And so they were enclosed vnto the day of their death, lyuing in wydowhod.

Then sayd the kynge to Amasa: call me the men of Juda togyther agaynst the thyrd daye, and be thou here also. And so Amasa wēt to gather the men of Juda togyther: but taryed longer thē the tyme which he had appoynted him. And Dauid sayd to Abisai: now shall Seba the sonne of Bichri do vs more harme, thē dyd Absalom. Take thou therfore thy lordes seruauntes and folowe after hym, lest he get hym walled cyties, and escape vs. And there went out after hym Joabs mē, and the Crethites & the Phelethites, and all the myghtyest men. And Joab & Abisai his brother folowed after D Seba ỹ son of Bichri: & one of Joabs men stode by him, & sayd: he ỹ beareth any fauour to Joab or good wyll to Dauid, let hym go after Joab. And he went thorowe al the tribes of Jsrael E vnto Abel, and Bethmaacha and al the places of Barim. And they gathared togyther, & went after hym. And they came, and besieged hym in Abel and Bethmaacha. And they caste vp a banke agaynst the cytie that stode in the valley All the people that was with Joab, thruste at the wall to ouerthrowe it. Then cryed a wyse woman out of the cytie, heare, heare, byd Joab come hyther that I may speake with hym. Whē Joab was come vnto her, the woman sayd vnto hym: heare the wordes of thyne handmayde. G And Joab answered, and sayd: God forbyd, God forbyd it me, that I shulde eyther deuoure or destroye. The matter is not so: but a man of mount Ephraim (Seba the sonne of Bichri by name) hath lyft vp his hãd agaynst ỹ kyng, euẽ agaynst Dauid. Deliuer vs him onely, & I wyl depart from the cytie. And ỹ woman sayd vnto Joab: Beholde, his heed shalbe throwen to the ouer the wall. And then the woman went vnto all ỹ people wt her wysdome. Joab was ouer all the hooste of Israel. And Banaia the son of Jehoiada was ouer the Crethites and Phelethites. And Aduram was ouer the tribute. And Jehosaphat the sonne of Aliud was recorder. Seua was scrybe. And Sadock and Abiathar were the preestes. And Ira the Jairite was Dauids preest.

¶ Three deare peres. The vengeaunce of the synnes of Saul lyghteth on his.vii. sonnes, which are hanged. Foure greate battayles which Dauid had agaynst the Philistines.

Wherfore Dauid sayd vnto them: what shal I do for you, & wherwith shal I make the attonement ỹ ye maye blesse the enheritaunce of the Lorde?

The Gibaonites answered hym: We wyll haue no syluer nor golde, of Saul, nor of hys house: neyther is it our mynde that thou shouldest kyl any mã in Israel. He sayd: what saye ye then ỹ I shal do for you? They answered ỹ kyng the man ỹ cõsumed vs & ymagined to bryng vs to nought, him wyl we destroy, that nought of him continue in any of the costes of Israel. Let seuen men of his sonnes be delyuered vnto vs, and we wyl hange them vp vnto the Lorde, in Gibeah of Saul, whom the Lorde dyd chose. And the kynge sayde: I wyll gyue them you.

B But the kynge had compassion on Miphibosheth the sonne of Jonathas the sonne of Saul, bycause of the Lordes othe, that was betwene them: euen betwene Dauid and Jonathas the sonne of Saul. But he toke the two sonnes of Rizpa the doughter of Aia (whom she bare vnto Saul) euen Armoni and Miphiboseth, and the fyue sõnes of Michol (ỹ doughter of Saul) whom she bare to Adriel the sonne of Berzilai, the Meholathite. And he delyuered them vnto the hãdes of the Gibeonites, which hanged thẽ in the hyll before the Lorde. And they fell all seuen togyther, and were slayne in the dayes of haruest: euẽ in the fyrst dayes, and in the begynnynge of barlye haruest.

And Rizpa the doughter of Aia toke sackcloth C and hanged it vp for them vpon the rocke, euen from the begynnynge of haruest, vntyll rayne dropped vpon them out of heauen: and suffered neyther the byrdes of the ayre to fall on them by daye, nor beastes of the felde by nyght. And it was tolde Dauid what Rizpa the doughter of Aia the concubyne of Saul had done: and Dauid went and toke the bones of Saul and of Jonathas his sonne from the men of Jabes in Gilead (whiche had stolen them from the strete of Bethsan where the Philistines had hanged thẽ when the Philistines had slayne Saul in Gilboa) And he brought thence the bones of Saul and the bones of Jonathas his sonne, and they toke vp the boones of them that were hanged. And the bones of Saul and Jonathas his sõne buryed they in the countrye of Ben Jamin in zela, in the sepulchre of Cis his father. And when they had perfourmed all that the kynge cõmaunded, God was then at one with the lande.

And Dauid waxed fayntye, and Jesby of Nob one of the sõnes of the gyauntes (the pyzon of whose speare wayed thre hũdred sycles, and he beinge gyrded with a newe ii.re.xxiii.e swerde) thought to haue slayne Dauid. * But Abisai the sonne of Zaruia succoured hym, and smote the Philistine, and kylled hym. Then the seruauntes of Dauid sware vnto him, sayinge: Thou shalt go nomore out with vs to battayl that thou quenche not the lyght of Israel. And yet after this, there was a battayle wt the Philistines at Nob, and then Sibbechai the Husathite slue Saph, whyche was one of the sonnes of the Gyauntes.

And there was yet an other battayl in *Nob i.par.xx.a with the Philistines, where Elhanã the sonne of Jaere Orgim, a Bethlehemite slue one Golia a Gethite: the staffe of whose speare was as greate as a weauers cloth beame.

And there was yet an other battayl in Geth where was a man of a great stature, and had on euery hand vi. fyngers, & on euery fote. vi. toes, xxiiii. in all. And was borne also of ỹ kynred of the gyauntes in Geth. And when he defyed Israel, Jonathas the sonne of Simea the brother of Dauid slue him. These foure gyauntes were borne in Geth, and fel into the hande of Dauid, and into the handes of his seruauntes.

A And Dauid spake the wordes of this song vnto ỹ Lord, what tyme ỹ Lord had deliuered him out of ỹ hand of al his enemies, & out of the hãd of Saul And he sayde: the Lorde is my rocke and my castell, castel and my delyuerer. God is my strength, in hym wyll I trust: he is my shylde, and the horne of my saluacion: my worshyp and my refuge: my sauiour, thou shalt saue me from wronge.

psa.xviii.a * I wyl cal on the Lord which is prayse wor thy, and so shall I be saued from myne enemyes For the corrupcions of death closed me aboute: the floudes of Belial put me in feare. The sorowes of hell compassed me aboute: the snares of death ouertoke me. In my tribulacion wyll I call vpon the Lorde, and crye to my God. And he shall heare my voyce out of hys temple, and my crye shall enter into hys eares. The earth trembled and quaked: the foundacions of heauen moued and shuke, when he was angry.

B Smoke went vp in hys wrath, & consuming fyre out of hys mouth, cooles were kindled ther of. And he bowed heauē, & came downe, & there was darkenes vnder hys fete. And he sat vpon Cherub & dyd flye, he was sene caryed vpon the wynges of the wynde. He made darkenes a ta bernacle roūde about hym, wt waters gathered together in thycke cloudes. Thorow ꝑ brightnes of his presence were the fyre cooles kyndled

God thondred from heuen, & he that is moste hye, do the put out his voyce. He shot arowes, & scatered them: he hurled lightning, & ouerthrew them. The flowynges of the see appeared, & the foundacions of the worlde were sene, by ꝑ reason of the rebukinge of the Lorde, & thorow the blastynge of the breath of hys nosestrelles. He shall sende frō heauen, & fet me, he shal plucke me out of many waters. He shal delyuer me from my myghtye aduersary, & from myne enemyes, for they are to stronge for me. When they had ouertaken me in the daye of my calamitie the Lorde stated me vp. For he brought me out into routh he delyuered me, because he had a loue vnto me.

C * The Lorde wyl rewarde me accordyng to Rema.ii.b my ryghtwyseneſſe: according to the pureneſs of my hādes wil he recōpence me. For I haue kept the wayes of the Lord, & done no wyckednes agaynst my God. For all hys lawes are in my syght, and his statutes wyl not I put away from me. In hys syght also haue I bene vndefyled, & haue kepte me fro myne owne iniquite.

And the Lorde dyd to me agayne, according to my ryghteousnes, euen after my pureness in hys eyesyght. Wyth the godlye thou shalte be godly, and wyth the mā that is vncorrupt, thou shalt be vncorrupt. With the pure thou shalt be pure, and wyth the frowarde thou shalte be frowarde. And the poore people that are in aduersite, thou shalt helpe. And on the proude shalte thou cast thyne eyes. Thou arte my lyght O Lorde: the Lorde shall lyght my darkeneſſe.

For wyth thy helpe I wyll runne thorowe an hoost of men, and in my God wyl I sprynge ouer a wall. God is vncorrupte in his waye: the worde of the Lorde is tryed in the fyre: he is the defender of all them that trust in hym.

For who is a God saue the Lorde? and who is myghtye, saue our God? God strengtheth me with power, & ryddeth ꝑ waye in battayle cleare before me. He maketh my fete lyke hartes fete, and setteth me fast vpon my hye holde.

* He teacheth my handes to fyght, that euen D a bowe of stele is to weake for myne armes. ps.xviii.a.

Thou hast geuen me the shylde of thy saluacti on, and wyth thy louynge mekenes thou doest multiplye me. Thou shalte make me space to walke in, & my legges shal not fayle me. I wyll followe vpon myne enemyes & destroye them, & turne not agayne vntyl I haue consumed them.

I wyll waste them and smyte them, that they shall not be able to aryse: yea, they shal fal vnder my fete.

Thou hast gyrded me aboute wyth myghte to batayle, and thē that arose agaynst me, haste thou subdued vnder me.

And thou madest myne enemyes (and them that hated me) to turne theyr backes to me that I myght destroy them. They loke for helpe, but there is none to saue them: Yee, euen vnto the Lorde do they crye, but he heareth them not.

I wyll beate them as smale as the dust of the earth: I wyl stampe them as the dyrt of ꝑ strete and wyll spreade them abrode.

Thou shalte delyuer me from the dissension of my people: thou shalt kepe me to be an heade ouer nacyons: the people whyche I knewe not, shall serue me.

Straunge chyldren dissemble wyth me. At the hearynge of the eare they obeye me:

Straunge chyldren wyll chrynke awaye, & they shalbe smytten wyth feare in theyr preuye chamber. God is alyue, & blessed be my maker: magnyfyed be God, my moste stronge saluacio. It is God that auengeth me, & bringeth downe the people vnder me. He delyuereth me fro myn enemyes, thou also shalt lyfte me vp on hye frō them that ryse agaynst me, thou shalte delyuer me from the wycked men.

And therfore I wyll prayse the (O Lorde) amonge ꝑ nacions, & wyl synge vnto thy name. Whych sheweth great saluacion for his kynge & dealeth mercyfully wyth hys anoynted: euen wyth Dauid, and wyth hys sede for euermore.

A THese be the last sayenges of Dauid, Dauid the sonne of Jsay sayd: And the man (whyche was made, the anoynted of the God of Jacob, and ꝑ noble Psalmist of Jsrael) sayde: the spyrete of the Lorde spake by me, and hys worde was in my tonge. The God of Jsrael spake of me, euen the mooste myghty of Jsrael, sayde: he that beareth rule ouer men, ought to rule iustly in the feare of God. And as the morynge lyght when the Sonne is vp, a morynge in which are no cloudes to let the bryghtnes, & as the grasse of the earth is by the vertue of the rayne. Shal not my house be so with God ii.re.bii.a. * For he hath made wyth me an euerlastyng co uenaunt, parfyte & sure in all poyntes: and thys is truly all my health and all my desyre that it growe but not as grasse. But ꝑ vngodly mā of Beliall shalbe as a thorne cleane pluckte vp, which can not be taken wyth handes: But the man that shall touche them, must haue yron, or a longe helue. * Or elles must they be burnte wyth fyre in the same place.

And the soudiours of the Philistines were in Bethleem. And Dauid longed and sayd: Oh, that I had of the water that is in the well by the gate of Bethlehem, for to drinke. And the thre myghty brake thorowe the hoost of the Philistines, and fet water out of the well of Bethlehē that was by the gate, and toke & brought it to Dauid. Neuertheles he wolde not drinke therof, but offred it vnto the Lorde, and sayd: the Lorde forbyd ỹ I shulde do so. Is not thys the bloude of ỹ men that wente in ieopardy of theyr lyues? and therfore he wolde not drynke it. And these thynges dyd these thre mighty men. * Abisai the brother of Joab, ỹ sonne of Saruiah, was chefe amōge the thre, & he lyfte vp hys speare agaynst thre hundred, and slue them, & had the name amonge the thre. For he was nobler man then the thre, and was theyr captayne. Howbeit he attayned not vnto (the first) thre.

But he wente downe to hym wyth a staffe, & plucked ỹ speare out of the Egyptiās hāde, & slue hym wyth hys owne speare. These thynges dyd Banaiahu ỹ sonne of Jehoiada, & had ỹ name amōge ỹ thre worthyes. He was honorable amonge thirty, but he attayned not to the (fyrst) thre. And Dauid made hym of his coūcel. ¶ The. xxiiii. Chapter.

¶ Dauid causeth the people to be nombred, & therfore is Israel plaged wyth pestylence, so that in thre dayes there dyed lxx. thousande.

AGayn, the Lorde was wroth agaynst Israel, and he moued Dauid agaynst them, in that he sayde: * go and nombre Israel & Juda. For the kynge sayd to Joab the captayne of hys hoost: go thou abrode nowe, thorowe out all the trybes of Israel, euen from Dan to Beer Seba, & nombre ye the people, that I may knowe the nombre of them. And Joab sayd vnto the kynge. I beseech the Lorde thy God, to make thy people as many mo as they be: yea and an hundred tymes so many mo, and that the eyes of my lorde ỹ kinge maye se them. And what is the cause that my lorde the kynge hath a lust to thys thynge? Notwithstandyng the kynges worde preuayled agaynst Joab & agaynst ỹ captaynes of the hoost. A exo.xxx.b

And Joab & the captaynes of the hoost went B out from the presence of the kynge, to nombre ỹ people of Israel. And they passed ouer Jordan, and pytched in Aroer on the ryght syde of the cytie that lyeth in the middes of the valey of Gad ouer agaynst Jazer. And then they came to Gilead, & to the netherlande, where was a new habitacion, & from thence they came to Dan Jaan about to Sidon, & came to the stronge holde of Tyre & to all the cyties of the Heuites & of ỹ Chananites, & then went out to the South of Juda euen to Beersleba. And so, when they had ben abrode thorowe out all the lande, they returned to Jerusalē agayne, after ỹ ende of nyne monethes & twenty dayes. And Joab delyuered vp the nōbre & sūme of ỹ people vnto ỹ kynge. And there were in Israel eyght hūdred thousand mē of myght that drewe swordes. And the men of Juda were fyue hundred thousande men.

And Dauids herte smote hym, after that he had nombred the people. And Dauid sayd vnto the Lorde: I haue synned exceedyngly in that I haue done. And nowe Lorde take awaye the trespace of thy seruaunt, for I haue done verye foolyshly. And when Dauid was vp in a morninge, the worde of the Lorde came vnto ỹ prophete Gad Dauids seer, sayeng: go and say vnto Dauid, thus sayeth ỹ Lorde: I offre the thre thynges, chose ỹ whych of thē I shall do vnto ỹ.

So Gad came to Dauid, and shewed hym, & sayd sayd vnto hym. Wylte thou haue seuen yeares honger to come in thy lande, or wylte thou flee iii. monethes before thyne enemyes, they folowynge the, or that there be thre dayes pestilence in thy lande? Nowe therfore aduyse the, and se, what answere I shall gyue to hym that sente me. And Dauid sayde vnto Gad: I am in extreme trouble. *We wyll fall nowe into ỹ hãde of the Lorde, for muche is hys mercy, and let me not fall into the hande of man. Eccle.ii.c.

And so the Lorde sent a pestilence in Israel from the morynge vnto the tyme appoynted. And there dyed of the people frõ Dan to Beersleba seuenty thousande men. And when the angell stretched out his hande vpon Jerusalem to destroy it, the Lorde had compassion to do that euell and sayde to the angell that destroyed the people: it is nowe sufficient: holde thyne hande. And the angell of the Lorde was by the threshynge place of Arefna the Jebusite. And Dauid spake vnto the Lorde (when he sawe the angell that smote ỹ people) & sayd: lo, it is I that haue synned, and I that haue done wyckedly. But these shepe, what haue they done? let thine hãde (I praye the) be agaynst me and agaynst my fathers house.

D And Gad came the same daye to Dauid, and sayd vnto hym: go vp and reare an aultare vnto the Lorde in the threshyng flowre of Arefna the Jebusyte. And Dauid (accordynge to the sayeng of Gad) wente vp, as the Lorde cõmaũded. And Arefna loked, and sawe the kinge and hys seruauntes commynge towarde hym. And Arefna went out: and bowed hym selfe before the kynge flat on his face vpon the groũde, and Arefna sayde: wherfore is my lorde the kynge come to hys seruaunt? Dauid answered: to bye the threshyng flowre of the, and to make an aultare vnto the Lorde, that the plage maye cease from the people.

And Arefna sayd vnto Dauid: let my lorde the kynge take & offre what semeth hym good in hys eyes: Beholde here be oxen for burntsacrifice, and sleades & the other instrumentes of the oxen for wood. All these thynges dyd Arefna geue vnto the kynge, and sayd moreouer vnto the kynge: the Lord thy God accept the. And the kynge sayd vnto Arefna: not so but I wyll bye it of the at a pryce, and wyll not offre sacrifyce vnto the Lord my God of that which doth cost me nothynge. And so Dauid bought the threshynge floure, and the oxen for fyftye sycles of syluer. And Dauid buylt there an aultare vnto the Lorde, and offered burntsacrifices and peace offerynges. And so the Lorde was intreated for the lande. And the plage ceased from Israel. ✠

And Banaiahu ỹ ſonne of Jehoiada anſwered the kynge, & ſayd: Amen. I praye God ỹ the Lorde God of my lorde the kinge ſay ſo to. And as God hath ben wt my lorde ỹ kinge, euen ſo be he wt Salomon alſo, & make hys ſeate greater, thē ỹ ſeate of my lorde kynge Dauid hath bene.

And ſo Sadock the preſt, and Nathan the prophet, & Banaiahu the ſonne of Jehoiada, & the Crethites and Phelethites wente downe, & ſet Salomon vpon kynge Dauids Mule, and brought hym to Gihon. And Sadock the preſt toke an horne of oyle out of the tabernacle, and anoynted Salomon. And all they of the people blewe trompettes, and ſayd: God ſaue kynge Salomō. And al the people came vp after him, pypynge wyth pypes and reioyſynge greatly, ſo that the earth range with ỹ ſounde of them. F

And Adonia & all the geſtes that he had called vnto hym, herd it, euen as they had made an ende of eatynge. And when Joab herde the ſoūd of the trompet, he ſayd: howe happeneth it that there is ſuche a noyſe in the cytie? And as he yet ſpake: behold, Jonathas the ſonne of Abiathar ỹ preſt came. And Adonia ſayd vnto hym: come in, for thou arte a valyaunt man, and bryngeſt good tydinges. And Jonathas anſwered & ſaid to Adonia: Verely our lorde kynge Dauid hath made Salomō kynge. And ỹ kynge hath ſente with hym, Sadock ỹ preſt, & Nathā ỹ prophet & Banaiahu the ſonne of Jehoiada & the Crethites & the Phcletites, & they haue ſet hym vpon the kynges mule. And Sadock the preſt, & Nathan the prophet, haue anoynted hym kynge in Gihon. And they came vp agayne, & reioyſed, ỹ the cytye dyd ſoūde agayne. And that is ỹ noyſe that ye haue herde. And Salomon ſytteth on the ſeate of the kyngdome. And moreouer the kynges ſeruaūtes came to bleſſe our lord kynge Dauid, ſayenge: thy God make the name of Salomon more honorable then thy ſeate. And the kynge bowed him ſelfe vpon the bedde. And thus ſayd the kynge: Bleſſed be the Lorde God of Iſraell: whych hath made one to ſytte on my ſeate thys daye, myne eye ſeynge it. G

And all the geſtes that were wyth Adonia were afrayed, and roſe vp, and went euery man hys waye. And Adonia fearyng the preſence of Salomon, aroſe, and wente, *(into the tabernacle of the Lorde) and caught hold on the hornes of the altare. And one tolde Salomon, ſaynge: Beholde, Adonia doth feare kynge Salomon: for he hath *caught holde on the hornes of the altare, ſayenge: let kynge Salomon ſweare vnto me thys daye that he wyll not ſlaye hys ſeruaunte wyth the ſwearde. 2 *Exod. xxi. b

And Salomon ſayd, yf he wylbe a chylde of vertue, there ſhall not an heer of hym fall to the earth. But & yf wyckednes be founde in him, he ſhall dye. And ſo kynge Salomō ſent, and they brought

Go and get the in vnto kynge Dauid, & ſaye vnto hym: dyddeſt not thou (my lorde O kyng) ſweare vnto thy hādmayde, ſayeng: Salomō thy ſonne ſhall raygne after me, & he ſhall ſyt vpon my ſeate, why is then Adonia kynge? Behold, whyle ỹ yet talkeſt there wt the kynge I wyll come in after the, & cōfyrme thy wordes.

C And Bethſabe went in vnto the kynge into the chamber. And the kynge was very olde, & Abiſag the Sunamite mynyſtred vnto ỹ kinge And Bethſabe ſtouped & made obeyſaūce vnto the kynge. And the kynge ſayd: what is the matter? She anſwered hym: my lorde, thou ſwareſt by the Lorde thy God vnto thyne handmayde: Salomon thy ſonne ſhall raygne after me, and he ſhall ſyt vpon my ſeate. And beholde, now is Adonia, kynge, and my lorde the kynge woteth not of it. And he hath offered oxen, fat catel, and many ſhepe, and hath called al the ſonnes of the kynge, & Abiathar ỹ preſt, & Joab the captayne of the hooſt. But Salomon thy ſeruaunt hath he not bydden. And nowe my lorde (O kynge) the eyes of all Iſraell wayte on the, that thou ſhuldeſt tell them, who ought to ſyt on the ſeate of my lorde the kynge after hym. For els when my lorde the kynge ſhal ſlepe wyth hys fathers, I and my ſonne Salomon ſhalbe ſynners.

D And whyle ſhe yet talked wyth ỹ kynge, Nathan the prophete came alſo. And they told the kynge ſayeng: beholde, here commeth Nathā ỹ prophet. And when he was come in to the kyng he made obeyſaunce before the kynge vpon hys face on the groūde, & Nathā ſayd: My lorde (O kynge) haſt thou ſayd: Adonia ſhall raygne after me, & ſhall ſyt vpon my ſeate? For he is gone downe thys daye, & hath ſlayne many oxen, and fat ſhepe & hath called all the kynges ſonnes, & the captaines of the hooſt, & Abiathar the preſt. And beholde they eate & dryncke before him, and ſaye: God ſaue kynge Adonia. But me thy ſeruaunt, and Sadocke the preſte, and Banaiahu the ſonne of Jehoiada, and thy ſeruaunt Salomon hath he not called. Is thys thynge done of my lorde the kynge, and thou haſt not ſhewed it vnto thy ſeruaunt, who ſhuld ſyt on the ſeate of my lorde the kynge after hym?

E Then kynge Dauid anſwered, and ſayde: call me Bethſabe. And ſhe came into ỹ kynges preſence, and ſtode before hym. And the kynge ſware, ſayenge: As truely as the Lorde lyueth (that hath ryd my ſoule out of all aduerſite) euē as I ſware vnto the by the Lord God of Iſrael ſayenge: Salomon thy ſonne ſhall raygne after me, & he ſhal ſyt vpon my ſeate for me, ſo wyl I do thys day. Then Bethſabe bowed on her face to the earth, and dyd reuerence vnto the kynge, & ſayd: I praye God that my lord kynge Dauid maye lyue euer. And kynge Dauid ſayd call me Sadocke the preſt, & Nathan the prophete, and Banaiahu ỹ ſonne of Jehoiada. And they came before ỹ kynge. The kynge alſo ſaid vnto them take wt you the ſeruaūtes of your lorde, & ſet Salomon my ſonne vpon myne owne mule, & carry hym downe to Gihon. And let Sadock ỹ preſt, & Nathā the prophet anoynte hym there, kynge ouer Iſrael. And blowe ye wyth trompettes, & ſaye: God ſaue kynge Salomon. And thē come vp after hym, ỹ he may come & ſyt vpon my ſeat for he ſhalbe kinge in my ſteade. And I wyl cō maunde hym to be captayne ouer Iſrael & Juda. And Banaiahu ỹ ſonne of Jehoiada anſwered the kynge, & ſayd: Amen. I praye God ỹ the Lorde God of my lorde the kinge ſay ſo to. And as God hath ben wt my lorde ỹ kinge, euen ſo be he wt Salomon alſo, & make hys ſeate greater, thē ỹ ſeate of my lorde kynge Dauid hath bene.

THe dayes of Dauid drewnye that he shulde dye, and he charged Salomon hys sonne, sayenge: I go the waye of al the worlde, *be thou stronge therfore, and shewe thy selfe a man. Kepe thou the watch of the Lorde thy God, that thou walcke in hys wayes, and kepe his statutes, and his precептes, hys iudgementes, and hys testimonyes, euen as it is written in the lawe of Moses: that thou mayest prospere in all that thou doest, and in euery thynge that thou medlest wythall.

That the Lorde also maye make good hys worde whych he spake vnto me, sayenge: yf thy chyldren take hede to theyr waye ỹ they walke before me in trueth, wyth all theyr hertes, and

iii.reg.iii.c and.xx.c *Moreouer, thou wotest, how Joab ỹ sōne of zaruia serued me, & what he dyd to that two captaynes of the hoostes of Israel: vnto Abner the sonne of Ner, and vnto Amasa ỹ sōne of Jether: whō he slue, & shed bloude in tyme of peace (euen as it had ben in warre) and put the bloud of warre vpon hys gyrdle that was aboute his loynes, and in hys shoes that were on hys fete. Deale wyth hym therfore accordynge to thy wysedome, & bringe not hys hoore head downe to the graue in peace. *But shewe kyndnes vn

B *And beholde, thou haste wyth the Semei

ij.re.xvi.b the sonne of Gera, the sonne of Gemini, of Bahurim, whych cursed me wyth an horrible curse in the daye when I went to Mahanahim. But he came to mete me at Jordane, and I sware to hym by the Lorde sayenge: I wyll not slaye the wyth the sweade: but thou shalt not count hym as vngylty, for thou arte a man of wysedome, and knowest what thou oughtest to do vnto hym. Hys hoore heade shalt thou bringe to the graue wyth bloude.

C And so *Dauid slept wyth hys fathers, and Actes ii.c was buryed in the cytie of Dauid. And ỹ dayes which Dauid raygned vpon Israel, were fourtye yeares: seuē yeares raygned he in Hebron: & thyrty & thre yeares raygned he in Jerusalem.

i.par.xxix.c *Then sat Salomon vpon the seate of Dauid hys father, and hys kyngdome was stablysshed myghtely. And Adonia ỹ sonne of Hagith cam to Bethsabe the mother of Salomon. And she ii.re.xvi.b sayd: *Comest thou peaceably? And he sayd peaceably. He sayd, moreouer: I haue somwhat to saye vnto the. She sayd: saye on. And he sayd, ỹ knowest that the kyngdome was myne, & that al Israel set theyr faces on me, ỹ I shuld raigne howbeit, the kygdome is turned awaye, and geuen to my brother: for it is apoynted hym of the Lorde: & nowe I aske a peticion of the: deny me not. And she sayd vnto hym: Saye on. And he sayd: Speake, I praye the, vnto Salomon the kynge, for he wyll not saye ỹ naye, that he geue me Abisag ỹ Sunamite to wyfe. And Bethsabe sayd: well, I wyll speake for ỹ vnto ỹ kinge.

mon, to speake vnto hym for Adonia. And the kynge rose to mete her & bowed hym selfe vnto her, and sat hym downe on hys seate. And there was a seate set for the kynges mother, & she sat on hys ryght syde. Then she sayd: I desyre a lytell peticion of the, I praye the saye me not nay And the kynge sayd vnto her: Aske on my mother, for I wyll not saye the naye. She sayd: let Abisag the Sunamite be geuen to Adonia thy brother to wyfe. And kynge Salomon answered and sayd vnto hys mother: why doest thou aske Abisag ỹ Sunamite for Adonia? aske for hym the kingdome also: for he is myne elder brother, and hath for hym Abiathar the prest, and Joab the sonne of zaruia. Then kynge Salomon sware by the Lorde, sayenge: God do so, and so to me, yf Adonia hath not spoken thys worde agaynst hys owne lyfe. Now therfore as truly as the Lord lyueth, whych hath ordeyned me, and set me on the seate of Dauid my father, and made me an house, as he promysed, Adonia shall dye thys daye. And kynge Salomon sent by the hande of Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada, and he smote hym that he dyed.

And vnto Abiathar the prest, sayd ỹ kynge: E get the to Anatoth vnto thyne owne feldes: for thou arte worthye of death: but I wyll not at thys tyme kyll the, because thou bareste the arke of the Lorde God before Dauid my father, and because thou hast suffred wyth my father in all hys afflictions. And so Salomon put away Abiathar from beynge prest vnto the Lorde: that he myght fulfyll the wordes of the Lord which he spake ouer the house of Eli in Silo. Then tydynges came also to Joab: for Joab had turned after Adonia though he turned not after Absalom. And Joab fled vnto the tabernacle of the Lorde and caught holde on the hornes of the altare. And it was tolde kynge Salomon, how ỹ Joab fled vnto ỹ tabernacle of the Lord & stode by the altare. Thē Salomō sent Banaiahu the sōne of Jehoiada, sayenge: go & fall vpon hym.

And Banaiahu came to the Tabernacle of the Lorde, and sayde vnto hym. Thus sayeth the kynge: come out. And he sayde: naye, but I wyll dye euen here. And Banaiahu brought the kynge worde agayne, sayeng: thus sayd Joab, and thus he answered me.

And the kynge sayd. Do euen as he hath sayd F
smyte hym, and burye hym, that thou mayest take awaye the bloude whych Joab shed causeles, from me, and from the house of my father. And the Lorde shall bringe hys bloude vpō his owne head, for he smote two men ryghtwyser & better thē he, & slue them wyth the sweарde, my father Dauid not knowyng therof: euen Abner the sonne of Ner, captayn of ỹ hoost of Israel, & Amasa the sonne of Jether captayne of the hoost of Juda. Theyr bloude shal therfore returne vpon the heade of Joab, & on the heade of hys sede for euer. But vpon Dauid, & vpon hys sede, & vpon hys house, & vpon hys seate shall there be peace for euer of the Lorde. So Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada went vp, & smote hym, & slue hym, & buryed hym in his owne house in ỹ wyldernes. And the kynge put Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada in hys rowme ouer the hoost & put Sadock the preest in the rowme of Abiathar.

And the kynge sente and called Semei, and sayde vnto him: buyld the an house in Jerusalē, and dwell there: and se that thou go not forthe thence any whether. For be thou sure, that the daye that thou goest out, and passest ouer the ryuer of Cedron, thou shalt dye that daye, & thy bloude shalbe vpon thyne owne heade. And Semei sayd vnto ỹ kynge. Thys is a good thynge as my lorde the kynge hath sayd: so wyl hys seruaunt do. And Semei dwelt in Jerusalem many a daye. And it chaūced after thre yeares, that two of the seruauntes of Semei ranne awaye vnto Achis, sonne of Maacha kynge of Geth. And they tolde Semei, sayeng: beholde, thy seruauntes be in Geth. And Semei stode vp, and sadled hys Asse, and gat hym to Geth to Achis, to seke his seruauntes, and returned, & brought hys seruauntes agayne from Geth.

G And it was tolde Salomon, howe that Semei had gone frō Jerusalem to Geth, and was come agayne. And the kynge sent & called Semei, and sayd vnto hym: Dyd I not charge the by the Lorde wyth an othe, and testifyed vnto the, saynge: be sure, that when soeuer thou goest out, & walkest abroade any whether, thou shalt dye the death? And thou saydest vnto me: it is good tydynges that I haue herd. Why thē hast thou not kept the othe of the Lorde and the commaundement that I charged the wyth all?

iij.re.ỹ.vj.b. The kynge sayd moreouer to Semei: *thou remēbrest all the wyckednes whych thyne hert knoweth, that thou dyddest to Dauid my father. The Lorde also shall brynge thy wickednesse vpon thyne owne heade: and kynge Salomon shalbe blessed, and the seate of Dauid stablysshed before ỹ Lorde for euer. So ỹ kynge cōmaūded Banaiahu ỹ sonne of Jehoiada: whych went out & smote him that he dyed. And ỹ kyngdome was stablysshed in the hāde of Salomon.

* And the kinge wēt to Gibeō, to offer there for ỹ was a special offrynge place. And a thousande burntoffrynges dyd Salomon offre vpō that altare: & in Gibeon the Lorde appeared to Salomon in a dreame by nyght. And God said aske what thou wylt that I maye geue it the. And Salomō sayd: thou hast shewed vnto thy seruaūt Dauid my father great mercy, whē he walked before the in trueth, in ryghteousnes, & in playnes of herte wyth ỹ. And thou hast kept for hym thys great mercy, that thou hast gyuen hym a sonne, to syt on hys seat: as it is come to passe thys daye. * And now, O Lorde my God, it is thou that hast made thy seruaunt kynge in stead of Dauid my father. * And I am but yōge and wote not howe to go out & in. And thy seruaunt is in the myddest of thy people, whyche thou hast chosen. And verely ỹ people are so many that they can not be told nor nōbred for multitude. * Geue therfore vnto thy seruaūt an vnderstandynge herte, to iudge the people, that I maye decerne betwene good and bad. C The. vi. Chapter.

C Howe and when the temple was buylded.

A And it came to passe that in the foure hundred & foure score yeare (after the childrē of Israel were come oute of the lande of Egypte) and * in the fourth yeare of the raygne of Salomon vpon Israel, and in the moneth ziffe, whych is the seconde moneth * he beganne to buylde the house of the Lorde. And the house whych Salomon buylt for the Lorde, was thre score cubytes longe and twenty cubytes broad and thyrty cubites hye. And * he made a porche before the body of the temple, whych was twē tye cubites longe after the bredth of the house, and ten cubites broad, euen in the forefronte of the house. And in the house he made wyndowes broade without, and narowe wythin.

And in the wall of the house, he made chambers roūde about, (euē in the walles of ỹ house) roūde about the tēple & the queer, & made sydes rounde about. The nethermost chāber was fiue cubites broad, & the thyrde was seuen cubites broad. For wythout in the wall of the house he layed beames roūde about, that the beames of the chambers shulde not be fastened in the walles of ỹ house. And ỹ house was buylt of stone, made perfyte alredy before it was brought thyther, so that there was nether hammer nor axe, ether any tole of yron herde in the house, whyle it was in buyldynge.

ryght syde of the house: & mē went vp with wyndynge steares into the myddle chāber, & oute of the myddle, into the thyrde. And so he buylt the house & finished it & rouft it with beames of Cedar tymber. And thē he buylt chābers to al the temple of fyue cubytes heygth, and they were ioyned to the house, wyth beames of Cedar.

And the worde of the Lord came to Salomō sayenge: concernyng the house whych thou art in buyldyng, yf thou wylt walke in myne ordynaunces, & execute my lawes, & kepe al my commaundementes, to walke in them: then wyl I

Salomon therfore buylt the house, & fynished it, & syled the walles of ỹ house within with bordes of Cedar tre: euen from the pauement of the house vnto ỹ rofte dyd he syle the walles of it wythin, with Cedar tre, & borded the floore of ỹ house with planckes of fyre.

And he syled twenty cubytes in the sydes of C
the queer of the tēple, both floore & walles, with bordes of Cedar, & dressed it within in the secret place of the temple, euen in the moost holy. And the fyrst house, that is to saye, ỹ body of the temple without was fourty cubites longe. And the Cedar of the house wythin, was kerued wyth knoppes & grauen with floures, and al was Cedar tymber, so ỹ no stone was sene. And ỹ queer that was wythin the temple, he prepared to set there the Arke of the appointement of the Lord And the queer before, was twentye cubytes longe, and twentye cubytes in bredth, and twētye cubytes in heygth. And he syled it with pure golde, and borded the altare wyth Cedar.

And Salomō also syled ỹ house within with pure gold. And he made golden barres runne alonge ỹ queer, which he had couered with golde

And

And the whole house, he ouerlayde wyth golde, vntyll he hadde ended it. And the aultare that was in the quere he ouerlayde wyth golde also.

Exo.xxv.b And within the queer he made two * Cherubins of olyue tree, ten cubytes hye. Fyue cubytes longe was a wynge of the other Cherub: so that from the vttermost parte of one wyng vnto the vttermooste parte of the other, were ten cubytes. And the other Cherub was ten cubytes hye also: so that bothe the Cherubs were of one measure and one fyse: For ẏ hygth of the one Cherub was ten cubytes, and so was it of ẏ other. And he put the Cherubs within the inner Exo.xxv.b house. * And the Cherubs stretched out theyr wynges, so that ẏ one wynge of the one touched the one wal, and the one wynge of the other touched the other wall. And the other two wynges of them touched one another in the myddes of the house. And he ouer laide ẏ Cherubs wᵗ gold.

D And in all the walles of the house rounde aboute, he made fygures of carued & fyled wozke: as namely, pictures of Cherubs & paulme trees and grauen flowres, both within in ẏ quere and without in the temple. And the flowre of the house he couered with golde, bothe within in the quere, and also without in the temple. And in the entring of the quere he made two dores of olyue tree: And bothe the vpper and two syde postes were fyue square. The two doores also were of olyue tree, and he graued them with graupng of Cherubs and paulme trees: and grauen flowers and couered them with golde, and layde thynne plates of golde vpon the Cherubs and paulme trees. And in lyke maner did he in the doze of the temple, saupng that ẏ postes were of olyue tree, foure square. The two dores were of fyre tree, and ether doze with two foldynge leues, he graued theron Cherubs, paulme trees and flowres, and couered them with golde, which was layed thynne vpon the carued wozke.

And he buylt ẏ vnner court with thre rowes of hewed stone, and one rowe of Cedar wodde.

In the fourth yeare was the foũdacion of the house of the Lozde layde: euen in the moneth zif: And in the leuenth yeare, in the moneth Bull (which is the eyght moneth) was the house full finished thorowout all the partes thereof, accordyng to all the fassion of it, and so was he seuen yere in buyldynge it.

¶ The buyldynge of the house of Salomon. The house of Pharaoes doughter. The fourme of the pyllers of bzasse: of the bzasen see &c.

A BUt Salomon was buyldynge hys owne house thyrtene yere, and finished it all. And he buylt the house in the wood of Libanon, an hundred cubytes longe, and fyfty cubites brode, and thyrty cubites hye. And (it stode) vpõ foure rowes of Cedar pyllers, and cedar bemes (were layed) vpon the pyllers. And the rooke was Cedar aboue vpon the beames that laye on the pyllers, euen. xlv. beames in fyftene rowes. And there were wyndowes in thre rowes, and the wyndowes were one agaynst an other thre fold. And the doores with the syde postes, and the vpper post, were foure square, and had wyndowes one agaynst an other thre folde.

And he made a porche by the pyllers (ẏ bare vp the house) fyfty cubites longe, and. xxx. cubites brode, and the porche was before those, & the other pyllers. For there was a thycke tre set before them. Then he made a porche to syt and iudge in, syled with Cedar thorowout al the panementes. And his owne house (that he kept residence in: and that was in an other court without the porche) was made of the same worke. And then Salomon made an house for Pharaoes doughter * (whome he had taken to wyfe) iiij. re. xi. a. lyke vnto the fassion of the porche.

And all these were of the best stones, hewed B after a measure, and sawed with sawes, within and without, from the foundacion vnto the beames (that lay aboue, after the measure) and euẽ so on the outsyde towarde the great courte. And the foundacyon was layed vpon ryche stoones, and that very greate stones, wherof some were ten cubytes, and some eyghte cubites. And aboue were good stones, squared after a certayn rule, and couered with Cedar. And the greate court round about was wᵗ thre rowes of hewed stones, and one rowe of Cedar plankes, after ẏ maner of the inner court of ẏ house of the Lozd, & of the porche of the temple. * And kyng Sa- ii. par. ii. a lomon sente, and fet one Hiram out of Tyre, a wyddowes sonne of the trybe of Nephthalim, his father being a man of Tyre. Which Hiram was a crafte sman in brasse * ful of wysdom, vn Exo. xxxi. a derstandyng and coumynge: to worke all maner of worke in brasse. And he came to kynge Salomon, and wrought all his worke. For he cast Jer. iii. e * two pyllers of brasse of. xviii. cubytes hye a i. pa. xvii. b pece, and a strynge of twelue cubites dyd com- iiii. re. xxv. c passe eyther of them aboute. And he made two C heed peces of molten brasse (after the fassion of a crowne) to set on the toppes of ẏ pyllers. The hygth of the one heed pece contayned fyue cubites, and the hygth of the other heed pece cõtayned fyue cubites also: he made also net worke & garlandes of chayne worke vpon the heed peces that were on the toppe of the pyllers euen seuen (rowes) vpon the one heedpece, and seuẽ on the other. And so he made the pyllers, and two rowes rounde about, in the one wrethen worke to couer the hedpeces that were vpon the pomgranates. And thus dyd he also for ẏ other heedpece And the heedpeces that were on the toppes of the pyllers couered he aboue, with a curyous worke of roses towarde the palace by the space of foure cubytes. Lykewyse vnder the heedpeces in those two pylles beneth, ouer agaynste ẏ myddes, and before the networke: And vpon the seconde heed pece were there two hundred pomgranates in two rowes round about. And he set vp the pyllers in the porche of the temple. And when he had set vp the ryght pyller, he called the name thereof. * Jachin: & when he had set Stedfastnesse. vp ẏ left pyller, he called ẏ name thereof * Boaz. Strẽgth. And in the toppe of the pillers was a worke of roses, and so was the worke manshyppe of the pyllers fynysshed.

D And he made a molten lauatory, ten cubytes wyde from brym to brym, rounde in compase, & fyue cubytes hye. And a strynge of thyrty cubi-tes dyd compasse it aboute, and vnder the brym of it there were knoppes round about, ten in one cubite: and they compassed the lauatory rounde aboute. And the knoppes were caste wyth it, in two rowes, when it was caste. And it stode on twelue oxen: of whiche thre loked towarde the north thre towarde the weste, thre towarde the south and thre towarde the easte, and the lauatory stode vpon them, and all their hynderpartes were inwarde. It was an hande breadeth thicke, and the brym wrought lyke the brym of a cup with flowres of lylyes. And it conteyned two thousande Battes.

And he made ten sokettes of brasse, foure cu-bites longe, and foure cubites broade a pece, and thre cubytes hye. And the worke of the sokettes was on this maner: They had sydes, and the sy-des were betwene the ledges. And on the sydes that were betwene the ledges, were lyons, oxen E and Cherubs. And lyke wyse vpon the ledges ỹ were aboue: and beneth ỹ lyons and oxen, were certayne addicions made of thynne worke. And vnder euery soket were foure brasē wheles, and bordes of brasse. And in the foure corners thereof, were vndersetters (vnder the lauatory) cast eche ouer agaynst his felowe.

And the stalke of the lauatorye was in the myddle of it, ✻ (where it is sene on the out syde) one cubyte hye, and a cubite and an halfe rounde, and in the heygth of it were grauen worke whose sydes were made foure square, and not rounde.
And vnder the sydes were foure wheles, and the axeltrees ioyned faste to the bottome. And the heigth of euery whele was a cubite and an halfe
And the workmanshyp of the wheles was lyke the worke of a charet whele. And the axeltrees, the nauelles, spokes and shaftes were all moltē.
And there were foure vndersetters in foure cor ners of one socket: and the vnder setters were of the very bottome selfe.

And in the heygth of the botome was there a roūde compasse of halfe a cubite hye: and in that heygth of the botome, there proceaded bothe ledges and sydes out of the same. For in the bor des of the ledges and on the sydes he had grauen pictures of Cherubins, lyons and palmetrees, one by another round about. Thus made he the ten sockettes after this maner: And they had al one fasshyon of castynge: one measure, and one syse. Thā made he ten lauers of brasse, one lauer contaynynge fourty Bates: and one lauer was foure cubites, and vpon euery one of the ten so-F kettes, he put one lauer. And he put fiue of those sokettes on the right syde of the house, and other fyue on ỹ left. And he set the lauatory on ỹ right syde of ỹ house eastwarde & towarde the south.

And Hiram made pottes, shouelles and ba-sens, and so finyshed all the worke that he made kynge Salomon for the house of the Lord: that is to saye, two pyllers and two rounde headpeces that were to be set on the toppes of the two pyllers, and foure hundred pomegranates for the two net workes, (euen two rowes of pomgranates in one net worke) to couer ỹ two head peces that were to be set on the toppes of the pyl lers: And the ten sokettes, and ten lauers on the sokettes. The lauatory, and twelue oxen vnder it, and pottes, shouelles and basēs. And all these vesselles which Hiram made to kynge Salomō for the house of the Lord, were of bryght brasse.
In the playne of Jordan dyd the kynge cast thē:
euen in the thycke claye betwene Socoth zarthā
And Salomon lefte all the vesselles vnwayed, G because they were so exceadynge many, neyther founde they out the weyght of the brasse.

And so Salomon made all the vesselles that perteyned vnto the house of the Lorde: the golden aultare, and the golden table whereon the shewbread was: And fyue candelstickes, for the ryght syde, and fyue for the lefte, before ỹ queer of pure golde: with flowres, lampes, & snoffers of golde: and boulles, flat peces, basens, spones and masours of pure golde: & hyndges made he of gold both for the dores of the queer (the place most holy) and for the dores of the temple also.

And so was ended all the worke that kynge Salomon made for the house of the Lorde. And ✻Salomon brought in the thynges which Da- iij. par. iiij. a uid his father had dedicated: euē the syluer, gold and vesselles, and layed them vp amonge ỹ trea sures of the house of the Lorde.

¶The Lord appeareth the seconde tyme to Salomõ. Salomõ geueth townes to Hyrã. The Cananites become tributarpes. He lẽdeth shyps for gold. He buyldeth many cyties

A Nd when Salomon had*fynyshed the buyldyng of the house of ii.par.vij.c the Lorde and the kinges palace, and all that he had in hys mynde, and was appoynted to make: the Lord appeared vnto him agayne as he appeared vnto hym at Gibeon. And he sayd: what cyties are these, whyche thou hast geuen me, my brother? & he called thē the lande of Cabul vnto thys daye. And Hiram sent the kynge. vi. score hundred weyght of gold And thys is the summe, whych kynge Salomō raysed for a trybute when he buylded the house of the Lorde and hys owne house, and Millo, and the wall of Jerusalem, and Hazoer, and Megeddo, and Gazar.

C For Pharao kynge of Egypt went vp, and toke Gazar, and burnt it wyth fyre, & slue the Cananites that dwelte in the cytie, and gaue it for a presente vnto hys doughter, Salomons wyfe. And Salomō buylt Gazer and Beth Horon ỹ nether: and Baalath and Thamar in the wyldernesse and in the lāde: and all the treasure cyties that Salomon had, ✻(and were vnwalled: those he made stronge) and cyties for hys charrettes, ✻ and cyties for hys horsemen, and all that Salomon desyred and wolde buylde in Jerusalem, in Libanon and in all the lande of his dominion.

D And all the people that were lefte of ỹ Amorites, Hethites, Pherezites, Heuites and Jebusites, (whych were not of the chyldren of Israel) theyr chyldren that were lefte after them in the lande, whome the chyldren of Israel also were not able to destroye. Those dyd Salomon compell to brynge trybute vnto thys daye.
But of the chyldren of Israell dyd Salomon

And Pharaos doughter came out of the citie of Dauid vnto the house whych Salomon had buylt for her. And then dyd he also buylde Millo. And thryse a yeare dyd Salomō offre burnt offerynges and peaceofferinges vpon the altare whyche he buylt vnto the Lorde: And he burnt incense vpon the altare that was before ỹ Lord and so he fynished the house.

And kynge Salomon made a nauy of shyppes in Aziō Gaber which is beside Eloth, & the bryncke of the red see, in the lāde of Edom. And Hiram sent by shyp also of hys seruauntes, that were shyppmen, and had knowledge of the see, wyth the seruauntes of Salomon. And they came to Ophir and fet from thence one & twenty score hundred weyght of golde, and brought it to kynge Salomon.

C The.x. Chapter.

ii.par.ix.a
AND the ✻queene of Saba hearyng ỹ fame of Salomon (concernynge the name of the Lorde) came to proue him with hard questions. And she came to Jerusalem wyth a very great trayne: wyth Camels ỹ bare swete odoures, and golde excedynge much, and precious stones. And she came to Salomō, and comuned wyth hym of all that was in her hert. And Salomon declared vnto her all her questions, so that there was not one thynge hyd from the kynge, whych he expounded not vnto her.

mons wysedome, and ỹ house that he had buylded, and the meate of hys table, and the sytting of hys seruauntes, the ordre of hys mynisters, & theyr apparel, hys drynke & his burnt sacrifices that he offred in ỹ house of the Lorde, & she was astonyed. And she sayd vnto ỹ kynge. It was a true worde that I herde in myne owne lāde of thy sayenges: & of thy wysedom. Howbeit I beleued it not tyl I cam, & sawe it with myne eyes And beholde the one halfe was not tolde me: for thy wysedome & prosperitie exceadeth the fame whych I herde of the. Happy are thy men: & happy are these thy seruaūtes, which stande euer before the, & heare thy wysedome. Blessed be the Lorde thy God, which loued ỹ, to set ỹ on ỹ seat of Israel, because ỹ Lorde loued Israel for euer & made the kynge, to do equite & ryghteousnes.

And she gaue the kynge syxe score hundreth C weyght of golde, & of swete odoures excedynge much, and precious stones. There came nomore suche aboundaūce of swete odoures, as ỹ quene of Saba gaue to kynge Salomon. The nauye also of the ✻shyppes of Hiram (that caryed gold iii.reg.ix.e from Ophir) brought lykewise great plenty of Almuge tree and precious stones. And ỹ kinge made of the Almuge trees, pillers for the house of the Lorde and for the kynges palace, & made harpes & psalteries for syngers. There came no more suche Almuge trees, nor were any more sene vnto thys daye. And kynge Salomō gaue vnto the Quene of Saba accordynge to all her desyre whatsoeuer she asked: besydes that he gaue her of a free wyll wyth hys owne hande. And so she returned vnto her owne countreye: both she, and her seruauntes.

The weyght of golde that came to Salomō in one yeare, was syxe hundred thre score & syxe talentes of gold, besydes that he had of chapmē and of marchauntes & of Poticaries, & of all the kynges of Arabye, & of the lordes of the coūtrey And kynge Salomon made two hundred bouckelers of beaten golde, syxe hundred sycles of golde went to a bouckeler. And he made thre hundred shyldes of beaten golde, thre pounde of golde wente to one shylde, & the kynge put them in the ✻house of the wood of Lybanon.

and couered it wyth the best golde. And ỹ seate D had syxe steppes. And the toppe of the seat was rounde behynde, & there were pomels on eyther syde on the place of the seat, & two Lyons stode besyde the pomelles. And there stode. xii. Lions on the steppes. vi. on a syde. There was none lyke (worke) sene in any kyngdome. ✻And all Deu.xbii.a kynge Salomons drynkynge vesselles were of golde, and lykewyse al the vesselles of the house of the of the wood of Libanō were of pure golde. And as for syluer, it was nothyng worth in ỹ dayes of Salomon. For the kynges naup of shyppes went on the see vnto Tharsys with the naupe of Hirams shippes: euen ones in thre yeare wēt the naup to Tharsis, and brought gold and syl

And all the worlde resorted to Salomō, to heare his wysedom, which God had put in his hert. And brought hym euery man hys present, vessels of syluer, and vessels of golde, rayment, harnesse, and swete odoures, and horses and mules, peare by peare. And Salomō gathered together charrettes and horsemen: and he hadde a thousande and foure hūdred charrettes, and .xii. thousande horsemen whom he bestowed in the charret cyties, and with the kynge at Jerusalem.

ii.par.i.d * And the kynge made syluer in Jerusalē as plenteous as stones, and Cedar as plēteous as the wyld kygge trees that growe aboūdauntly in the feldes. The bryngynge of horses also out of Egypte: and the collectiō of the warres: dyd the kynges marchauntes take agayne, & solde the stuffe for a pryce. A charret came out of Egypte for .vi. hundred sycles of syluer: that is, one horse for an hundred and fyftye. And euen so for al the kynges of the Hethites and for the kynges of Siria, dyd they bryng them out, thorowe theyr handes.

Howbeit I wyl not take awaye all the kyngdome: But wyll geue one trybe to thy sonne, because of Dauid my seruaūt, & because of Jerusalē which I haue chosē.

And the Lorde stered vp an aduersary vnto C
Salomon: euen one Hadad an Edomite, of the kynges sede, whych was in Edom. For when Dauid was in Edom, and Joab the captayne of ỹ hoost was gone vp to bury them that were slayne, he smote all the men chyldren in Edom. For .vi. monethes dyd Joab remayne there and all Israel, tyll he had destroyed all the men children of Edom. And thys Hadad fled and certen other Edomites of hys seruauntes wyth hym, to come into Egypte: Hadad beynge yet a lytle chylde. And they arose out of Madiā, and came to Paran, and toke men wyth them out of Paran, and came to Egypte vnto Pharao kynge of Egypte, whyche gaue hym an house, and appoynted hym vytayles, and gaue hym lande.

of Pharao, so that he gaue hym to wyfe the syster of hys owne wyfe, euen the syster of Thahpenes the quene. And the syster of Thahpenes bare hym Genubath hys sonne, whom Thahpenes norished in Pharaos house. And Genubath was at Pharaos houshold amonge ỹ sonnes of Pharao. And when Hadad herde in Egypte, that Dauid was layde to slepe with his fathers and that Joab the captayne of ỹ host was dead also, he sayd to Pharao: let me depart, ỹ I may go to myne owne countrey. Pharao sayd vnto hym: what hast thou lacked here wyth me, that thou woldest thus go to thyne owne countrey? He answered: nothynge: howbeit let me go.

And God stered him vp another aduersary, one Rezon the sonne of Eliada, whych fled frō hys lorde Hodadezer kynge of Zoba. And he gathered men vnto hym, and became captayne ouer the company, when Dauid slue them. And they went to Damasco, and dwelte there, & raygned in Damasco. Therfore was he an aduersary to Israel all the dayes of Salomon. And thys was the myschefe, in that Hadad dyd abhorre Israell, and raygned ouer Siria.

But thys was the cause, that he lyfte vp hys hande agaynst the kynge: Salomō buylt Mello, and mended the broken places of the cytie of Dauid hys father. And thys felow Jeroboam was a man of warre. And Salomon sawe the yonge man that he was able to do the worke, he made him ruler ouer al ỹ charges of the house of Joseph. And it chaunced at that ceason, that Jeroboam wente out of Jerusalē, and the prophet Ahiab the Silonite met hym by the waye, hauynge a newe mantell on him, & they two were alone in the felde. Ahiab caught the newe mantell that was on him, and rent it in twelfe peces and sayd to Jeroboam: take the ten peces. For thys sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: behold, I wyl rent the kyngdome out of the hādes of Salomon, and wyll gyue ten trybes to the * and he shall haue one, for my seruaunte Dauids sake & for Jerusalē the cytie whych I haue chosen oute of all the tribes of Israel: because they haue forsakē me, and haue worshypped vnto Astharoth the God of the zidons, and Chamos the God of the Moabites, and Milcom the God of the chyldren of Ammō & haue not walked in my wayes (to fulfyll my pleasure, my statutes and my lawes) as dyd Dauid hys father.

I wyll not take the whole kyngdome out of hys handes: but I wyll make hym chefe all hys lyfe longe, for Dauid my seruauntes sake, whō I chose: because he kepte my commaundementes and my statutes. * But I wyl take ỹ kyngdome out of hys sonnes hande, and wyll gyue it vnto the, euen ten trybes of it, & vnto hys sonne wyll I geue one trybe that Dauid my seruaunt maye haue a lyght alwaye before me in Jerusalem, the cytie whych I haue chosē me, to put my name there. And I wyl take the, and thou shalt raygne accordinge to al that thy soule desyreth, and shalt be kynge ouer Israel. And yf thou herken vnto all that I cōmaūde the, & wylt walke in my wayes and do that is ryght in my syght, that thou kepe my statutes & my cōmaūdementes (as Dauid my seruaunt dyd) then wyll I be wyth the, and buylde the a sure house that shall continue, as I buylte for my seruaūt Dauid, & wyll geue Israel vnto the. And I wyll for thys offence (whych Salomon hath cōmytted) vexe the sede of Dauid, but not for euer.

Salomon sought therfore to kyl Jeroboam, and Jeroboam arose, and fled into Egypte vnto Sisak kynge of Egypte, and cōtinued there in Egypte vntyll the death of Salomon. The rest of the wordes that cōcerne Salomon, and all that he dyd, and hys wysedome: are they not wrytten in the boke of the wordes of Salomō? The tyme that Salomon raygned in Jerusalem vpon all Israel, was fourtye yeare. And Salomō slepte & he layd hym wyth hys fathers & was buryed in the cytie of Dauid his father, & Rehoboam hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

And Jeroboam made a feaste ꝑ xv. daye of the eyght moneth, lyke vnto ꝑ feast that is in Juda, & offered on the aultare. And so dyd he in Bethell, to offre vnto the calues ꝑ he had made. And he put in Bethel the pzeastes of the hyl aultares, whych he had made. And he offred burnt offrynges vpon the aultare, whyche he had made in Bethel, the. xv. day of the eyght moneth: euen in the moneth whych he had ymagined of hys owne herte: and made a solempne feast vnto the chyldzen of Israel, and offred vpō the aultare, and burnt incense.

¶ Jeroboam doynge sacrifyce vnto the calues, is repzehended of the Pzophete. Hys hāde dzyeth vp, whyle he putteth it out agaynst the pzophet. The pzophet is kylled, & buried

A AND beholde, there came a mā of God out of Juda (by the wozd of the Lozde) vnto Bethel, & Jeroboam stode by the altare to put incense. And he cryed against the aultare in the wozde of the Lozd & sayd. O aultare, aultare, thus sayeth the Lozde: Beholde, a chylde shalbe bozne vnto the house of Dauid, (Josia by name) & vpon the shall he offre the pzestes of the hyl aultares that burnt incense vpō the, and mennes bones shalbe bzente vpon the. And he gaue a token the same tyme, sayenge: thys is the token, that the Lozde hath spokē it. Behold the aultare shall rente, and the asshes that are vpon it, shall fall out.

And when the kynge herd the sayenge of the B man of God (whych had cryed agaynst the aultare in Bethel) he stretched out hys hande from the aultare, sayenge: holde hym. And hys hande whych he put fozth agaynst hym, dzyed vp, and he coulde not pul it in agayne to hym: the aultar also claue asunder, & the asshes fell out from the aultare, accozdynge to the tokē whych the man of God had geuen by the wozde of the Lozde. And the kynge answered, & sayd vnto the man of God. * Oh pzaye vnto the Lozde thy God, & Eph.iiii.b Nu.xii.b make intercession foz me, that my hande may be Actu.viii.c restozed me agayne. And the man of God besought the Lozd, and the kynges hande was restozed agayne, and became as it was afoze.

And the kynge sayd vnto the man of God, come home with me, that thou mayst dyne, and I wyl gyue the a reward. And the man of God sayd vnto the kynge: yf thou woldest geue me halfe thyne house, I wyl not go in wyth the, neither wyll I eate bzeade oz dzynke water in this place. ffoz so was it charged me, thozowe the wozde of the Lozde, sayenge: eate no bzeade noz dzynke water, noz turne againe by ꝑ same way that thou camest. And so he went another waye C & returned not by the waye that he came to Bethel. And there dwelt an olde pzophet in Bethel and hys sonnes came, and tolde hym all the wozkes, that the man of God had done that daye in Bethel, and the wozdes whyche he had spoken vnto the kinge tolde they theyz father also. And theyz father sayd vnto them: what waye wente he? And hys sonnes shewed hym what way the man of God wente, whych came from Juda. And he sayd vnto hys sonnes: sadle me the asse. Whyche when they had sadled, he gat hym vp theron, and wente after the man of God, and founde hym syttynge vnder a tre. And he sayde vnto hym: arte thou the man of God that camest from Juda? And he sayd: I am.

He sayd vnto hym: come home wyth me, and D eate bzeade. He answered: I maye not returne wyth the, to go in wyth the, neyther wyl I eate bzeade oz dzynke water wyth the in thys place. ffoz it was sayd to me in the wozde of the Lozd Thou shalte eate no bzeade, noz dzynke water there, noz turne agayne to go by the waye that thou camest. He sayd vnto him: I am a pzophet also as well as thou, & an angel spake vnto me in the name of the Lozd, sayeng: bzynge hym agayne wō the into thyne owne house, ꝑ he maye eate bzeade & dzynke water. And he lyed vnto hym. And so he wente agayne wyth hym, & dyd eate bzeade in hys house and dzanke water.

And it foztuned, ꝑ as they sat at the table, ꝑ wozde of the Lozde came vnto the pzophet, that E bzought him agayne. And he cryed vnto ꝑ man of God ꝑ came from Juda, sayeng: thus sayeth the Lozd: because thou hast disobeyed ꝑ mouth of the Lozde, & hast not kepte the cōmaundemēt which the Lozde thy God cōmaūded the: but camest backe agayne, & hast eaten bzead & dzonke water, in the place (concernynge the whych the

And so it came to passe, ý when he had eaten bread and dronke, the prophet whiche brought him agayne, saddled him an asse. And when he ii.reg.xiii.f. was gone, * a lyon met hym by the way, & slue him, and his carkasse was cast in the waye, and the asse stode therby, and the lyon stode by the coorse also. And men ý passed by, sawe the carkasse cast in the way, and the lyon standing therby: and they came & tolde it in the towne where the olde prophet dwelt. And when the prophete that brought hym backe agayne from the waye heard therof he sayde: it is the man of God: he was disobedient vnto ý word of the Lorde, and therfore the Lorde hath delyuered him vnto the lyon, whiche hath rent him and slayne hym, according to the worde of ý Lord, which he spake vnto hym. And he spake to his sonnes, sayinge: saddle me an asse: and so they dyd. And he went and found his body cast in the waye, and ý asse and the lyon stode by the coorse. And the lyon had not eaten the carkasse nor hurt the asse. And the Prophet toke vp the body of the mā of God and layed it vpō the asse, and brought it agayne and the olde Prophete came to the cytye, to lament, and to bury hym. And he layed his bodye in his owne graue, and they lamented ouer him (Alas, my brother.)

And when he had buryed him, he spake to his sonnes, saying: When I am deed, se that ye bury me in the sepulchre wherein the man of God is buryed: laye my bones besydes his boones.

iiii.regum xxiii.d * For the saying which he cryed at ý word of ý Lord agaynst the alter in Bethel (and agaynst all the houses of hylaulters which are in the cyties of Samarie) shall come to passe.

Howbeit, for al that, Jeroboam conuerted not from his wycked waye: but turned backe & made of ý lowest of the people prestes of ý hylaulters. And whoso pleased hym, he fylled hys hande, and became preest of the hilaulters. And this thyng turned to syn vnto the house of Jeroboam, euen to destroye hym, and to bringe hym to nought from the face of the earth.

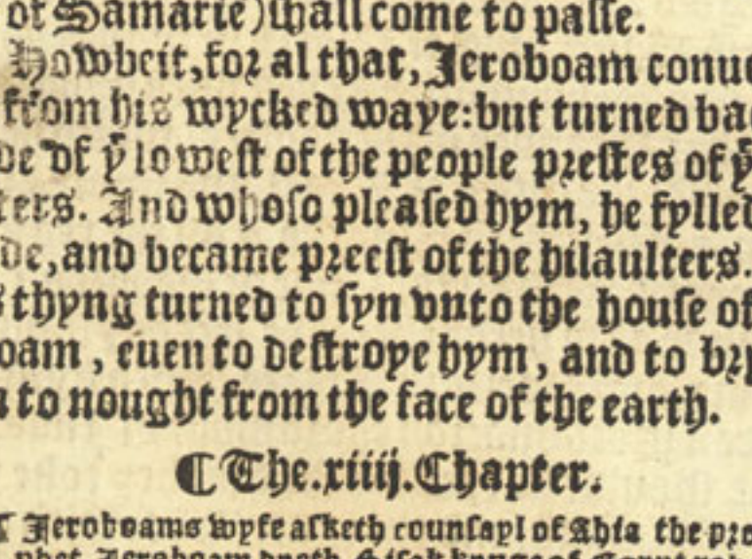
¶ Jeroboams wyfe asketh counsayl of Ahia the prophet. Jeroboam dyeth. Sisak kynge of Egypt robbeth the house of the Lorde. Rehoboam dyeth, and Abiam succedeth hym.



AT that tyme Abia the sonne of Jeroboā fell sycke. And Jeroboam sayde vnto hys wyfe: vp (I praye the) and disguyse thy selfe, ý thou be not knowen to be ý wyfe of Jeroboā, & get the to Silo. For there is Ahia ý prophet which told me * ý I shuld be king ouer this ii.reg.xi.f people. And take wt the ten loues & cracknels, & a cruse of hony, and go to hym, ý he may tell the what shal become of the chylde. And Jeroboās wyfe dyd so: and arose, and went to Silo, and came to the house of Ahia. But Ahia could not se, for his eyes were waxen dymme for age.

B And the Lorde sayde vnto Ahia: beholde, the wyfe of Jeroboā cōmeth to aske a thyng of the for her son, for he is sycke. But thus shalte thou saye vnto her: And when she came in, she feyned her selfe to be an other woman. But whē Ahia herde the sounde of her feet as she came in at the doore, he sayd: come in thou wyfe of Jeroboam, why feynest thou thy selfe to be an othe r? I am sent to the to shewe the heuye thynges.

C Go tel Jeroboam, thus sayth the Lord God of Israel. (It repēteth me) for asmoch as * Jex.re.xvi.a alted the frō amonge the people, and made the prince ouer my people Israel: I dyd rēt the kingdom away frō the house of Dauid & gaue it the: Neuertheles, thou hast not ben as my seruaūt Dauid, whiche kept my cōmaundementes, and folowed me with all his hert, to do that whiche is right in myne eyes: but hast done euyl aboue all that were before the: for thou hast gone and made the other goddes, and molten ymages, to prouoke me, and hast cast me behynde thy back: therfore beholde, I wyll bringe euyll vpon the house of Jeroboam, and wyl roote out from Je roboam euen hym that * pysseth agaynste the i.Re.xv.b.d wall, and hym that is in prison and forsaken in Israel, and wyll take awaye the remnaunte of the house of Jeroboam, as a man taketh away donge, tyll he hath caryed out all.

D * Whosoeuer (of Jeroboās house) dye in the ii.re.xvi.g towne, hym shall the dogges eate: and he ý dyeth in the felde shal the foules of the ayre eat: for the Lorde hathe sayde it. Up therfore, and get the to thyne house. Behold, whē thy fote entreth into the cytie the chylde shall dye. And all they of Israel shall mourne for hym, and bury hym: for he only of Jeroboam shal come to the sepulchre, bycause in hym there is founde goodnesse towarde the Lorde God of Israel in the house of Jeroboam. Moreouer, the Lorde shall stirre hym vp a kynge ouer Israel which shal destroy the house of Jeroboam in that daye. But what is it now? For the Lorde shall smyte Israel, as when a reed is shaken in the water, and he shal wede Israel out of this good lande (whiche he gaue to theyr fathers) and shal scattre them beyonde the ryuer, bycause they haue made them groues, and angred the Lord. And he shal gyue Israel vp, bycause of the synnes of Jeroboam, which dyd synne, and made Israel to synne.

E And Jeroboams wyfe arose, and departed, and came to Thirzah, and when she came to the threshold of the doore, the childe was deed. And all Israel buryed hym, and lamented hym, according to the word of the Lord which he spake by the hand of his seruaunt Ahia the Prophet. And the rest of ý wordes that cōcerne Jeroboā howe he warred, and hou he raygned. Beholde they are wrytten in the boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. And the dayes whiche Jeroboam raygned were .xxij. yere. And when he was layed asleepe with his fathers, Nadab his sonne raygned in his stede.

F Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon raygned in Juda, and Rehoboam was .xli. yere old whē he begā to raygne, and raygned .xvii. yere in Jerusalem (the cytie which the Lord dyd chose out of all the tribes of Israel, to put his name there) His mothers name was Naama an ammonite. And Juda wrought wickednesse in ỹ syght of ỹ Lord, and angred him in mo thinges then theyr fathers dyd in theyr synnes which they synned. For they also made thē hyalters, ymages, and groues on euery hye hyll, & vnder euery thycke tree. And there was a stues of male childrē in ỹ land, & they dyd according to all the abhominacions of ỹ nacions which ỹ Lord cast out before the childzen of Israel. And it fortuned, ỹ in the fyfte yere of kyng Rehobeam: Sisak kyng of Egipt came vp agaynst Jerusalem, and toke away ỹ treasures of the house of the Lorde, and ỹ G treasures of the kynges house, & spoyled all that was to be had. And he toke away the shildes of 3.reg.x.d. golde * whiche Salomon had made. In whose stede kynge Rehoboam made brasen shyldes, and commytted them vnto the handes of the kepyng of the captaynes of the garde, which wayted at the doore of the kynges house. And when the kynge went into the house of the Lord, they of the garde bare them, and broughte them agayne into the garde chambre.

The rest of the wordes that concerne Rehoboam, and all that he dyd, are they not wrytten in ỹ boke of the Chronicles of ỹ kinges of Juda? And there was warre betwene Reyoboam and Jeroboam all theyr lyues. And Rehoboā slept with his fathers, and was buryed besyde his fathers in the cytie of Dauid. His mothers name was Naama an Ammonite. And Abiam hys sonne raygned in his stede.

The .xv. Chapter.

Wycked Abiam raygneth ouer Juda: and ryghtous Asa succedeth in his roume. The battayle bytwene Asa and Baasa. Iehosaphat succedeth Asa. Nadab succedeth Jeroboam. Baasa kylleth Nadab.

A 3.par.xiv.a IN the .xviij. yere of kyng * Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, raygned Abiam ouer Juda. Thre yeare raygned he in Jerusalē, and his mothers name was Maacha, the doughter of Abisalom. And he walked in all the synnes of his father, whiche he had done before hym: and his herte was not perfect with the Lorde his God * as the hert of Da- 3.re.iii.c. uid his father. Neuertheless, for Dauids sake dyd the Lorde his God gyue hym a lyght in Jerusalem, that he set vp his sonne after hym, and to stablysh Jerusalem: bycause Dauid dyd that which was ryght in the syght of the Lorde, and turned from nothynge that he cōmaunded him all the dayes of his lyfe * saue onely in the mat- 3.reg.xv.a ter of Vrias the Hethite. And there was warre betwene Roboam and Jeroboam as long as they lyued. The rest of the wordes that cōcerne Abiam, and all that he dyd, are they not wrytten in the booke of the Chronicles of the kinges of Juda? And there was warre betwene Abiam and Jeroboam. And Abiam slepte with his fathers: and they buryed hym in the cytie of Dauid. And Asa his sonne raygned in his stede: B

* In the .xx. yere of Jeroboam kyng of Israel 3.pa.xiii.a raygned Asa ouer Juda. xli. yere raygned he in Jerusalem, and his mothers name was Maacha, the doughter of Abisalom. And Asa dyd ỹ semed ryght in the eyes of the Lorde, as did Dauid his father. * And he toke awaye the whore- 3.re.xxii.g kepers oute of the lande, and put awaye all the C abhominable ydols that his father had made. 2.par.xv.d And he put downe * Maacha his mother from bearyng rule, bycause she had made ymages in groues. And Asa destroyed her ymages, and burnt them by the brooke Cedron. But the hyl aulters were not put downe. Neuertheless, Asaes herte was perfecte with the Lorde al hys dayes. He brought in the holye vessels of his father (and ỹ he had dedicate) vnto the house of ỹ Lorde: golde and syluer, and iewels. And there was warre betwene Asa and Baasa kynge of Israel all theyr dayes.

* And Baasa kynge of Israel went vp a- D gaynst Juda, and buylt Rama, so ỹ he wold let 3.pa.xvi.a none go out or in, to Asa kynge of Juda. Then Asa toke all the golde & syluer ỹ was left in the treasures of ỹ house of ỹ Lorde, & the treasures of the kynges house, & delyuered them into the handes of his seruauntes, and Asa sent them to * Benhadad the sonne of Tabrimon the sonne 3.re.xv.a of Hezion kynge of Siria (that dwelte at Damasco) saying: there is a bonde betwene the and me, betwene my father and thy father. And beholde, I haue sent vnto the a present of syluer, and gold, ỹ thou come & breake the bond ỹ thou hast wt Baasa king of Israel ỹ he may depart fro me. So Benhadad herkened vnto kyng Asa; & sent the captaynes of the hoostes (which he had) agaynste the cyties of Israel, and smote Hyon & Dan, & Abel Beth Maacha, & all the regyon of E Cineroth, with all the lande of Nephthali. And when Baasa herde therof he left buyldynge of Rama, and dwelte in Thirza. Then kyng Asa made a proclamacion thorowout al Juda, that none shoulde be excused. And so they toke ỹ stones of Ramah, and the ryuer (wherwith Baasa had buylded) & kynge Asa buylt with thē the hyl of Ben Jamin and Mizpa. The rēnaunt of all the wordes ỹ cōcerne Asa, and all his might and all that he dyd, & the cyties whiche he buylded, are they not wrytten in the booke of ỹ chronycles of the kynges of Juda? Neuertheless, in his old age he was diseased in his fete. And Asa slept with his fathers, and was buried besydes his fathers in the cytye of Dauid hys father. And * Iehosaphat his son raygned in his stede. 3.pa.xvii.a And Nadab the sonne of Jeroboam beganne to 3.mac.i.b raygne vpō Israel the seconde yere of Asa kyng of Juda, and raygned vpon Israell two yere. And he dyd euyll in the syght of the Lorde, walkyng in the waye of his father, and in his synne wherwith he made Israel syn. And Baasa ỹ son of Abia of Ahia (which was of ỹ house of Isachar, conspyred agaynst hym, and Baasa smote hym at Gibbethon which is a cytie of ỹ Philistines, for Nadab and all Israel layed siege to Gibbethō. Euen in the thyrde yere of Asa kynge of Juda, dyd Baasa slaye hym, and raygned in his stede.

iii.re.xiiij. *And it fortuned, that when he was kynge he smote all the house of Jeroboam, and lefte hym nought that breathed, vntyll he had put hym cleane out, accordynge to the saying of ỹ Lorde which he spake by his seruaunt Ahia the Selonite: bycause of the synnes of Jeroboam wherwith he synned, and made Israel syn, whēby his prouocatiō angred ỹ Lorde God of Israel.

G The rest of the wordes that concerne Nadab and all that he dyd, are they not wrytten in the booke of the Chronicles of the kinges of Israel? And there was warre betwene Asa and Baasa kyng of Israel all theyr dayes.

So in the thyrde yere of Asa kynge of Juda, began Baasa the sonne of Ahia to raygne ouer all Israel in Thirza. xxiiij. yeare. And he dyd that whiche is euyll in the syghte of the Lorde, walkynge in the waye of Jeroboam, and in his synne, which made Israel to synne.

¶ Jehu prophecyeth agaynst Baasa, whom Ela succedeth. Zimri kylleth his maister Ela, and destroyeth the house of Baasa. Ahab succedeth Amri, and taketh to wyfe wycked Jezabel.

A THen the worde of the Lorde came to Jehu the sonne of Hanani agaynste Baasa, sayinge: for as moche as I exalted the out of the dust, and made the captayne ouer my people Israel, and ỹ hast walked in the waye of Jeroboā, and hast made my people Israel to synne, to angre me wt theyr synnes: Beholde, I wyl roote out the posteritie of Baasa, and the posteritie of his house, & wyl make his house lyke the house of Jeroboam the

B The rest of the wordes that concerne Baasa and what he dyd, and hys power, are they not wrytten in the booke of the Chronycles of the kynges of Israel? And so Baasa slept with his fathers, and was buryed in Thirza. And Ela his sonne raygned in his stede. And by the hand of the prophet Jehu the sonne of Hanani, came the worde of the Lorde agaynst Baasa, and agaynst his house, and agaynste all the wyckednesse that he dyd in the sight of the Lorde (in angrynge hym with the worke of his owne handes) that he shoulde be lyke the house of Jero-

C The. xxvi. yere of Asa kynge of Juda began Ela, the sonne of Baasa to raygne ouer Israell in Thirza, two yere. And his seruaunte Zimri, (whiche was captayne of halfe his charettes) conspyred agaynst hym, as he was in Thirza drynking: and was dronke in the house of Arza stuarde of his house in Thirza. And Zimri came and smote hym, and kylled hym in ỹ. xxvii. yere of Asa kynge of Juda, and raygned in his stede And it fortuned that when he was kyng, *and sate on his seate, he slue all the house of Baasa, not leauyng thereof one to ypsse agaynst a wal. Yea, he slue his kynsfolkes and frēdes also. And thus dyd Zimri destroye all the house of Baasa, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde which he spake agaynst Baasa by the hande of Jehu the prophet, for al the synnes of Baasa and synnes of Ela his sonne, whiche they synned and made Israel to synne, and angre the Lorde God of Israel with theyr vanities. The rest of the wordes that concerne Ela, and all he dyd: are they not wrytten in the booke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel? Exo. xvi.b. i.reg. ii.b.

In the. xxvii. yere of Asa kyng of Juda dyd D Zimri raygne. vij. dayes in Thirza, and ỹ people was then in the hoost besieging Gebbethon a cytie of the Philistines. And the people of the hoost herde one saye: Zimri hath conspyred, and slayne the kynge: wherfore all they of Israell made Amri (the captayne of the hooste) kynge ouer Israel that same daye, euen in the hooste. And Amri departed vp from Gibbethon, and all Israel with hym, and they besieged Thirza. And when Zimri sawe, that ỹ cytie must nedes be taken, he went into the palace of the kynges house, and burnt him selfe and the kynges house with fyre, and so dyed for his synnes which he synned, in doing that which is euyl in the syght of the Lorde, and in walkynge in the waye of Jeroboam and his synnes which he dyd, and in that he made Israel to synne.

The rest of the wordes that concerne Zimri, E and the treason that he wrought, are they not wrytten in ỹ boke of the Chronicles of ỹ kynges of Israel? Then were the people of Israel deuyded into two partes, for halfe ỹ people folowed Thibni the sonne of Ginath makyng him king and the other halfe folowed Amri. But the people that folowed Amri preuayled agaynst the people that folowed Thibni the sonne of Ginath. And so Thibni dyed, and Amri raygned.

In the. xxxi. yere of Asa kyng of Juda began Amri to raygne ouer Israel twelue yere. Syxe yere raygned he in Thirza. He bought the hyll Schomrō of one Schemar for two talentes of syluer, and buylt in the hyl, and called the name of the citie which he buylt after ỹ name of Schemar whiche had ben owner of the hyll Schomron. But Amri wrought that which was euyl in the eyes of the Lorde, and dyd worse then all that were before hym. For he walked in all the way of Jeroboā the sonne of Nabat, and in his synnes that made Israel synne: to angre ỹ Lord God of Israel with theyr vanities. The rest of the wordes that concerne Amri, and all that he dyd, and his strength that he shewed: are they not wrytten in the booke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel? And so Amri slepte with his fathers, and was buryed in Schomron, and Ahab his sonne raygned in his stede.

In the. xxxviij. yere of Asa king of Juda begā F Ahab ỹ sonne of Amri to raygne ouer Israel, & the same Ahab the sonne of Amri raygned ouer

Israel in Samaria. xxii. yeere. And Ahab the sonne of Amri dyd euyl in the syght of the Lord aboue all that were before hym. For it semed vnto him but a lyght thing to walke in the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat. He toke Jezabel also the doughter of Ethbaall kyng of

In his dayes dyd Hiel of Bethel buylde Jericho. And it* cost him Abiram his eldest sonne

¶ And Elia sayd vnto her: feare not, come, and do as thou hast sayde, but make me therof a lytle cake fyrst of all: and bringe it vnto me, and afterwarde make for the, and thy sonne. For thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: the mele in the barell shal not be wasted: neyther shall the oyle in the cruse be diminisshed, vntyl the Lord haue sent rayne vpon the earth. ¶ The. xviij. Chapter.

AFter processe of many dayes the word A of the Lorde came to Elia in the third yere, sayinge: go shewe thy selfe vnto Ahab, and I * wyll sende rayne vpō Deut. xi. b Jacob. b. c. the earth. And Elia went to shewe hym selfe vnto Ahab, and there was a great famishment in Schomron. And Abud called Obadia, whiche was ẏ gouernour of his house: and Obadia feared God greatly: For when Jebabel destroyed the prophetes of ẏ Lord, he toke an hūdred prophetes and hyd them, fyftie men in one caue and fyftye in an other, and prouyded breed and water for them. And Ahab sayde vnto Obadia: go into the lande, vnto all the fountaynes of water, & vnto all the brookes, yf happely we may fynde grasse to saue the horses and the mules, & that we destroye not some of the beastes. And so they deuyded the lande betwene thē to walke thorowe it. Ahab went one waye by hym selfe, and Obadia went an other waye by hym selfe.

B And it chaunced, that as Obadia was in the waye, Elia met hym. And Obadia knewe him: and fell on his face, and sayde: arte not thou my lorde Elia? And he answered hym: I am he. Go and tel thy lorde: beholde, Elia is here: He sayd: what haue I synned, that thou woldest delyuer thy seruaũt into ỹ hãd of Ahab, to slaye me? As truly as the Lord thy God liueth, there is no nacion or kyngdom, whither my lord hath not sẽt to seke the. And when they sayd: he is not there, he toke an oth of the kyngdom and nacion, whẽ he founde the not. And now thou sayest: go and tell thy lorde, that Elia is here. And as soone as I am gone from the, the spyrite of the Lorde shal cary the into some place ỹ I do not knowe, and so when I come, and tell Ahab, and he can not fynde the, he shall slaye me. But I thy seruaunt feare the Lorde fro my youth vp. Was it not tolde my lorde, what I dyd when Jezabel slue the Prophetes of the Lorde, howe I hyd an hundred men of the Lordes Prophetes, fyftye men in one caue, and fyftye in an other, and prouyded them of breed and water? And now thou sayest: go thou now and shewe thy lorde, behold Elia is here, that he maye slaye me?

C And Elia sayde: as trulye as the Lorde of hoostes lyueth, before whom I stande, I wyll shewe my selfe vnto hym this daye. So Obadia went to mete Ahab, and tolde hym. And Ahab went to mete Elia. And it fortuned, that when Ahab sawe Elia, he sayde vnto hym: arte thou he that troubleth Israel? He answered: it is not I that haue troubled Israel, but thou, and thy fathers house, in that ye haue forsaken the cõmaundementes of the Lorde, & thou hast folowed Baal. Now therfore sende, and gather to me all Israel, vnto moũt Carmel, & the prophetes of Baal *foure hundred and fyftye, and the prophetes of the groues foure hundred, whiche eate of Jezabels table. So Ahab sente vnto all the chyldren of Israel: and gathered the prophetes together vnto mount Carmel.

D And Elia came vnto all the people, and sayd howe longe halte ye betwene two opinions? Yf the Lorde be God, folowe hym: but yf Baal be he, then go after hym. And the people answered hym not a worde. Then sayd Elia vnto the people agayne: I onely remayne a Prophete of the Lorde: But Baals prophetes are foure hũdred and fyftye. Let them therfore gyue vs two oxẽ and let them chose the one, and cut hym in peces, and laye hym on wood, and put no fyre vnder, and I wyll dresse the other oxe and laye hym on wood, and wyll put no fyre vnder. And call ye on the name of your god, and I wyll call on the name of the Lorde: and then the God that answereth by fyre, let hym be God.

E *And all the people answered, and sayd: it is wel spoken. And Elia sayd vnto the prophetes of Baal: chose you an oxe, and dresse hym fyrst, (for ye are many) and call on the name of youre goddes, but put no fyre vnder. And they toke the one oxe that he did gyue them, and they dressed it, * and called on the name of Baal, from morynge to noone: saying: O Baal heare vs.

But there was no voyce, nor one to answere. ¶ The.xx. Chapter.

¶ The fyrst and seconde tyme that Samaria was besieged of Benhadad kynge of Siria.

AND Benhadad the kyng of Siria gathered all the hoost togyther, hauyng xxxij. kynges with him, and horses, & charettes: and went vp, and besieged Samaria, & warred agaynst it. And he sēt messengers to Ahab kynge of Israel, into ẏ cytie, & sayd vnto him: thus sayth Benhadad: Thy syluer & thy golde is myne, & the fayrest of thy wyues & of thy childzen be myne. And the kyng of Israel answered, & sayd: My lorde kyng accordyng to thy saying, I am thyne, & all ẏ I haue.

And whē the messengers came agayne, they sayd: thus sayeth Benhadad: For as moche as I haue sent vnto the, saying: thou shalt delyuer me thy syluer and thy golde, and thy wiues and thy childzen: I wyl therfore sende my seruauntes vnto the tomorowe this tyme: and they shal searche thyne house, and the houses of thy seruauntes. And what soeuer is pleasaūt in thyne eyes, they shal take it in theyr hādes, and bring it awaye. Then the kynge of Israel sent for all the elders of the lande, & sayd: take hede I pray you, and se how this felow goeth about mischef. For he sent vnto me for my wyues, for my childzen, for my syluer and for my golde: and I denyed hym not. And all the elders and all the people sayde: herken not vnto hym, nor consent.

Wherfore he sayde vnto the messengers of Benhadad: tel my lorde the kyng, all that thou dyddest send for to thy seruaunt at ẏ fyrst tyme that I wil do, but this thing I may not do. And the messengers departed and brought answere agayne. And Benhadad sēt vnto hym agayne and sayde: thus and thus do the goddes to me, yf the dust of Samaria be ynough for al ẏ people that folowe me, to take euery man an handfull. And the kynge of Israel aunswered, and sayd: tell hym: Let not hym that putteth on his harnesse boost him selfe, as he that putteth it of.

And it fortuned, that when Benhadad hearde, that tydynges as he was with the kynges dryn kyng within the paulions, he sayd vnto his ser uaũtes: put on your harneſſe, and they ſet themſelues in araye agaynſt the cytie.

C And beholde, there came a prophete vnto Ahab kyng of Iſrael, saying: thus sayth the Lord Haſt thou ſene all this greate multitude? Behold, I wyl delyuer it into thyne hand this day and thou ſhalte knowe, that I am the Lorde. And Ahab sayd: by whom? He sayde thus sayth the Lorde: euen by the ſeruauntes of the gouernours of the shyres. He sayd agayne: Who ſhall ordre the battayle? And he anſwered: thou. Thẽ he nombred the ſeruaũtes of the gouernours of the shyres, and they were two hundred & .xxxii. And after them alſo he nombred all the people, all the chyldren of Iſrael euen ſeuen thouſande. And they wente oute at noone: but Benhadad dyd drynke tyll he was dronken in the paulyons, bothe he and the kynges: euen. xxxii. kynges, that holpe hym. And the ſeruauntes of the gouernours of the shyres went out fyrſt.

D And Bẽhadad ſẽt out, and they ſhewed him ſayinge: there are men come oute of Samaria. He sayde: Whether they be come out for peace, take thẽ alyue: or whether they be come oute to fight, take them yet alyue. And ſo thoſe younge men of the gouernours of ỹ shyres came out of ỹ cytie, & the hooſt after them, and they ſlue euery one his enemie ỹ came in his waye. And the Sirians fled, and they of Iſrael folowed after thẽ. And Benhadad the kynge of Syria eſcaped on an horſe with his horſemen. And the kynge of Iſrael went out, and ſmote the horſes & charettes, and wt a great ſlaughter ſlue he ỹ Sirians.

And there came a Prophet to the kynge of Iſrael, and ſayde vnto hym: go forthe, and playe the man, be wyſe and take hede what thou doſt: for when the yere is gone aboute, the kynge of Syria wyll come vp agaynſt the. And ỹ ſeruaũtes of the kynge of Syria ſayd vnto hym: The goddes of the hylles are theyr goddes, and ther fore they had the better of vs: but let vs fyghte agaynſt them in ỹ playne, and for what ye wyl we ſhall haue the better of them. And this doo: take the kynges awaye euerye man out of hys place, and put dukes in theyr roumes. And doo thou nombre the an hooſt, lyke the hooſt ỹ thou haſt loſt ſuche horſes and ſuche charettes, & we wyll fyght agaynſt thẽ in the playne, and thou ſhalt ſe vs get the better of them. And he herkened vnto theyr voyce, and dyd euen ſo.

E And it fortuned, that after the yere was gone about, Benhadad nombred ỹ Sirians, & went vp to Aphek to fyght agaynſt Iſrael. And the chyldren of Iſrael were nombred, and wt theyr hole nombre went they agaynſte them, and the childrẽ of Iſrael pitched before them, lyke two lytle flockes of kyddes: but the Sirians fylled the countrye: And there came a mã of God, and ſayde vnto the kynge of Iſrael: thus ſayeth the Lorde: Bycauſe the Sirians haue ſayde: the Lord is but God of the hylles, & not God of the valleyes: therfore wyl I delyuer all this greate multitude into thyne hande, and ye ſhal knowe that I am the Lorde. And they pitched one ouer agaynſt the other ſeuen dayes, & it came to paſſe that in ỹ ſeuenth daye the battayle was ioyned. And the chyldren of Iſrael ſlue of the Sirians an hũdred thouſande fotemen in one daye. But the reſt fled to Aphek into the cytie. And there fell a wall vpon .xxvii. thouſande of the men that were left e. And Benhadad fled, and came into the cytie, from chambre to chambre.

And his ſeruaũtes ſayd vnto hym. Beholde F we haue herd saye: ỹ the kynges of ỹ houſe of Iſrael are mercyfull kynges. We wyl therfore put ſakcloth about our loynes and ropes about our neckes, & go out to the kyng of Iſrael: ikhappely he wyll ſaue thy lyfe. And ſo they gyrded ſakcloth about theyr loynes, and put ropes aboute theyr hedes, & cam to the kyng of Iſrael, & ſayd: Thy ſeruaunt Benhadad ſayth: I praye the let me lyue. He sayde: is he yet alyue? he is my brother. And they toke that word for good lucke, & haſtly caught it out of his mouth, and ſayd: yea thy brother Benhadad. He ſayd: go, bryng him hyther. And Benhadad came oute vnto hym, & he cauſed hym to come vp into ỹ charet. And he ſayd vnto him: the cyties which my father toke frõ thy father I wyll reſtore agayne. And thou ſhalt make ſtretes for ỹ in Damaſco, as my father dyd in Samaria. And I wyll make an appoyntmẽt with the, & ſende the away. And ſo he made an appoyntmẽt wt him, & ſent him away.

And there was a certayne man of ỹ chyldrẽ of G the prophetes, which ſayd vnto his neyghbour in the worde of the Lorde: ſmite me I pray the. And ỹ mã wold not ſmyte him. Then ſayd he vnto him: bycauſe thou haſt not herkened vnto the voyce of ỹ Lord: behold, aſſoone as thou art departed fro me a lyon ſhall ſlaye the. And when the kyng came by, he cryed vnto ỹ kyng, & ſayd: thy ſeruaũt went out in ỹ myddes of the battayl: & beholde, there went a way a man, whõ an other man brought vnto me, and ſayd: kepe this man And if he be miſſed or loſt, thy life ſhal go for his or els thou ſhalt paye a talent of ſyluer. And as thy ſeruaũt had here & there to do, he was gone And ỹ king of Iſrael ſayd vnto him: euẽ ſo ſhall thy iudgement be, as ỹ haſt defined it thy ſelfe.

And he haſted, and toke the aſſhes awaye frõ his face: and the kyng of Iſrael knewe him that he was of the Prophetes: And he ſayde vnto hym: thus ſayth the Lorde: bycauſe thou haſt let go a man that is in my curſe, thy lyfe ſhall goo for his lyfe: and thy people for his people. And the king of Iſrael went to his houſe, wayward and in diſpleaſure, and came to Samaria:

I goo agaynst Ramoth in Gilead to battayle, or shall I let it alone? And they sayde go vp: for the Lorde shall delyuer it into the handes of the kynge. And Jehosaphat sayde: is there here neuer a prophet of the Lord more, ẏ we myght enquyre of hym? And the kyng of Israel sayd vnto Jehosaphat: there is yet one man (Michea ẏ sonne of Jimla) by whom we maye aske coun-sayle of the Lorde. But I hate him, for he doeth not prophecie good vnto me, but euyl. And Je-hosaphat sayd: let not the kyng say so. Then the kyng of Israel called a chamberlayne, and sayd fet Michea the sonne of Jimla hyther at ones.

B And the kynge of Israel and Jehosaphat the kynge of Juda set either in his seate, and they apparell on them: in a voyde place besyde ẏ en-tryng in of the gate of Samaria, and all ẏ Prosonne of Canaana made hornes of yron, & sayd:

thus sayeth the Lorde: with these hornes shalt thou push the Syrians, vntyll thou haue made an ende of them. And all the prophetes prophe-cyed euen so: sayinge: Go vp to Ramoth in Gilead, and prospere, for the Lorde shall delyuer it into the kynges hande.

C And the messenger that was gone to cal Mi-des of the prophetes speake good vnto the king with one mouth: let thy word therfore (I pray the) be lyke the worde of euerye one of them, to speake that which is good. And Michea sayde:

as truly as the Lord liueth, whatsoeuer ẏ Lord sayeth vnto me, that wyll I speake. And so he came to the kynge: and the kyng sayd vnto him Michea, ought we to goo agaynste Ramoth in ij pa.xviii. a.b.c.d. vnto hym: *go, and prospere, the Lord shal de-lyuer it into the hande of the kynge. And ẏ kyng sayde vnto hym: So and so many tymes do I which is true in the name of the Lorde. He sayd:

I sawe all them of Israel scattred vpon the hil-les, as shepe that haue not a shepherde. And the Lorde sayd: these haue no master, let euery man returne vnto his house in peace. And the kynge of Israel sayd vnto Jehosaphat: dyd I not tell the, that he wolde prophcye no good vnto me, but euyll? And he sayd agayne: heare thou therfore the worde of the Lorde. I sawe the Lord sit on his seate, and all the hoost of heauen stode a-
ij.pa.xviii. b Lorde sayd: *Who shal persuade Ahab that he maye go and fall at Ramoth in Gilead? And one sayde on this maner, and an other on that.
And there came forth a certayne spyryte, & stode before ẏ Lorde, and sayde: I wyl persuade hym.
And the Lorde sayde vnto hym wherewith?

D And he sayd: I wyl go out, and be a false spi rit in the mouth of all his prophetes. He sayde:
thou shalt persuade him, and preuayle, go forth then, and doo euen so. Nowe therfore holde, mouthe of all these thy Prophophetes, and the Lorde hath spoken euyll to warde the.

But Zedekia the sonne of Canaana went to and smote Michea on the cheke, and sayd: when went the spyryte of the Lorde from me, to speake vnto the? And Michea sayd: behold, ẏ shalt se in ẏ day, when thou shalt go from chābre to chambre to hyde the. And the kynge of Israel sayde:
Take Michea, and cary him vnto Amon the go uernour of the citie, and vnto Joab the kynges sonne, and say, thus sayth the kyng: Put this fe lowe in ẏ prison house, and fede him with breed of affliction, and with water of trouble, vntyll turne in peace, the Lord hath not spoken by me.

And he sayd: herken ye people euery one of you.

And Mesa kynge of Moab was a lorde of shepe, and rendred vnto the kynge of Israel an hundred thousand lambes, and an hūdred thousande rammes with the woll. But when Ahab was deed, it fortuned, that the kynge of Moab rebelled agaynst the kynge of Israel. And king Jehoram wente out of Samaria the same season, and nombred all Israel, and went, and sēt to Jehosaphat the kynge of Juda, sayinge: the kynge of kyng of Moab hath offended agaynst me, wilt thou come with me agaynst Moab to battayle? And he answered: The waye thorowe the wylderneße of Edom.

B And so the kyng of Israel toke his iourneye and the kyng of Juda, and the kynge of Edom And when they had compaßed the waye seuen dayes, they had no water for the hooste, and for the cattell that folowed them. And the kynge of Israel sayde: Alas, the Lorde hath called these thre kynges togyther, to delyuer them ouer into the hande of Moab. But Jehosaphat sayde:

ii.re.xvii.a *is there not here a Prophete of the Lorde, that we maye enquyre of the Lorde by hym? And one of the kynge of Israels seruauntes answered, and sayde: Here is Elisa the sonne of Saphat, whiche poured water on the handes of Elia. And Jehosaphat sayd: Is not the worde of the Lorde with hym? And so the kynge of Israel, and Jehosaphat, and the kyng of Edom went downe to hym.

C And Elisa sayde vnto the kynge of Israel: what haue I to do with the? Get the to the prophetes of thy father and to the prophetes of thy mother. And the kyng of Israel sayd vnto him Oh, naye. For the Lorde hath called these thre kynges togyther to delyuer them into the hand of Moab. And Elisa sayde: as sure as the Lorde of hostes lyueth (in whose syght I stande) and it were not, that I regarde the presence of Jehosaphat the kynge of Juda, I wolde not loke towarde the, nor yet se the.

But nowe bringe me a mynstrel. And when the mynstrell played, the hande of the Lord cam vpon hym. And he sayde: thus sayth the Lorde: Make this playne grounde full of dyches. And they were vp early in the morynge and the sunne shone vpon the water, that the Moabytes sawe the water afarre of, as red as bloud and they sayde: this is the bloude of slaughter: the kynges are slayne, and one hath smytten another. And they ouerthrewe the cyties: and on euerye good parcell of lande cast euery man his stone, and fylled it, and they stopte all the welles of water, and felled all the good trees. Onelye in the cytie of Kyrcke left they the stones thereof: howbeit they went about it with slynges, and smote it.

And when the kyng of Moab sawe that the battayle was sore agaynste hym, he toke with hym seuen hundred men that drue the swearde to haue goone thorowe, euen vnto the kynge of Edom: but they could not. And then he toke his eldest sonne (that shoulde haue raygned in hys stede) and offred hym for a burntoffrynge vpon the wall. THe chyldren of the prophetes sayd vnto Elisa: Beholde, the place where we A dwell with the is to lytle for vs. We will therfore go vnto Jordã, and take thẽce euery mã a beme, and buylde vs a place to dwel in. And he answered: go. And one sayd: be cõtent (I praye the) & com wt thy seruaũtes. And he answered: I wil come, and so he wẽt wt them

And whẽ they came to Jordã they cut downe wood. But it fortuned, that as one was felling downe of a tree, the axe heed fell into the water. And he cryed, and sayd: alas master, it was lent me. And the man of God sayd: where fel it? And he shewed hym the place. And he cut downe a stycke, and cast it in thyther, and immediatlye the yron dyd swym. Therfore sayde he: take it vp. And he stretched out his hand, & toke it vp.

But ỹ kyng of Syria warred agaynst Israel B and toke coũsayl wt his seruaũtes, and sayd: In yondre secrete place shalbe my remayning. And the man of God sent vnto the kynge of Israel, sayinge: Beware that thou go not ouer to suche a place, for there the Syrians are lurkyng. Therfore the kyng of Israel sent to the place which ỹ man of God told him, and warned hym of, and saued hym selfe from it, not ones, nor twyse.

And the hert of the kyng of Syria was troubled for this thing, & he called for his seruaũtes and sayd vnto them: wyl ye not shewe me which of our men o* (betrayeth me) to the kynge of Israel? And one of his seruaũtes sayde: none my lorde, O kynge, but Elisa ỹ prophet that is in Israel telleth the Therfore sent he thyther horses and charettes, and a myghty hoost. And they came by nyght, and compassed the cytie about.

D And whẽ ỳ seruaunt of the mã of God arose vp early to go out, beholde, there was an hoost roũde about the towne with horses & charettes. And his seruaunt sayde vnto hym: Alas master
4.pa.xvii.a. what shall we do? He answered: *feare not, for they ỳ be with vs are mo thẽ they ỳ be with thẽ. And Elisa prayed, and sayd: Lord (I beseech the) open his eyes, ỳ he may se. And the Lorde opened the eyes of the yongeman. And beholde, the moũtayne was full of horses & charettes of fyre round about Elisa. And whẽ they came downe to hym, Elisa prayed vnto the Lord, and sayde:
Ge.xix.c Sapi.xix,c Smyte this people (I praye the) with *blyndnesse. And he smote them with blyndnesse, accordyng to the desyre of Elisa. And Elisa sayd vnto them: this is not the way, neyther is this the towne: folowe me, and I wyl bryng you to the mã whõ ye seke. But he led them to Samaria.

E And it fortuned, that when they were come to Samaria, Elisa sayd: Lord, open theyr eyes that they maye se. And the Lorde opened theyr eyes, and they sawe. And beholde, they were in the myddest of Samaria. And the kynge of Israel sayd vnto Elisa whẽ he sawe them: My father, shal I smyte them? And he answered: thou shalt not smyte thẽ: But smyte them that thou hast taken with thyne owne swearde, and with thyne owne bowe. But rather set breed and water before them, that they may eate and drynke and go to theyr master. And he prepared a great refection for them. And when they had eatẽ and dronken, he sent them awaye: and they went to theyr master. And so the souldyers of Syria came nomore into the lande of Israel.

F After this it chaunced, that Benhadad kyng of Siria gathered all his hoost, and went vp, & besieged Samaria. But there was a greate derth in Samaria: and behold, they besieged it, vntyll an asses heed (was solde) for foure score syluer pence, and the fourth parte of a cab of dones donge, for fyue sycles. And as the kynge of Israel was goinge vpon the wal, there cryed a woman vnto him, sayinge: helpe, my Lorde O kyng. He sayd: yf the Lorde do not succour the, wherwith can I helpe the: with the barne or w̃ the vynepresse? And the kynge sayde vnto her: what wilt thou? She answered: yonder womã sayd vnto me: bryng thy son, that we may eate hym today, and we wyl eate myne tomorowe.

G Leu.xxvi.d Deu.xxviii.f Thre.iiii.b *And so we dressed my sonne, and dyd eat him. And I sayd to her this other day: bryng thy son that we may eate him, and she hath hyd her son And it came to passe, that when the kyng herde the wordes of the woman, he rent his clothes, & went vp on the wall. And the people loked, and beholde, he had sakcloth vnder, vpon his flesche.
iii.re.xix.a Then he sayde: *God do so and so to me, yf the heed of Elisa the sonne of Saphat shal stand on hym this daye? But Elisa sat in his house, and the elders sat by hym, and the kynge sent a man before hym: But yer the messenger came to him he sayd to the elders: haue ye not sene how that the sonne of this mãmurtherer hath sent to take away myne heed? be circumspect when the messenger cõmeth, and shut the doore, and hold hym at the doore: is not the sound of his masters feete behynde hym? Whyle he yet talked with them: beholde, the messenger came downe vnto hym, and sayd: beholde, this euyll is of the Lord, and what more shall I loke for of the Lorde?

And there were foure leperous men at the entryng in of the gate. And they sayd one to another: why syt we here vntyl we dye? Now therfore come, & let vs fall vpon the hoost of the Syrians: Yf they saue our lyues we shal lyue: Yf they kyll vs, thẽ are we deed. And so they arose in the nyghte, to go to the hoost of the Sirians. And when they were come to the vtmost parte of the hooste of Siria, beholde, there was noman there.

For the Lorde had made the hoost of the Sirians *to heare a noyse of charettes, & a noyse of horses, & the noyse of a great host. In somoch that they sayd one to another: lo, ỳ kyng of Israel hath hyred agaynst vs ỳ kynges of the Hethites, & the kynges of the Egiptians to come vpõ vs. Wherfore they arose, & fled in the night and left theyr tẽtes, theyr horses & theyr asses, & the felde which they had pytched, euẽ as it was and fled for theyr lyues. And whẽ these lepers came to the edge of the hooste, they went into a tent, and dyd eate and drynke, and caryed chẽce syluer and golde, and raymente, and went and hyd it, came agayne, and entred into an other tent, and caryed thence also, and went & hyd it.

And ỹ king arose in the night, and sayd vnto his seruaũtes: I wyll shewe you now, what the Siriãs haue done vnto vs. They knowe ỹ we be hungrye, & therfore are they gone oute of the pauilions, to hyde them selues in the felde, sayinge: whẽ they come out of the cytie, we shal catche thẽ alyue, & get into the citie. And one of his seruauntes answered, and sayde: Let men take (I praye you) fyue of the horses that remayne, and are left in the multitude. Beholde, they are euen as all the multitude of Israel that are left in the cytie: beholde (I saye) they are euen as the multitude of the Israelites that are consumed, and we wyll sende, and se. They toke therfore the horses of two charettes, and the kyng sent after the host of the Sirians, sayinge: goo, and se. And they went after them euen vnto Iordã, and lo, all ỹ waye was full of clothes and vessels which the Syrians had cast from them in their haste.

C Elisa prophecyeth vnto the Sunamite the dearth of seuen yere. After the death of Benhadad raygneth Azael in Siria. Iehoram the sonne of Iehosaphat raygneth in Juda. Edõ falleth from Juda. Ohoziah succedeth Iehoram.

And at the seuen yeres ende, it fortuned, that the woman came agayne out of ỹ land of the Philistines, and went out to cal vpon the kyng for her house & for her lande. And the king B talked with Gehezi the seruaũt of ỹ mã of God sayinge: tell me (I praye) all the greate dedes, that Elisa hath done. He tolde the king, how he had restored a deed man to lyfe agayne: but in ỹ meane tyme the woman (whose chylde he had raysed vp agayne) cryed to ỹ kyng for her house and for her lande. And Gehezi sayde: My lorde O kynge, this is the woman, and this is her sonne whome Elisa raysed vp agayne. And Elisa sayde to hym: goo, and saye vnto hym: thou shalt recouer, howbeit, the Lord hath shewed me, that he shall surelye dye. And he loked aspyde, and was asshamed, and the man of God wepte. And Azael sayde: why wepeth my lorde? He answered: for I knowe the euyl thynges that thou shalte do vnto the chyldren of Israel: for their stronge cyties shalte thou set on fyre, and their yonge men shalt thou slaye with the swerde, and shalt dasche out the braynes of their suckynge chyldren, and all to teare their women with chylde.

But Hazael sayd: what is thy seruaũt a dog that I shoulde do this great thyng? And Elisa D answered: ỹ Lord hath shewed me, ỹ thou shalt be kyng of Syria. And so he departed frõ Elisa and came to hys master, whyche sayde to hym: What sayde Elisa to the? He answered, he tolde me that thou shouldest recouer. And on the morowe it fortuned, that he tooke a thycke cloth, and dyppte it in water, and spredde it on hys face, and he dyed: and Hazael raygned in his stede.

Jos. viii. g. Hab had * lxx. sonnes in Samaria. And Jehu wrote letters and sent to Samaria vnto the rulers of Jezrael, to the elders, and to them that brought vp Ahabs chyldrē, saying: Now when this letter commeth to you, ye that haue with you your maisters sonnes, ye haue wt you bothe charettes and horses: a stronge cytye hauc ye also, and harnesse, loke whiche of youre maisters sonnes is best & mooste mete, & set hym on his fathers seate, and fyght for youre lordes house. But they were exceadyngly afrayde, and sayd: se, two kynges were not able to stande before hym, howe shall we then be able to stande?
B And he that was gouernour of Ahabs house, & he that ruled the cytie, the elders also, and the tutours sent to Jehu, saying: we are thy seruaūtes and wyll do all that thou shalt byd vs: we wyll make no man kynge: therfore do thou what semeth good in thyne eyes. Then he wrote another letter to them, saying: yf ye be myne, & wyll herken vnto my voyce, then take the heades of the men that are your maisters sonnes, and come to me to Jezrael by to morowe this tyme. And the kynges sonnes were .lxx. persons, and they were with the great men of the cytie, whiche brought them vp, and when the letter came to them: they toke the kynges chyldren, & slewe them, euen .lxx persons, and layde their heades in baskettes, and sent them vnto hym to Jezrael: And there came a messenger and tolde hym, sayinge: they haue brought the heades of the kynges sōnes. And he sayd: let them lay them on two heapes in the entrynge in of the gate, vntyll the morynge.

And when it was day he went out, and stode C & sayd to all the folke: ye be ryghtuous. Beholde I cōspired agaynst my maister, & slue hym. But who slue al these? Learne here, that ther shal fall vnto the earth nothyng of the worde of ꝑ Lorde which he spake concernynge the house of Ahab. For ꝑ Lord hath brought to passe the thynges ꝑ he spake by the hande of his seruaūt * Elia. And iii. re. xvi. f. so Jehu slue all ꝑ remayned of the house of Ahab in Jezrael, & all that were great with hym, & his kynsfolkes & preastes, so ꝑ he let nothing of him remayne. And he arose & departed, & came to Samaria. And when Jehu was in the waye to the house where ꝑ shepherdes dyd shere their shepe, he met wt the brethren of Ahaziahu kyng of Juda, & sayd: what are ye? They answered, the brethren of Ahaziahu are we: & go downe to salute the chyldren of ꝑ kyng & the quene. And he sayd: take them alyue. Whome when they had taken them alyue, they slewe them at the well whiche was beside the house where ꝑ shepe are shorn, euen .xlii. men, neyther left he any of them.

And when he was departed thence, he met wt D Jehonadab the son of * Rechab cōming agaynst Jer. xxxv. a hym. And he blessed hym, & sayd to hym: is thyne hert ryght, as my herte is true with thyne? And Jehonadab answered: ye ꝑ it is: * (yf it be, sayth he) &c then gyue me thyne hande. And when he had gyuen hym his hande, he toke hym vp to him in the charet, & sayd: come with me, and se ꝑ zeale that I haue for the Lorde: & so they made him ryde in his charet. And whē he came to Samaria, he slue al that remayned vnto Ahab in Samaria, tyl he had wypte hym out, according to the saying of the Lord whiche he spake to Elia. And Jehu gathered al the people togyther, & sayd vnto them: * Ahab serued Baal a lytle: but Jehu shall serue ii. reg. xviii g hym more. Now therfore call vnto me al the prophetes of Baal, all suche as serue hym, & all his prestes & let none be lacking. For I haue a great sacrifice to do to Baal: & therfore who so euer is myssed, he shall not lyue. But Jehu dyd it for a subtyltye, to thintent ꝑ he myght destroy the seruauntes of Baal. And Jehu sayd: proclayme an E holy conuocacion for Baal, & Jehu sent vnto all Israel. And al the seruaūtes of Baal came, that there was not a man left behynd that came not. And they came into ꝑ house of Baal, & the house of Baal was full from one ende to another.

And when kynge Ahaz sawe an aulter that was at Damasco, he sent to Uzia the pzest the paterne of the aultare, and the fashion of it, and all the wozkemanshypp therof. And Uzia ỹ pzest made an aulter in al poyntes lyke to ỹ paterne which kynge Ahaz had sent from Damasco: Euen so dyd Uzia the pzest make it, against kyng Ahaz came from Damasco. And so when the kynge was come from Damasco, he sawe the aulter: & the kynge wente to it, & offered theron. And he burnte hys burnt offrynge, and hys meat offe rynge, and powzed his dzynkoffrynge: & spzynk led the bloude of hys peaceoffrynges besyde the aulter that was by ỹ bzasen aulter whych was befoze the Lozde, and set it wythout the temple betwene the aulter and the temple of the Lozde: and put it on the nozthsyde of the aulter.

Hozea kynge of Israel is taken. And he and all hys re alme bzought to the Assyrians.

IN the. xii. yeare of Ahaz kynge of Ju A da, began Hosea the sonne of Ela to raygne in Samaria vpõ Israel. ix. yeare, & dyd that whych was euell in the syght of the Lozde, but not as the kynges of Israel, that were befoze hym. And Salmana sar kynge of Assyzia came vp agaynst him, and Hosea became hys seruaunt & gaue hym pzesen tes. And the kynge of Assyzia founde treason in Hosea: foz he had sent messengers to So, kinge of Egypt, & bzought no pzesent vnto ỹ kyng of Assyzia, from yeare to yere: & therfoze the kyng of Assyzia toke hym: and put hym in pzeson.

* And thẽ the kynge of Assyzia came vp tho iiii. Regum xviii. c rowe out all the lande, and gat vp agaynst Sa maria, and besieged it thze yeare. In the nynth yeare of Hosea, the * kinge of Assyzia, toke Sa- iiii. Esdz. xiij. c maria, & caryed Israel awaye vnto Assyzia, & put thẽ in Hala, in Haboz by ỹ riuer of goza: & in the cyties of ỹ Medes. ¶For it came to passe, that B the chyldren of Israel synned agaynst the Lord their God, whiche had brought them out of the lande of Egypte: from vnder the hãde of Pharao kynge of Egypt: & feared other gods. And they walked in the ceremonies of the heythen, whom the Lorde cast out before the chyldren of Israel: & in the ceremonies, which the kinges of Israel had made. And ỹ children of Israel went about to hyde those thynges that were not wel, from the Lord their God. And they buylt them hyalters in all their cyties, both in the towres where they kepte watche, and also in the strong townes. And they made them ymages and gro-ues in euery hye hyll, & vnder euery thycke tree.

And there they burnt incẽce in all the hyalters, as dyd the heythẽ (whom ỹ Lorde caryed awaye before them) and wrought wicked thynges to angre the Lorde withall: ¶For they serued most vyle ydolles: wherof the Lorde had sayde vnto Deut.iiij.c them: *Ye shall do no suche thynge.
C And the Lord testified in Israel: and in Juda
by all the prophetes, and by al the sears sayeng: Jere.xxv.b *Turne from your wicked wayes, and kepe my cõmaundementes and my statutes: accordynge to all ỹ lawe which I cõmaunded your fathers, and which I sente to you by my seruauntes the

Deu.xxxi.g heare, *but rather hardened their neckes, lyke mala.iii.b. to the stubburnes of their fathers, that dyd not beleue in the Lorde their God. ¶For they refused his statutes and his appoyntment that he made with their fathers, and ỹ witnesses (wherwith he witnessed vnto them) and they folowed va-nitie, and became vayne: and went after ỹ hey-whom, the Lorde had charged them, that they shulde not do lyke them. But they lefte the commaundementes of the Lorde their God: & made made groues, and worshypped all the hooste of De.xviii.b heauen: and serued Baal. And they sacrifyced their sõnes and their daughters in fyre, & vsed ✓ wytchecrafte and enchauntementes ✓*euen sel-lynge themselues: to worke wyckednesse in the syght of the Lorde, and to angre hym.

And the Lorde was exceadyng wroth with iii.re.xii.d. Israel: & put them out of his syght, that there was lefte but the trybe of Juda only. Neuerthe lesse, Juda also kepte not the cõmaundementes of the Lord their God, but walked in ỹ ceremonies of Israel, which they made. And the Lorde D cast vp all the sede of Israel, and vexed thẽ, and deliuered thẽ into the handes of spoylers, vntyll he had cast thẽ out of his syght. ¶For Israel deui ded themselues from ỹ house of Dauid, & made them a kynge, euen Jeroboam the sonne of Na-✓ bat. And Jeroboam ✓*drue Israel awaye (that they shulde not folowe the Lorde) and made thẽ syn a great syn: for ỹ chyldrẽ of Israel walked in al the synnes of Jeroboam which he dyd, and departed not therfrõ, vntyl ỹ Lord put Israel a way out of hys syght, as he had sayde by all his seruauntes the prophetes.
E And so was Israel caryed away out of their owne lande, to Assyria, euen vnto this daye.

And the kynge of Assyria brought men from Babylon, frõ Cutha, frõ Aua, from Hanath, & from Sepharuaim, and put thẽ in the cities of Samaria, in stede of ỹ chyldren of Israel. And they possessed Samaria, & dwelte in the cyties therof. And it fortuned, ỹ at ỹ beginning of their dwellyng there they feared not the Lorde. And the Lord sent lyons amonge thẽ, whych slue thẽ Wherefore, men sayde to the kynge of Assyria.
The nacions which thou hast translated, & put in the cyties of Samaria, knowe not ỹ lawe of ỹ god of ỹ lande, therfore he hath sent lyons vpõ thẽ, & behold, they slaye thẽ: because they knowe not ỹ maner of worshipping of ỹ god of ỹ land.

Then the kynge of Assyria cõmaunded say-eng: carie thyther one or twayne of the preastes whom ye brought thence, and let thẽ go & dwell there, and teache them the fashyon how to serue the god of the countrey. And thã one of the prea stes which they had caryed thence came & dwelt in Bethel, and taught them howe they shulde feare ỹ Lorde. Howbeit, euery nacyon made thẽ goddes of their owne, and put them in the houses of ỹ hilalters, which ỹ Samariãs had made F euery nacion in their cities, wherin they dwelt.
The mẽ of Babylõ made Socoth Benoth: and the men of Cuth made Nergal: and the men of Hamath made Asima. The Auites made Nibhaz, & Tharthak: And the Sapharuites burnte their chyldren in fyre for Adramelech, & Aname lech ỹ goddes of Sepharuaim. And so they feared ỹ Lord & made thẽ preastes of the hilalters, which sacrificed for them in the houses of ỹ hylalters. And so they feared ỹ Lord, & serued their owne gods after ỹ maner of the people: whom they caryed thence.

And vnto this day they do after the olde maner: & neyther feare God, neyther do after their G ordinañces and customes, & after the lawe and Ge.xxxii.e cõmaundement which the Lord cõmaunded the chyldrẽ of Jacob, *whom he called Israel. And Jud.vi.b
the Lord made an apoyntment with them, and Jere.x.a charged them, sayeng: *feare none other gods, nor bowe your selues to them, nor serue thẽ, nor sacrifice to thẽ: but feare ỹ Lord which brought you out of the lande of Egypte with greate power, and a stretched out arme: hym feare, and to him bowe, and to him do sacrifice. The statutes ordynaunces, lawe, and cõmaundement whiche he wrote for you, se that ye be diligent to do for euermore: and feare not any other goddes. And the appoyntmẽt that I haue made wyth you, se ye forget not & feare none other goddes: but the Lorde your God ye shall feare, & he shal delyuer you out of the handes of al your enemyes. How beit, they dyd not herkẽ, but dyd after their old custome. And so these naciõs feared their Lord and serued their ymages also: lyke as dyd their chyldren, and their chyldrens chyldren. Euen as dyd their fathers: so do they vnto this daye.

For vnto those dayes the childzen of Israel did burne sacrifice to it, & he called it Nehustan. Nowe therfore, deliuer ꝑ wardes to my lorde the kynge of Assiria, that ye rebell not, & I wyl delyuer ꝑ two thousande horses yf thou be able to set ryders vpon them: Why thynkest thou scorne at the presence of one of the least dukes of my maysters seruauntes, and trustest to Egipt for charrettes and horsemen? Moreouer, am I F nowe come wythout the byddynge of the Lord to thys place, to destroye it: the Lorde sayde to me: go vp to hys lande, and destroye it. And Eliakim the sonne of Helkia and Sobna, and Joab sayd vnto Rabsake: speake (I praye the) to thy seruauntes in the Syrians language, for we vnderstãde it: and talke not wyth vs in the Jewes tonge, in the eares of thys people ꝑ are on the wal. And so Rabsake stode, & cryed wyth a loude voyce in the Jewes language, & spake, sayeng: heare the sayenge of the great kynge of Assyria Thus sayeth the kynge: let not Hezekia begyle you, for he shall not be able to delyuer you oute of my hande: neyther let Hezekia make you to trust in the Lorde, sayenge: the Lorde shall surely delyuer vs: & thys citie shal not be geuẽ ouer into the hãde of the kinge of Assiria. that ye maye lyue and not dye. And herken not

But they that were of the people held theyr

¶ The .xix. Chapter.

¶ The aungell of the Lorde kylleth an hundreth and foure score and fyue thousande men of the Assyrians Sennache-

A S it came to passe, that when kynge
Hezekia hearde it, he rent hys clothes & put on sacke: and came into ỹ house Esa.xxxvii.a of *the Lorde: & sent Eliakim which was the stuarde of housholde, & Sob na the scrybe, and the elders of the preastes clo-Amoz. And they sayd vnto hym, thus sayth He zekia: thys daye is a daye of tribulacion and of rebuke, and blasphemye. For the chyldren are come to the byrth, and ther is no strength to be B delyuered. Peraduẽture, the Lord thy God wyl heare all the wordes of Rabsake, whom ỹ king of Assyria hys master hath sent, to rayle on the lyuynge God, and to rebuke hym with wordes which the Lorde thy God hath herde. And lyft thou vp thy prayer for the rẽnaunte ỹ are left:

So the seruaũtes of kinge Hezekia came to Ito your master: Thus sayeth the Lorde: be not afrayd of the wordes which thou hast herde, wt which the ponge men of the kynge of Assyria haue rayled on me: Beholde, I wyll put hym in

And Rabsakeh wente backe agayne, and C founde the kynge of Assyria fyghtynge against Libna: for he had herde how ỹ he was departed from Lachis. And when he hearde men saye of Thirhaka kynge of the blacke Moores: Behold he is come out to fyght against the, he departed & sent messengers vnto Hezekia sayenge: Thus speake to Hezekia kyng of Juda, sayeng: let not thy God disceiue the in whom thou trustest, say enge: Jerusalem shall not be delyuered into the hande of the kynge of Assyria. Beholde, thou hast herde what the kynges of Assyria haue done to all landes, howe they haue vtterlye destroyed them. And shalt thou *(alone) escape? *
Haue the goddes of the heythen deliuered them whych myne aũcestries haue destroyed? As Go den whych were in Bithasar? where is ỹ kyng of Hamath, and the kynge of Arphad, ỹ kynge of the cytie of Sapharuaim, and of Hena & Iua

So Hezekia receyued the letter of the hande D of the messengers, & redde it: And Hezekia went vp into the house of the Lorde, & layed it abrode before the Lorde. And Hezekia prayd before the Lorde, and sayd: O Lord God of Israel: whych dwellest betwene the Cherubs, thou arte God alone ouer all the kyngdomes of the earth: thou hast made heauen and earth: Lord bowe downe thyne eare, and heare. Open Lorde thyne eyes (I beseech the) and se: & heare the wordes of Sen nacherib whych hath sent thys man to rayle on the lyuynge God: Of a truth Lorde, the kinges of Assyria haue destroyed nacions and theyr lã des, and haue set fyre on theyr goddes. For they were no goddes, but the worke of the handes of man, euẽ of wood and stone. And they destroyed them. Nowe therfore, O Lorde oure God, I be-seche the, saue thou vs out of hys hande, that all the kyngdomes of the earth maye knowe, that thou onely arte the Lorde God. And Isai the sonne of Amoz sente to Hezekia sayenge: thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israell: that whyche thou haste prayed me, concernynge Sennacherib kynge of Assyria: I haue hearde it. This is therfore the worde that the Lorde hath sayd of hym: The virgyne euen the doughter of Sy-gaynst the holy of Israel. By the hands of the messengers thou hast rayled on the Lorde, and sayd: with the multitude of my charrettes I am come vp to the toppes of the mountaynes, euen

trees therof: and I wyll go into the lodgyng of hys nest: & into the wood of hys playne: I haue dygged, and dronke straunge waters: and with the steppe of my goynge wyl I dryye al the wa-

Hast thou not herde, howe I haue ordeyned E suche a thynge a great whyle ago, and haue pre pared it from the begynnynge? And shall I not nowe bringe it forth, that it may destroye, and to bringe stronge cyties into waste heapes of stones? and the inhabitours of thẽ shalbe of ly-

vnto myne eares, and I wyll put myne boke in

F And thys shalbe a sygne vnto the (O Hezekia) ye shall eate thys yeare of suche thynges as growe of them selues: and the nexte yeare, suche as come vp of those ꝑ dyd growe of theyr owne accorde. And the thyrde yeare sowe ye & reape: plant vyneyardes, and eate the frutes therof. And it that is escaped and lefte of the doughter of Juda, shall yet agayne take rootyng downe warde, and beare frute vpwarde. For out of Jerusalem shal go a remnaunt: and a nombre that shall escape out of mount Syon: the zele of the Lord of hoostes shal bryng thys thinge to passe

G Wherfore, thus sayth the Lorde concernyng the kynge of Assyria: he shall not come to thys cytie, nor shote an arow into it, nor come before it wyth shylde, nor caste banke agaynst it: but shall go backe agayne the waye he came: & shall not come into thys cytie, sayeth the Lorde: For I wyll defende thys cytie to saue it, for myne owne sake: and for Dauid my seruauntes sake.

And so it cam to passe: ꝑ the selfe same nyght the aungell of the Lorde went out and smote in the hoost of the Assyrians an hūdred foure score and fyue thousande. And when the remnaunte were vp early in the morynge: they sawe, they were all deade coorses. * And so Sennacherib kinge of Assyria auoyded and departed, & went agayne: and dwelt at Niniue. And it fortuned that as he was in a temple worshyppynge Misroch hys god, Adramelech and Sarezar hys owne sonnes smote hym wyth the sweard. And they escaped into the lande of Armenia, and Asarhadon hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

A IN Bout that tyme * was Hezekia sycke vnto death. And the prophete Jsay ꝑ sonne of Amoz came to hym, & sayde vnto hym Thus sayeth the Lorde: put thy houshold in an ordre, for thou shalt dye, and not lyue. And Hezekia tourned hys face to the wall, and prayed to the Lorde, sayenge: I beseche the nowe, O Lorde, remembre howe I haue walked before the in truth and wyth a parfyte herte, and haue done that whyche is good in thy syghte: and Hezekia wepte sore.

And beholde, I wyll heale the so that on the thyrde daye, thou shalte go vp into the house of ꝑ Lord And I wyll adde vnto thy dayes yet fyftene yeare, and wyll delyuer the and this cytie out of the hande of the kynge of Assyria, and wyll defende thys cytie for myne owne sake, & for Dauid my seruaūtes sake. And Jsay sayd: Take a lompe of fygges. And they toke it and layed it on the sore: and he recouered.

And Hezekia sayd vnto Jsay: what shalbe the signe that the Lorde wyl heale me, and that Jshal go vp into the house of the Lorde ꝑ thyrd day? Jsay answered: this sygne shalt thou haue of the Lorde, that the Lord wyl do that he hath spoken. * Shall the shadowe go forwarde ten degrees, or go backe agayne ten degrees? Hezekia answered: it is a lyght thynge for ꝑ shadow to go downe ten degrees: ⁂ (nether is that my desyre) ⁂ but ꝑ the shadowe go backwarde ten degrees, it is no lyght thynge. And Jsay the prophet called vnto the Lorde, * and he broughte the shadowe ten degrees backwarde by whyche it had gone downe in the dyall of Ahas.

* The same season Berodach Baladam the sonne of Baladam kynge of Babylon, sent letters and a present to Hezekia, for he had herde howe that Hezekia was sycke. And Hezekia was glad of them, and shewed them al hys treasure house, syluer, golde, odours, precious oyntment, all the house of hys armoury, and al that was foūde in hys treasures: there was nothyng in hys house, and in al hys realme, that Hezekia shewed them not.

And he sayd agane: what haue they sene in thyne house? Hezekia answered, all the thynges that are in my house haue they sene there is nothynge amonge my treasures, that I haue not shewed them: And Jsay sayd vnto Hezekia: Heare the worde of the Lorde: Beholde, the dayes come, that al that is in thy house, and what soeuer thy fathers haue layed vp in store vnto thys daye, * shalbe caryed into Babylon, and nothinge shalbe left sayeth the Lorde: And of thy sonnes (that shall procede out of the, and whych thou shalt beget) shal they take awaye, and they shalbe chamberlaynes in the palace of the kynge of Babylon. ¶ The. xiii. Chapter.

A AND Dauid counsayled with the capitaynes of thousandes and hundreds, and with all the lordes, and sayd vnto all the congregacyon of Israel: Yf it seme you good, and to be of ỹ Lorde our God we wyll take ad sende vnto oure brethren, that are left in all the lande of Israel: and with them also, to the preestes and Leuites whiche are in theyr cyties and suburbes, to gather them togyther vnto vs. And we wyll bringe agayne the arke of the Lorde to vs, for we regarded it not in the dayes of Saul. And all the congregacion B was content that he shoulde do so, for the thing semed good in the eyes of all the people.

So Dauid gathered all Israel togyther frō Sihor in Egypt, vnto the entryng of Hemath, to bringe the arke of the Lorde from Kyriath Jearim. And Dauid went vp and all Israel to an hye place towardes Kyriath Jearim, that was in Juda, to fet thence the arke of the Lorde God that dwelleth betwene the cherubes wher his name is called on. And they caryed the arke of God in a newe carte out of the house of Abinadab. And Uza and his brother guyded ỹ cart And Dauid and all Israel played before ỹ arke of God wt all theyr myght, with syngynge and
* harpes, psalteryes and tymbrels and trompettes. And when they came vnto the threshynge flooze of Chidon, Uza put forth his hād to hold the arke, for the oxen * (beinge a lytle wylde) stūbled And the Lorde was wroth with Uza, & smote D hym, bycause he put his hande to the arke. And there he dyed before God. And Dauid was out of quyete, bycause the Lorde had rent a rente in Uza, and he called the name of that place the rētynge of Uza vnto this daye. And Dauid was afrayed of God that daye, sayinge: howe shall I bringe the arke of God home to me? And so Dauid brought not the arke home to hym to the cytie of Dauid: but caryed it into the house of Obed Edom a Gethite. And the arke of God remayned with Obed Edom, euen in his house: thre monethes. And the Lorde blessed the house of Obed Edom, and all that he had.

A SO Hyram the kyng of Tyre sent messengers to Dauid, and tymbre of Cedre trees, with masons and carpenters to buylde hym an house. And Dauid perceyued that the Lorde had confyrmed hym kyng vpon Israel, and that his kyngdom was lift vp on hye, bycause of his people Israel. And Dauid toke yet mo wyues at Jerusalem, and B begat mo sonnes and doughters. These are the names of his chyldren whiche were borne vnto him at Jerusalē: Sāmua, Sobab, Nathan and Salamon: Jibhar, Elisua & Eliphalet, Noga, Nepheg & Japhia, Elisama, Beliada, and Eliphalet. And when the Philistines hearde that Dauid was annoynted kyng vpon Israel: all C the Philistines went vp to seke Dauid. And Dauid herde of it, and went out agaynst them. And the Philistines came in, and prayed thorowe the valey of Rephaim. And Dauid asked counsayle at God, sayinge: shall I go agaynste the Philistines, and wylt thou delyuer them into myne hande? And the Lorde sayd vnto hym:

go vp, for I wyl delyuer them into thyne hand. And so they came vp to Baal Perazim and Dauid smote them there. And Dauid sayde: God hath deuyded myne enemyes with myne hande as a man wolde deuyde water. And therfore they called the name of that place: Baal Perazim. And when they had left their goddes there Dauid gaue a commaundemente, & they were burned with fyre.

D And the Philistines came togyther agayne, & rushed into the valleye. And Dauid asked agayne at God. And God said to him: go not vp after them, but turne away frō them, that thou mayest come vpon them ouer agaynst the peretrees. And when thou hearest a sounde goo in the toppes of the peretrees, then go out to battayle: for God is gone forth before the, to smite the hoost of the Philistines. Dauid therfore did as God commaunded hym: and they smote the hoost of the Philistines from Gibeon to Gazer. And the fame of Dauid went out into all landes: and the Lorde made all nacions feare hym.

AND Dauid made hym houses in ỹ cytye of Dauid, and prepared a place for the arke of God, and pitched for it a tente. Then Dauid sayde: the arke of God ought not to be caryed, but of the Leuytes. For them hath the Lord choseu, to beare ỹ arke of the Lord, and to mynistre vnto hym for euer. And Dauid gathered all Israel togyther to Ierusalem to fetche the arke of the Lord vnto his place which he had ordeyned for it.

And Dauid brought togyther the chyldren of Aaron and the Leuites. Of the sonnes of Cahath was Uziel the cheke, and of hys brethren there were an hundred and twenty. Of the children of Merari, Asaia the cheke: and of his brethren two hundred and twentye: Of the sonnes of Gersom, Joel the cheke: and of his brethren an hundred and thyrtye. Of the chyldren of Elisaphan, Semaia the cheke: and of hys brethren two hundred. Of the sonnes of Hebron, Eliel the cheke, and of his brethren. lxxx. Of the sonnes of Uziel. Aminadab the chef: and of his brethren an hundred and twelue.

B And Dauid called Zadock and Abiathar the prestes and the Leuites, Uziel, Asaia, Joel, Semia, Eliel, and Aminadab: and sayd vnto thē: ye that are the principall fathers of the Leuites se that ye be holye with youre brethren, that ye maye bryng in the arke of the Lorde God of Israel, vnto the place that I haue prepared for it: For bicause ye were not there at ỹ fyrst, ỹ Lord our God made a rente amonge vs, for that we sought hym not, as the fassion ought to be. So the prestes & the Leuites sanctifyed them selues to fet the arke of the Lorde God of Israel. And the children of the Leuites bare the arke of God vpō their shoulders wt staues theron, as Moses cōmaunded: according to the worde of ỹ Lorde.

C And Dauid spake to the cheke heedes of the Leuites, that they shoulde appoynt certayne of theyr brethren to synge with instrumentes of musycke, psalteries, harpes and cymbales: that they myght make a sounde, and to synge on hye with ioyfulnesse: And the Leuites appointed Heman the sonne of Joel: and (of his brethren) Asaph the sonne of Berachia: and of the sonnes of Merari and of theyr brethren: Ethan ỹ sōne of Chusaiahu. And with them theyr brethren of the seconde degree: zachariahu, Ben Jaazel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Benaiahu, Maasias, Mathatiahu, Eliphalehu, Mikniahu, Obed Edom, and Jaiel porters. So Hemā, Asaph and Ethan the syngers made a sound wt cymbales of brasse, And zachariahu, Aziel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Maasiahu, & Banaiahu played with psalteryes on an Alamoth. Mathatiahu, Eliphalehu, Mikniahu, Obed Edom, Jeiel and Azaziah played vpon harpes an eyght aboue, with courage. And Chenaniahu the chefe of the Leuytes, was master of the song, for he taught other to syng, bycause he was a man of vnderstandynge.

D Berechia and Elcana kepte the dore of the arke. And Secaniahu, Jehosaphat, Nethanael Amasai, zachariahu, Banaiahu, and Eliezer, the preestes dyd blowe with trompettes before the arke of God. And Obed Edom and Jehia, were the kepers of the dore of the arke.

*And Dauid and the elders of Israel and the captaynes ouer thousandes, went to fet ỹ arke of the appoyntment of the Lorde out of ỹ house of Obed Edom with gladnesse. And whē God helped the Leuites that bare the arke of the appoyntment of the Lorde, they offred seuen oxen and seuen rammes. And Dauid had on hym a lynnen garment, lyke as had also all the Leuytes that bare the arke, and so had the syngers: & Chenania the ruler of the songe with ỹ syngers And Dauid had vpon him an Ephod of lynne. And all they of Israel broughte the arke of the Lordes couenaūt with shoutyng and blowyng of the shawme and trompettes, makynge a noyse with symbales, psalteryes and harpes. *ii. reg. vi. c.

And as the arke of the appoyntement of the Lorde came into the cytie of Dauid, Michol the doughter of Saul lokynge out at a wyndowe, sawe kynge Dauid daunsynge and playinge, and she dispysed hym in her herte.

¶ Dauid ordeyneth Asaph and his brethren to mynistre before the Lorde. He hym selfe prayseth the Lorde God of Israel.

SO they brought in the arke of God, & A set it in the myddes of the tente, that Dauid pytched for it, and they offered burntsacrifyces and peaceofferynges before God. And when Dauid had made an ende of offrynge the burntoffrynges and peaceoffrynges, he blessed the people in the name of the Lorde. And he dealt to all Israel (both mā and woman) a cracknell of breed, and a good pece of flesche, and a flacket of wyne.

And he appoynted certayne of the Leuytes to mynistre before the Lorde, and to repete and to thanke and prayse the Lorde God of Israel.

And Asaph

And Asaph was the cheke, and next to hym zacharia, Jeiel, Semiramoth, Jehiel Mathathia ii.reg.vi.b. Eliab, Benaia, * Obed Edom, and Jeiel with psalteries and harpes. But Asaph made a soũd with symbales. Banaiahu and Jahaziel preastes, blewe with trompettes contynuallye before the arke of the couenaunt of God.

psal.cxlvi.a Esay.xii.b * O gyue thankes vnto the Lorde, call vpõ his name, make his actes knowen among ẏ people.

Synge vnto hym, and playe vnto hym: talke of all his wondrefull dedes. Reioyse in his holy name: let the hertes of them that seke the Lorde be glad. Seke the Lorde and his strength: seke his presence alwaye.

Remembre his maruayles whiche he dyd, and his wonders, and the iudgementes of hys mouth. The seed of Israel are his seruaũtes the chyldren of Jacob are his chosen. He is the Lord our God, in all landes are hys iudgementes.

Thynke on hys appoyntement for euer: (and on the worde which he commaunded to a thousãde generacions) whiche he made with Abraham, and of his oth to Isahac: which he set before Jacob for a decree, and to Israel for an euerlasting couenaunt, saying: to the wyll I gyue the lande of Chanaan, to be the porcyon of youre enherytaunce. When ye were fewe, and small in nombre, and sotourners therein. And they walked from nacion to nacion, and from one kyngdom to an other people. He suffred noman to do them wronge: but rebuked euen kynges for theyr sakes. Touche not myne annoynted, and do my Prophetes no harme.

psal.xcvi.a shewe from daye to daye his saluacion.

Tell of his glorye amonge the heythen: hys wondrefull dedes amonge all nacions.

For great is ẏ Lord, and worthy to be praysed excedyngly: he is to be feared aboue al gods.

Prayse and honour are in his presẽce: strength and gladnesse are in his place.

Ascrybe vnto the Lorde ye kynredes of people: Ascrybe to the Lorde, glorye and dominion. Ascrybe vnto the Lorde the glory due vnto his name: bringe sacrifyces and come before hym, and worshyp the Lorde with holy honour.

Let all the earthe feare hym, although the cõpasse of the earth so be stablysshed that it can not be moued: let the heauens reioyse, and lette the earth be glad, and let men tel amonge the nacions, that the Lorde is kynge.

Let the see thundre, and the fulnesse thereof: let the feldes reioyse and all that is therein.

Then shall the trees of the wood reioyse at the presence of the Lorde, bycause he cõmeth to iudge the earth: O gyue thankes vnto ẏ Lorde for he is good, for his mercye endureth for euer: and saye ye: saue vs (O God) of our saluacyon, gather vs togyther, & delyuer vs from amonge the heythẽ, ẏ we maye gyue thankes to thy holy name, & triumph in the prayse of the. Blessed be the Lorde God of Israel for euer and euer: and let all people saye: Amen: and prayse the Lorde.

des couenaunt Asaph and his brethren, to minister before the arke contynually, in suche thynges as were to be done daye by daye: ow (and that by theyr courses.) And Obed Edom and his brethrẽ threscore and eyght: and Obed Edom the sonne of Jeduthun, and Hosa, were appoynted to be porters. And Zadok the preest and his brethren the preestes, were before the Tabernacle of the Lorde, in the hye place that was at Gibeon, to offre burntoffrynges vnto the Lorde, vpon the burntoffring alter perpetually, in the morning and euenyng: accordynge vnto all that which is wrytten in the lawe of the Lorde, which he commaunded Israel. And with them were Heman, and Jeduthun, & other that were chosen (whose names were expressed) to gyue thankes to the Lorde, that his mercye lasteth euer. And wyth them dyd Heman and Jeduthun synge with the trompettes and symbales, makyng a swete melody with instrumentes of musyke and goodlye songes. And the sonnes of Jeduthun were porters. And all the people departed, euerye man to his house: & Dauid returned to blesse his house.

AND it fortuned, that whẽ Dauid A dwelt in his house, he sayd to Na ii.reg.vii.a than the Prophete: lo, I dwel * in an house of Cedar tree, but ẏ arke of the Lordes couenaunte remayneth vnder curtaynes: And Nathan sayde to Dauid: do all that is in thyne hert for God is with the.

And ẏ same tyme it fortuned, that the worde of God came to Nathan, sayinge: goo, and tell Dauid my seruaunt, thus sayth the Lorde: thou
B shalt not buylde me an house to dwell in. For I haue dwelt in no house, syns ẏ daye ẏ I brought oute the chyldren of Israel vnto this daye: but haue gone from tent to tent, and from one habytacyon to an other. And whersoeuer I haue walked with all Israel, spake I euer one worde to any of the iudges of Israel (whom I commaũded to fede my people) sayinge: why haue ye not buylt me an house of Cedar tree? Now therfore thus shalt thou saye vnto my seruaunte Dauid: thus sayth the Lorde of hoostes: I toke the oute of the pasture whẽ thou wentest after shepe, that thou shuldest be capitayne ouer my people Israel. And I haue bene with thy whythersoeuer thou haste walked, and haue weded oute all thyne enemyes out of thy sight, and haue made ℣ the a name, lyke the name (of one) of the greatest men that are in the earth. And I haue ordeyned a place for my people Israel, & made it fast, so that now they maye dwell in theyr place, and moue nomore: Neyther shal the chyldren of wickednesse vexe them any more, as at the begynnynge: And syns the tyme that I commaunded iudges to be ouer my people Israel: I haue subdued all thyne enemyes, and I told the, that the Lorde wolde buylde the an house.

℣ This also shal come to passe: when thy dayes be expyred, that thou must go vnto thy fathers I wyll rayse vp thy seed after the, which shalbe of thy sonnes, and wyl prepare for hym the kingdome: He shal buylde me an house, and I wyll stablysh his seate for euer: I wyll be his father, and he shalbe my sonne: and I wyl not take my mercy awaye from hym, as I toke it from hym that was before the. But I wyll set hym in myne house, and in my kyngdome for euer: and his seate shalbe sure for euermore.

According to all these wordes, & according to al this visiõ, did Nathãtel king Dauid. And Dauid the kynge came and sat before the Lord and sayd: what am I (O Lord God) and what is myne housholde, that thou hast promoted me thus farre? And yet this semed lytle in thyne eyes, O God: But thou hast also spoken of thy seruaũtes house, for a great whyle to come: and hast loked vpõ me as vpon a man of hye degree, (O Lord God.) What shal Dauid desyre more of the for the honour of thy seruaunt? O Lorde, for thy seruauntes sake, euẽ according to thyne owne herte, hast thou done all this magnificẽce to shewe all great thinges. Lorde, there is none lyke the: neyther is there any god saue thou: according to all that we haue herde with our eares. Moreouer, what nacion on the earth is lyke thy people Israel, to whom God hath vouchesafed to come and redeme them to be his owne people, and to make thy name of an excellencie and terriblenesse, with castyng out nacions from before thy people, whome thou hast delyuered out of Egypt.

D Thy people Israel dyddest thou make thyne owne people for euer, and thou becamest theyr God. Therfore nowe Lorde, let the thynge that thou hast spoken concernynge thy seruaunt and his house, be true for euer, that thou do as thou hastte sayde: let it come to passe, that thy name maye be magnifyed for euer, that it may be said the Lorde of hoostes is God of Israel (euen the God of Israel) and the house of Dauid thy seruaunt endureth stable before the. For thou (O my God) hast told thy seruaunt, that thou wilt buylde hym an house. And therfore thy seruaũt hath founde in his hert to praye before the. And nowe Lorde thou art God, and hast promysed this goodnesse vnto thy seruaunt. Nowe therfore, let it be thy pleasure, to blesse the house of thy seruaunte, that it maye contynue before the for euer. For whom thou blessest (O Lorde) the same is blessed for euer.

AND after this it fortuned, that Dauid smote the Philistines, and subdued them, and toke Geth and the townes that * longed therto, oute of the hand of the Philistines. And he smote Moab, and the Moabites became Dauids seruauntes, and payed hym trybute. A ii.re.xviii.a

And Dauid smote Hadarezer kyng of Zoba vnto Hanath, as he went to stablish his dominion by the ryuer Euphrates. And Dauid toke from hym a thousand charettes, and seuen thousand horsemen, and twenty thousande fotemen: and lamed al the charethorses, and reserued of them an hundred charettes. And when the Syriens of Damascocame to helpe Hadarezer kynge of Zoba: Dauid slue of the Syrians.xxii.thousand and Dauid subdued Syria Damasco. And the Syriens became Dauids seruaũtes: & brought hym trybute. And the Lorde preserued Dauid in all that he went to.

And Dauid toke the shyldes of golde that B were on the seruaũtes of Hadarezer, & brought them to Jerusalẽ. And from Tebhath, and frõ Chun (cyties of Hadarezer) brought Dauid exceadynge moche brasse. Wherewith Salomon made the brasen lauatorie: * the pyllers and the vessels of brasse. iii.re.vii.b Jere.lii.c

And when Tou kynge of Hemath herd how Dauid had beaten all the strength of Hadarezer kynge of Zoba, he sente Haduran his sonne to kynge Dauid, to make peace with hym, and to blesse hym, bycause he had fought agaynst Hadarezer, and beaten hym (for Tou had warre with Hadarezer) and Dauid brought al maner iewels of golde, syluer and brasse with hym. And kyng Dauid dedicated them vnto ỹ Lord, ¶ with the syluer and golde that he brought from all nacions: from Edom, from Moab, from the chyldren of Ammon, from the Philistines, and from Amalecke. And Abisai the sonne of Zeruia slue of the Edomytes in the salte valleye.xviii. thousande, and put souldyers in Edom, and all the Edomytes became Dauids seruauntes. Thus the Lorde kept Dauid in all that he toke in hande.

And Dauid raygned ouer Israel, and executed iudgemente and ryghteousnesse amonge all his people. And Joab the sonne of Zeruiah was ouer the hoost. And Jehosaphat the sonne of Ahilud recorder: and Zadock the sonne of Ahitob, and Abimelech the sonne of Abiathar were the preestes: and Sauesa was scrybe, and Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada was ouer the Crethites and Phelethites: and the eldest sõnes of Dauid were next vnto the kynge. ¶ The.xix.Chapter.

uid sayde: I wyll shewe kyndnesse vnto Hanon the son of Nahas: bycause his father delt kyndlye with me. And Dauid sente messengers to comforte hym ouer the death of his brother.

And the seruauntes of Dauid came into the lande of the chyldren of Ammon to Hanon, to comforte hym. But the lordes of the chyldren of Ammō sayd to Hanon: thynkest thou that Dauid doth honour thy father in thy syght: that he hath sent comforters vnto the? Are not his seruaūtes come to search, to loke & spye out ỹ lāde?

B Wherfore Hanon toke Dauids seruauntes
* (and polde them) and shaued them, & cut of theyr cootes harde by theyr buttockes, and sent them away. And there wente certayne and tolde Dauid: howe the men were serued. And the kynge sent to mete them (for the men were exceadyngely ashamed) and the kyng sayd: tary at Jericho, vntyl your beerdes be growen: & then retourne.

And when the chyldren of Ammon sawe that they stanke in the syght of Dauid, Hanon and the chyldren of Ammon sent a thousande talentes of syluer to hyre them charettes and horsmē out of Mesopotamia and out of Syria, Maacha, and out of Zoba. And they hyred .xxxij. thousande charettes, and the kynge of Maacha and his people, which came and pitched before Medeba. And the chyldren of Ammon gathered thē selues togyther frō theyr cyties, and came to batayl. And when Dauid herde of it, he sent Joab and all the hoost of strōge men. And the chyldrē of Ammon came out, and put them selues in araye to battayle before the gate of the citie. And the kynges that were come, kepte them by them selues backe in the felde.

C battayle was agaynst hym before and behynde he chose out al the chosen men of Israel, and put them in araye agaynst the Syrians. And ỹ rest of the people he deliuered vnto the hande of Abisai his brother, & they put them selues in araye agaynst the chyldren of Ammon. And he sayde: Yf the Syrians be to stronge for me, thou shalt succour me: and yf the chyldren of Ammon preuayle agaynst the, I wyll helpe the: Plucke vp thyne hert, and let vs play the men: for our peoples sake and for the cyties of oure God, and the Lorde shall do that which is good in hys owne syght. So Joab and the people that were with him: drue nye before the Syrians vnto the battayle, and they fledde before hym. And when the chyldren of Ammon sawe that the Syriās were fled, they ranne awaye lyke wyse before Abisai hys brother, and gate them into the cytie. And Joab came to Jerusalem.

D And when the Syrians sawe that they were put to the worse before Israel, they sent messengers and fet out the Syrians that were beyond the ryuer, and Sophach the captayne of ỹ hoost of Hadarezer wente before them. And it was tolde Dauid: and he gathered all Israel, & went togyther ouer Jordan, and came & set vpō them And when Dauid had put hym selfe in araye agaynst the Syrians, they fought wyth hym. But the Syrians fled before Israel. And Dauid destroyed of ỹ Syrians seuē thousand charrettes, and .xl. thousande fotemen, & kylled Sophach the captayne of the hoofte. And when the seruauntes of Hadarezer, sawe that they were put to ỹ worse before them of Israel: they made peace with Dauid, and became his seruauntes. Neyther wolde the Syrians helpe the chyldren of Ammon any more.

The .xx. Chapter:

And he brought out the people that were in it: & tormented them with sawes, and harowes of yron, and with other sharpe instrumentes, and so dealt Dauid with all the cyties of the childrē of Ammon. The .xxi. Chapter.

Dauid causeth the people to be nombred: and there dye .lxx. thousande men of the pestilence.

And Sathan stode vp agaynst Israel A and prouoked Dauid to nōbre Israel And Dauid sayd to Joab: and to ỹ rulers of ỹ people: Go ye and nōbre Israel frō Beerseba to Dan, and bringe it to me ỹ I may know the nōbre of them. And Joab answered: the Lord make his people an hundred tymes so many as they be. But my lorde, O kyng are they not all my lordes seruauntes? why thā doth my lorde requyre this thynge? why wyll my lorde be a cause of trespasse to Israel.

Neuertheless, the kynges worde preuayled against Joab. And Joab departed and walked thorowe out all them of Israel, and came to Jerusalem agayne, & gaue the nombre of ỹ compt of ỹ people vnto Dauid. And all they of Israel were a thousande, and an hundred thousande men that drewe swearde: and Juda was. cccc. lxx. thousande men that drewe swerde. But the Leuites and Ben Jamin counted he not amõg them. For the kynges worde was abhominable to Joab. And the Lord was displeased with this thyng: and smote Israel. And Dauid sayd vnto God: I haue synned exceadynglye in doinge this thynge. And now (I beseche the) do awaye the wyckednesse of thy seruaunte, for I haue done very foolyshly.

B And the Lorde spake vnto Gad Dauids sear, sayinge: go and tell Dauid, sayinge: Thus sayeth the Lorde: I gyue the the choyse of thre thynges: chose the one of them, that I maye do vnto the. And Gad came to Dauid, and said vnto him. Thus sayth the Lorde: Chose the eyther thre yeares kampshment, or thre monethes to be destroyed before thyne aduersaryes, and the swearde of thyne enemyes maye ouertake the, or els the swearde of the Lorde and pestilence in the lande thre dayes: and the aungel of the Lord destroying thorowout all the coostes of Israel. And now aduyse thy selfe, what worde I shal bynge agayne to hym that sente me. And Dauid sayd vnto Gad: I am in an exceding strayt. Let me fall nowe into the hande of the Lorde, for passynge greate are hys mercyes, but let me not fall into the hande of men.

C So the Lord sent pestilence vpon Israel and there were ouerthrowē of Israel. lxx. thousande men. And God sent the aungell into Jerusalem to destroy in it. And as he was about to destroy the Lord behelde, and had compassion on ẏ euyl and sayd to the aungel ẏ destroyed: it is ynough let now thy hande ceasse. And the aungell of the Lorde stode by the threshynge floure of Ornan the Jebusite. And Dauid lyft vp hys eyes, and sawe the angell of the Lorde stand betwene the earth and heauen, hauynge a drawen swearde in hys hande, stretched out towarde Jerusalem Then Dauid and the elders of Israell, whyche were clothed in sacke, fel vpon theyr faces. And Dauid sayd vnto God: Is it not I that cõmaũded the people to be nombred? It is I that haue synned and done euyl in dede, & what haue these shepe done? Let thyne hande (O my God) be on me and my fathers house, but not on thy people that they shoulde be punyshed.

And the angel of the Lord cõmanded Gad to saye to Dauid, that Dauid shulde go vp, and set vp an alter vnto the Lord in the threshyng flooze of Ornan the Jebusite. And Dauid went vp accordynge to the sayinge of Gad, which he spake in the name of the Lord. And Ornan turned about, and sawe the aungel, & his foure sonnes were with hym, and hyd them selues: But Ornan was threshyng wheat. And as Dauid came to Ornan, Ornan loked and sawe Dauid and went out of the threshyng flooze, & bowed hym selfe to Dauid with his face to the ground.

D And Dauid sayd to Ornan: gyue me ẏ place of the threshynge flooze, that I maye buylde an aultare therin vnto the Lorde. Thou shalte gyue it me for as moche monye as it is worth, that the plage maye ceasse from the people. And Ornan sayd vnto Dauid: take it to the, and let my lorde the kynge do that whiche semeth good in his eyes: lo, I gyue the oxen also for burnt sacrifyces, and the threshynge sleades for wood, and wheate for meatoffryng: I gyue it all. And kynge Dauid sayd to Ornan: not so: but I wyl bye it for as moche money as it is worth. For I wyl not take that which is thyne for the Lorde nor offre burntoffrynges without cost.

And so Dauid gaue to Ornan for that place sicles of golde. vi. hundred by wayght. And Dauid buylte there an aultare vnto the Lorde, and offred burntoffrynges and peaceoffrynges, and called vpon the Lorde, and he herde him frõ heauen in fyre vpon the aultare of burntoffrynge. And when the Lorde had spoken to the aungel, he put vp his swearde agayne into the sheeth of it: At that tyme when Dauid sawe that ẏ Lord had hearde hym in the threshynge flooze of Ornan the Jebusyte, he vsed to offre there: For the Tabernacle of the Lorde whyche Moses made in the wylderneße, and the aultere of burntoffrynge were at that season in the hyll at Gibeon And Dauid coulde not go before it to aske counsayle at God, for he was afrayed of the swearde of the Aungell of the Lorde.

And he called Salomon his sonne, and charged hym to buylde an house for the Lorde God of Israel. And Dauid sayde to Salomon: *my sonne, I thoughte (as it was in myne herte) to buyld an house vnto the name of the Lorde my God. But ẏ worde of the Lorde came to me saying: thou hast shed moch bloude, and hast made great battayles: thou shalt therfore not buylde an house vnto my name: for thou hast shed moch bloude vpon the earth in my syght. Beholde, a sonne is borne to the, and he shalbe a mã of rest, for I wyll gyue hym rest from all his enemyes rounde about. For his name is Salomon: and I wyl send rest & peace vpõ Israel in his dayes

AND Dauid gathered togyther all the lordes of Israel: the lordes of the trybes, the lordes of the companyes that mynystred to the kynge by course, the captaynes ouer thousandes & ouer hundredes, & the lordes that had the ouersyght ouer al the substaunce & possessyon of Dauid, his sonnes, with the chamberlaynes: all the myghty & valyaunt and all actyue men vnto Jerusalem. And kynge Dauid stode vp vpon his fete, and sayd.

Heare my brethren and my people. *I had in my herte to buylde an house of rest for the arke of the couenaunt of the Lorde, and for the foote stole of our God, and had made redy for ꝑ buyldynge. But God sayd vnto me * thou shalt not buylde an house for my name, bycause thou hast ben a man of warre, and hast shed bloude. Moreouer, the Lorde God of Israel * chose me before all the house of my father, to be kynge ouer Israell for euer, for in Juda wolde he chose a captayne, and of the housholde of Juda is the house of my father, and amonge the sonnes of my father he had a lust to me to make me kynge ouer all Israell. And of all my sonnes (for the Lorde hath gyuẽ me many sonnes) he hath chosen Salomon my sonne to syt vpon the seate of ꝑ kyngdome of the Lorde in Israell. And he sayd vnto me: *Salomon my sonne, he shall buylde me an house & courtes, I haue chosen hym to be my son and I wyl be his father. I wyl stablysh his kingdome for euer: yf he wil be stronge to do my commaũdementes & my lawes, as it goeth this day: Now therfore in the syght of all Israel the congregacion of the Lorde, & in the audyence of our God: kepe and seke for all the cõmaundementes of the Lord your God, that ye may enioy a good lande, and leaue inheritaunce for your chyldren after you for euer. And thou Salomon my sõne knowe thou the God of thy father, & serue hym with a pure herte, and with a swete courage. * For the Lorde searcheth al hertes, and vnderstandeth all the ymagynacyons of thoughtes: And yf thou seke hym: he wyll be founde of the. But yf thou forsake hym, he wyll cast the of for euer. Take hede now, for the Lorde hath chosen the, to buylde hym an house of a Sanctuary. Be stronge therfore, and playe the man.

AND * when Salomon had made an ende of prayeng, & there came downe fyre from heauen and consumed the * burnt offrynge and the sacrifices. And the house was fylled with the glory of the Lorde, and the preastes coulde not go into the house of the Lorde, bycause the glory of the Lorde had fylled the Lordes house. And when al the chyldren of Israel sawe how the fyre and the glory of the Lorde came downe vpon the house, they fell downe flat vpon theyr faces to the earth, vpon the pauement, and worshypped and cõfessed vnto the Lorde, that he is gracious, and that his mercy lasteth euer.

B And the kynge and all the people offred sacrifices before the Lorde. And kyng Salomon offred a sacrifyce of. xxii. thousande oxen, and an hundred and twentye thousande shepe. Moreouer, Salomon halowed the myddle of the courte that was before the Lorde, for there he offred burntoffringes, and the fat of the peace offrynges, bycause the brasen aulter which Salomõ had made, was not able to receyue ỹ burnt offrynges, and the meateoffrynges, & the fat.

i.Ma.viii.g So at the same tyme Salomon kept * a feest of seuen dayes, and all they of Israel with hym an exceedyng great congregacyon, euen from the entryng in of Hamath vnto the ryuer of Egipt. And in the eyght daye they made a gatherynge: For they kept the dedicacion of the aulter seuen dayes, and the feest seuen dayes. And the. xxiii. daye of the seuenth moneth he let the people departe into theyr tentes glad and mery in herte: for the goodnesse that the Lorde had shewed to Dauid & to Salomon, & to Israel his people.

and the kynges house, & all that came in his hert to make in the house of the Lorde, & in his owne house, wente prosperously forewarde.

And the Lorde appered to Salomõ by nyght and sayd to hym: I haue herde thy peticion, and
* haue chosen this place for my selfe, to be an ii.par.vi.e. house of sacrifice. Yf I shut vp heauen that there be no rayne: or yf I cõmaunde the locustes to deuoure the lande: or yf I sende pestilence amonge my people: and yf they that are of my people, among whom my name is called vpon, do humble them selues, and make intercessyon, and seke my presence, and turne from theyr wycked wayes: then wyll I heare from heauen, and be mercyful to theyr synne: and wyll heale theyr lande.

and myne eares attente vnto the prayer that is made in this place. And therfore nowe * I haue ii.par.vi.e chosen and sanctifyed this house, that my name be there for euer: and myne eyes and myne herte shall be there perpetually.

And yf thou wylt walke before me, as Dauid thy father walked, to do all that I haue commaunded the, and shalt obserue my statutes and my lawes, then wyl I stablysshe the seate of thy kyngdome, accordyng as I made the couenaunt with Dauid thy father, saying: * thou shalt not ii.reg.ii.a. and.xx.b. be without a man to be ruler in Israel. But and i.para.vi.e yf ye turne awaye, and forsake my statutes and cõmaundementes whiche I haue set before you, and shall go and serue other goddes, & worshyp them: then wyll I plucke them vp by the rootes, out of my lande whiche I haue gyuen them, and this house which I haue sanctified for my name wyll I cast out of my syght, and wyll make it to be a prouerbe and a iest amonge all nacyons. And euery one that passeth by shall be astonyed at this house whiche belonged to the moost hye God, and shall saye: * why hath the Lorde delt deu.xxix.b. iii.reg.ix.b on this fassyon with this lande, and with this Iere.xxii.c house? And they shall answere: bycause they forsoke the Lorde God of theyr father, whiche brought them out of the lande of Egypte, and caught holde on other goddes, and worshypped them, and serued them: euen therfore hath he brought all this euyll vpon them.

¶ The cyties that Salomon buylded after that the house of God was fynished.

AND * it fortuned, that after. xx. yere whẽ Salomon had buylte the house of the Lorde & his owne house: he buylt the cyties ỹ Hiram gaue hym, & put of ỹ chyldren of Israel in thẽ. And Salomõ went to Hamath mathzoba, & strēgthed it. And he buylt Thadmor in ỹ wylderneſſe, and repayred all ỹ store cities which were in Hamath. And he built Bethhoron the vpper, & Bethhorō the nether, strong cityes, hauynge walles, gates and barres. And Baalah, and all the store cityes that Salomon had, and all the charet cityes, and the Cityes of the horſemen, & euery pleaſaunt place that Salomon had luſt to buylde in Jeruſalem, & Libanon, & thorowout al the lande of his dominyon.

B And all the people that were lefte of the Hethites, Amorytes, Pherezites, Heuites, and Iebuſites, whyche were not of the chyldren of Iſrael: but were the chyldren of them whiche were lefte after them in the lande, and were not conſumed of the chyldren of Iſrael, them dyd Salomon make to paye trybute vntyll thys daye.

But of the chyldren of Iſraell dyd Salomon make no bondmen for his worke: but they were mē of warre, and rulers, and great lordes wyth hym, and captaynes ouer his charettes & horſemen. And kynge Salomons offycers that ouerſawe, and ruled the people, were two hundred and fyftye. And Salomon brought ỹ doughter of Pharao oute of the citye of Dauyd, into the houſe that he had buylded for her. For he sayde: my wyfe ſhall not dwell in the houſe of Dauyd kynge of Iſrael, for it is holy: becauſe that the C Arke of the Lorde is come vnto it.

Then Salomon offred burnt offrynges vnto the Lorde, on the aultare of the Lorde, which he had buylte before the porche, doynge euerye thynge in his due tyme, and offeryng according to the commaundement of Moſes, in the Sabbothes, newe Moones, and ſolempne feaſtes, Exo.xxiii.e * thre tymes in the yeare, that is to saye: in the Deu.xvi.c. feaſt of ſwete bread, in the feaſt of weakes, and in the feaſte of Tabernacles.

And Salomon ſet the ſortes of preaſtes to theyr offyces, as Dauyd his father had ordered them, and the Leuytes in theyr watches, for to prayſe & mynyſter before the preſtes day by day and the porters by courſe, at euery gate.

And they omytted not the cōmaundement of the kynge vnto the preaſtes and the Leuites, concernynge any maner of thynge, and concernynge the treaſures. For Salomon made prouiſyon for the charges, from the fyrſte daye that the foundacyon of the houſe of the Lorde was layde, tyll it was fynyſshed, that the houſe of the Lorde was perfyte. Then wente kynge Salomō to Ezion Gaber, and to Eloth at the ✻(red) D ſee ſyde in the lande of Edom. And Hiram ſente hym by the handes of his ſeruauntes, ſhyppes, and ſeruaūtes ỹ had klowledge of the ſee: & they came wt the ſeruauntes of Salomon to Ophir, and carped hence foure hundred and fyfty talentes of golde, & brought it to kyng Salomon.

C The.ix.Chapter.

C The comunicacyon of Salomon wyth the quene of Saba, and the gyftes that the one gaue the other. The death of Salomon, after whom ſucceded Reboboam.

And* when the Quene of Saba heard of 3.Re.x.a. the fame of Salomon, ſhe came to proue mat.xiii.d hym in harde queſtyons at Jeruſalem, Luke.x.d. with a very greate company, with camels that bare ſpyces and plentye of golde, and precyous ſtones. And when ſhe was come to Salomon, ſhe communed wyth hym of all that ſhe had in her herte. And Salomon ſoyled her all her queſtyons, and there was not one worde hyd from Salomon, whiche he tolde her not.

And when the Quene of Saba had ſene the B wyſedome of Salomon, and the houſe that he had buylt, & the meate of hys table, the ſyttyng of his ſeruauntes, and the ſtandyng of his waiters, theyr apparell, hys buttelers, theyr apparel, his goynge vp, by the whiche he wente into the houſe of the Lorde, there was no more ſpyrete in her. And ſhe ſayde to the kynge: the ſayenge which I herde in myne owne lande, of thyne actes, and of thy wyſedome, is true. I beleued not the wordes of them, vntyll I came, & myne eyes had ſene it. And behold the one halfe of thy wyſedome was not tolde me: for thou exceadeſt the fame that I herde. Happy are thy men, and happye are theſe thy ſeruauntes whiche ſtande before ỹ alway, and heare thy wiſdom. Bleſſed be the Lorde thy God, whiche had luſt to the, to ſet the kyng on his ſeate, that thou myghteſt be kynge, ordeyned by the Lord thy God. Becauſe thy God loueth Iſrael, and hath delyte to make them contynue euer: therfore made he the kynge ouer them: to do ryght and equitye.

And ſhe gaue the kynge an hundred and. xx. C talentes of golde, & of ſpyces exceadynge great aboundaunce and precyous ſtones, neither was there any more ſuch ſpyce, as the Quene of Saba gaue kynge Salomon. And the ſeruauntes of Hyram, & the ſeruauntes of Salomon which brought golde fro Ophir, brought alſo Algume wood and precyous ſtones. And the kyng made of the Algume wood, ſteyres in the houſe of the Lord, and in the kynges palace, and harpes and pſalteryes for ſyngers. And there was no ſuche wood ſene before in the land of Juda. And kyng Salomon gaue to the Quene of Saba euerye pleaſaunt thynge ỹ ſhe aſked, but not ſo muche as ſhe brought vnto the king. And ſo ſhe turned & went away to her owne lāde wt her ſeruaūtes

The weyght of golde that came to Salomō D in one yeare, was ſyxe hūdred. lxvi. talentes of golde, beſydes that which chapmen & marchaūtes brought: and all the kynges of Arabia & rulers of that coūtre, brought golde and ſyluer to Salomon. And kynge Salomon made two hū dred bucklers of beaten golde, and ſyxe hundred ſycles of beaten gold were ſpent vpon one buckler, and thre hundred ſhyldes made he of beaten golde, and one ſhylde coſt thre hundred peces of golde, and the kynge put them in the houſe that was in the foreſt of Libanon.

And the kynge made a great ſeate of Ivory, & ouerlayde it with pure golde. And there were ſyxe ſteppes to the ſeat, with a foteſtole of golde faſtened to the ſeate: and pommels on eche ſyde of the ſyttynge place, and two lyons ſtandynge by the pommelles. And. xii. lyons ſtode on ỹ one ſyde and on the other vpon the ſyxe ſteppes, ſo ỹ there was no ſuch worke made in any kingdom

And all the drynkynge vessels of kyng Salomon were of golde, and all the vesselles of the house that was in the forest of Libanon were of precious golde: for syluer was counted nothyng worth in the dayes of Salomon. For the kynges shippes went to Tharsis with the seruauntes of Hyram: euerye thre yeare ones came the shyppes to Tharsis, and brought golde, syluer, Iuory, and apes, and pecockes.

E * And kynge Salomon passed all the kynges of the earth in rychesse and wysdome. And all the kynges of the earthe sought the presence of Solomon, to heare hys wysdome that God had put in his hert. And they brought euery mā hys present, vessels of syluer, & vessels of golde, rayment, harnesses, spyces, horses, and mules, & what so euer myght be gotten yere by yere.

iii.Reg.x.d

iii.re.iiii.d * And Salomon had foure thousand stalles for horses, and charettes, and twelue thousande horsemen, whome he bestowed in the charret cityes, and some were with the kynge at Jerusalem. And he raygned ouer all the kynges that were from Euphrates vnto the lande of ỹ Philistynes: and to the border of Egypte.

iii.reg.x.d ii.Par.i.d * And the kynge made syluer in Jerusalem, as plenteous as stones. And Ceder trees as plēteous as the moulbere trees that growe in the valleyes. And they brought vnto Salomō horses out of Egypte, and out of all landes.

iii.Re.xi.g * The rest of the actes of kynge Salomon fyrst and last, are they not wrytten in the sayinges of Nathan the prophete, and in the prophecye of Ahiah the Silonite, and in the visyons of Iddo the sear of visyons agaynst Jeroboam ỹ sonne of Nabat? And Salomon raygned in Jerusalem vpon all Israel fourty eres. And Salomon slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the citye of Dauid his father: and Rehoboam his sonne raygned in his steade.

The.x. Chapter.

A iii.re.xii.a And * Rehoboam wente to Sichem: for to Sichē were all Israell come togyther, to make hym kynge. And when Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat (which iii.reg.x.g. * was fled into Egypte from ỹ presence of Salomon the kynge) heard it, he returned out of Egypt. And they sent and called hym. And so Jeroboam and all they of Israell came and comuned with Rehoboam, sayenge: Thy father layd a greuous yoke vpon vs: now therfore rempt thou somwhat of ỹ greuous seruyce of thy father, and of his heuy yocke that he put vpon vs: and we wyl serue the. And he sayd to them: come agayne vnto me after thre dayes And the people departed.

B And kynge Rehoboam cōsayled wyth the elders that had stande before Salomon hys father, whyle he yet lyued, and he sayde: what counsayle geue ye me, to answere thys people agayne? And they tolde hym, sayeng: Yf thou be kynde to this people, and shewe thy selfe lowly to them, and speake louyng wordes to theym, they wyl be thy seruauntes for euer. But he left the counsayle whyche the elders gaue hym, and toke counsayle wyth the ponge men that were growen vp with hym, and that stode in his presence. And he sayd vnto them: what aduise geue ye, that we maye answere this people, whyche haue comuned wō me, saying: Abate somwhat of the yocke wyhch thy father dyd put vpon vs.

And the ponge men that were growen vp wō hym, spake vnto hym, saying: Thus shalt thou answere the people that spake to the, sayinge: Thy father made oure yocke heuy: but make ỹ it somwhat lyghter for vs. Thus shalt thou say vnto them: my lytle fynger shalbe heuyer them my fathers loynes. *For where my father put a heuy yocke vpon you, I wyl put more to your yocke: my father chastysed you wyth whyppes, but I wyll chastyce you with scorpyons. iii.reg.xii.c

And so Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam the thyrde day, as the kynge bad, sayenge: come agayne to me the thyrdde daye. And the kynge answered them cruelly: & kynge Rehoboam lefte the councell of the aged men, & answered them after the aduyse of ỹ ponge men sayenge: My father made your yocke greuous, and I wyll adde therto: my father chastised you wyth whyppes, but I wyll chastyce you wyth scorpions. And so the kynge herkened not vnto the people, but the occasyon came of God that ỹ Lorde myght make good his sayeng, *whiche he spake, by the hande of Ahia the Silonite to Jeroboam ỹ sonne of Nebat. And when al they of Israel sawe ỹ the kynge wolde not agre vnto them, the people answered the kynge, sayenge: what part haue we wō Dauid, or enheryta̅uce wō the sōne of Isai? let euery mā of Israel go to his tent. *And now Dauid, se to thyne owne house And so all Israell gat them to theyr tentes, so ỹ Rehoboam raygned ouer no mo of ỹ children of Israel, thē dwelt in ỹ cityes of Juda. Thē kyng Rehoboam also sent Hadurā ỹ was ruler ouer the trybute, & the chyldren of Israel stonēd him wyth stones ỹ he dyed. But kynge Rehoboam made spede to get hym vp to hys charet, to flye to Jerusalem. And they of Israell rebelled agaynst the house of Dauid vnto this daye. iii.Re.xi.f. D iii.reg.xii. ch.Re.xii.d

The.xi. Chapter.

Rehoboam is forbydden to fyght agaynst Jeroboam. He hath.xviii. wyues, and.lx. concubynes, and by them.xxviii. sonnes, and.lx. doughters.

A And when Rehoboam was come to Jerusalem, * he gathered of ỹ house of Juda and Ben Jamin, nine score M. chosen men of warre to fyght agaynst Israel, & to bryng the kyngdome agayn to Rehoboam. And the worde of ỹ Lord came to Semeiahu the man of God, sayeng: speake vnto Rehoboam, the sonne of Salomon kynge of Juda, & to all them of Israell ỹ are in Juda, and Ben Jamin, and saye: thus sayeth the Lorde: Ye shall not go vp nor fyghte agaynst your brethren: returne euery man to his house for this thyng is done of me. And they obeyed the wordes of the Lord, and returned frō goynge agaynste Jeroboam.

B And Rehoboam dwelt in Jerusalem, & built stronge cityes in Juda. He builded vp Bethlee̅,

And he repayred the stronge holdes and put captaynes in them, and store of vitayle, and wyne, and oyle. And in all cityes he put shyldes and speares, and made them exceadynge strong hauynge Juda and Ben Jamin on his syde.

¶ And the prestes & the Leuites that were in al Israel, resorted vnto hym out of all theyr coastes. For the Leuites left theyr suburbes & their

And after the Leuites there went of all the trybes of Israel, suche as submytted theyr hertes to seke the Lorde God of Israel, and came to Jerusalem, to offer vnto the Lorde God of theyr fathers. And so they strenthed the kyngdom of Juda, & made Rehoboboam the sonne of Salomon myghtye thre yeare longe, for thre yeare they walked in ỳ waye of Dauid and Salomon.

D And Rehoboam toke hym Mahalath the doughter of Jerimoth the sonne of Daupd to wyfe, & Abihail the doughter of Eliab the sōne of Jsai, whiche bare hym chyldren Jeus. Sama

And Rehoboā loued Maacah the doughter of Absalon aboue al hys wyues and cōcubynes, for he toke eyghtene wyues, and thre score concubynes, and begate xxviii. sōnes, and thre score doughters. And Rehoboam made Abiah the sonne of Maacah the cheke ruler amonge his brethren, and to haue the ouersyght of the kyngdome. And he playde wysely, and scatered all his chyldren thorowout al the countreyes of Juda and Ben Jamin vnto euery stronge citye. And he gaue them aboundaunce of vitayle, and obtayned many wyues.

And when the Lorde sawe that they submytted them selues, the worde of ỳ Lorde came to Semeia, sayenge: They submyt them selues, therfore I wyll not destroye them. And it came to passe that when the kyng entred into the house of the Lord the garde came and fet them and brought them agayne vnto the garde chāber. And when he humbled hym selfe, the wrath of ỳ Lorde turned from hym, that he wolde not destroye al together. And in Juda all was well.

Do not you knowe howe that the Lorde God of Israel gaue ỹ kingdome ouer them of Israel, to Dauyd forever, euen to hym and to his sonnes wyth a salted couenaunt? And Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat ỹ seruaunt of Salomon the sonne of Dauid is rysen vp, and hath rebelled against his Lord. And there gathered to him leude men the chyldren of Belial, & preuayled agaynst Rehoboā the sonne of Salomon, whē Rehoboam was ponge and tender herted, & coulde not stande before them.

B And nowe ye saye, ỹ ye be able to preuayle agaynst the kyngdome of the Lorde, whiche is in the handes of ỹ sonnes of Dauid, & ye be a great multytude, & haue the golden calues * which Jeroboā made you for goddes. * And haue ye not caste out the preastes of the Lorde the sonnes of Aaron, and the Leuites, and haue made you preستes after the maner of the nacyons of other landes? so that whosoeuer cōmeth & cōsecrateth his hand with a ponge ore & .vii. rams, ỹ same may be a Preaste of them that are no goddes.

SO Abia slepte with his fathers, and they buryed hym in the citye of Dauyd, and * Asa hys sonne raygned in hys steade: In whose dayes the land was in quyetnesse ten yeare. A Math. i. b.

And * Asa dyd that was good and ryghte in the eyes of the Lorde his God: for he toke away strange aulters & the hyaulters, & brake downe the ymages, and cut downe the groues, and cōmaunded Juda to seke the Lorde God of theyr fathers, and to do accordynge to the lawe & commaundement. And he put away out of al cityes of Juda the hyaulters and the ymages: and the kyngdom was quyet before hym. And he buylt stronge Cityes in Juda: because the lande was in rest, and he had no warre in those yeres. For the Lorde had geuen hym rest. iii. Re. xv. a

B Therfore he sayd to Juda: let vs buyld these Cityes and make aboute them walles, towres, gates, and barres, for the lande is yet in rest before vs, because we haue sought the Lorde oure God: we haue sought hym, and he hath geuē vs rest on euery syde: and so they buylte and it prospered wyth them. And Asa had an army of mē that bare shyldes and speares oute of Juda thre hundred thousande: and out of Ben Jamin that bare shyldes, and drue bowes, two hundred and foure score thousād, al these were valiaūt men.

C And there came out agaynst them Zarah, the blacke Moryan * wyth an hoste of ten hundred thousand, and thre hundred charettes, and came as farre as Maresa. And Asa went out before hym, and they ioyned the battayle in the valley of Zephata beside Maresca. And Asa cryed vnto the Lorde hys God, and sayd Lorde, * it is no harde thynge wyth the to helpe eyther many, or them that haue no power: helpe vs therfore, O Lorde our God, for we trust to ỹ, & in thy name we go agaynst thys multytude. So the Lorde smote ỹ blacke mores before Asa and Juda, and the blacke mores fled And Asa and the people that was wyth hym folowed after them vnto Gerer. And the blacke mores hoste was ouerthrowen, that there was none of them lefte, but were destroyed before ỹ Lorde and before his hoste. And they caryed awaye a myghtye greate praye. AND the spyrete of God came vpon Azaria: the sonne of Obed. And he wente out to mete Asa, and sayde vnto hym: heare me Asa, and all Juda, and Ben Jamin. The Lorde is A i. Re. xxiiii. b. D is wyth you, whyle ye be wyth hym, and when ye seke hym, he wyll be founde of you: & a gayne when ye forsake hym, he also wyll forsake you. And truely for a longe season in Israell no man sought the true God, no man regarded the preest that taught them, no man cared for the lawe. And whē any man in his trouble dyd turne vnto the Lorde God of Israel, and sought hym, he was found of them. And in that tyme ther was no peace to hym, that dyd go out & in: but great sedicyon was there amonge all the enhabyters of the earth. And nacion was destroyed of nacyon, and citye of citye: for God dyd moue all aduersytie amonge them. Playe ye therfore ye men and let not your handes slacke, for youre worke shall be rewarded.

B And when Asa heard those wordes, and the prophesye of Azaria: the sonne of Obed the prophete, he toke courage, and put awaye the abhominable ydols oute of all the lande of Juda and Ben Jamin, & out of the cityes which he wanne in mount Ephraim, and renued the Aultare of the Lorde, that was before the porche of ye Lord And he gathered al Juda & Ben Jamin, and the straungers wyth them oute of Ephraim: Manasse and Simeon. For there fell many to hym out of Israel, when they saw that the Lorde his God was with hym. So they assembled to Jerusalem the thyrde moneth, the fyftenth yere of the raygne of Asa. And they offred vnto ye Lord ye same tyme of ye spoile which they had brought vii. hundred oxen, and. vii. thousande shepe.

C And they made a couenaunt to seke ye Lorde God of theyr fathers, wyth all theyr herte, and all theyr soule. And who so euer wolde not seke the Lorde God of Israel, shulde dye for it: whether he were small or great, man or womā. And they sware vnto the Lorde wyth a loude voyce shoutyng and blowynge wyth trompettes and shawmes. And all they in Juda reioyced at the othe, for they had swore vnto the Lorde wyth all theyr harte, and sought hym wyth all theyr lust, and he was founde of them. And the Lorde gaue them rest rounde about on euery syde.

D And kyng Asa put Maacha his mother out of auctorite, because she had made an abhompyor nable ydoll (of priapus) in a groue: & Asa brake downe her ydoll, & stamped it, & burnte it at the broke Cedron. But all the hyaulters were not taken awaye out of Israel: thoughe the herte of Asa was perfyte all his dayes. And he brought into the house of God the thynges that hys father had dedycate, & that he hym selfe had dedycate: euen syluer, and golde, and Jewelles. And Judi.iii.b. there was no more warre vnto the *. xxxv. yere of the raygne of Asa.

A In the. xxxvi. yere of ye raygne of Asa iii.Re.xv.c came Baasa kynge of Israel vp a-gaynst Juda, & buylt Rama to thentent ye he wolde let none passe out or or in (safely) to Asa kyng of Juda. And Asa fet out golde and syluer, out of the treasures of the house of ye Lorde, & of the kynges house & sent to Benhadad kynge of Syrya ye dwelt at Damasec, & sayde: There is a confederacion betwene me & the, betwen my father & thyne. Behold, I haue sent the syluer & gold, that ye wylt come & breake thine appoyntment with Baasa kynge of Israel ye he maye departe frō me. And Benhadad graunted vnto kynge Asa, & sent to the captaynes of his army to the cityes of Israel. And they smote Ion, Dan, & Abelmain, and the strong cityes of Nephthaly: And when Baasa heard this, he lefte buyldyng of Rama, and let his worke cease. And then Asa ye kynge toke all Juda, & caryed away the stones & tymber of Rama wher wyth Baasa was a buyldyng and he buylt therwith Geba and Mizpa.

At that same tyme Hanani the sear came to C Asa kynge of Juda: & sayd vnto hym: because ye hast trusted in the kyng of Syrya, & not rather put thy trust in the Lorde thy God, therfore is ye hoste of the kyng of Syrya escaped out of thyne hāde. *Had not the blacke Mores, & Lubim an ij.pa.xiiii.c
exceadynge greate hoste wyth many charettes and horsemen? And yet bycause ye trustedest in the Lorde, he delyuered them into thyne hande. For the eyes of the Lorde beholde all ye earth, to strēgth them ye are of perfyte herte toward hym
henseforth thou shalt haue warre. And Asa was wroth with ye sear, & put hym into a prisō house for he was dyspleased wt hym, because of thys thynge. And Asa destroyed certayne of ye people D the same season. And behold, these dedes of Asa fyst and last, are wrytten in the boke of the kynges of Juda and Israel. And Asa in the. xxxix. yere of his raygne fell sycke in his fete, and that dysease contynued verye longe. And* in hys Eccle.

And they buried him in his owne sepulchre, whyche he had made for hym selfe in the Citye of Dauyd, and layde hym in the bed which he had fylled with dyuerse kyndes of spyces & swete odoures, made by ye crafte of the potecaryes. And they burnte very muche spyce aboute hym.

AND *Jehosaphat his sōne raygned A iii.Ma.th.f.b. in his steade, and preuailed against Israel. And he put souldyers in al ye strong cities of Juda, and set rulers in the lande of Juda & in the cities of Ephraim, which Asa his father had wōne. And ye Lorde was wyth Jehosaphat, because he walked in the olde wayes of his father Dauyd, and sought not Baalim. But sought ye Lorde God of his father, and walked in hys cōmaundements: and not after the doinges of Israel. And the Lorde stablyshed the kyngdome in his hande, & all they that were in Juda, brought hym presentes, so that he had aboundaunce of ryches & honoure. And he lyfte vp his hert vnto ye wayes of the Lorde, & he put downe yet more of the hyaulters aulters and groues oute of Juda.

B In the thyrde yeare of hys raygne he sent to hys lordes, euen to Benhail, Obadia, zacharia Nethanel, and to Michaahu, that they shoulde teache in the cityes of Juda, and wyth theym he sent Leuites: euen Semeiahu, Nethaniahu, zabadiahu, Asahel, Semiramoth, Jehonathan, Adoniahu, Tobiahu, & Tubadonia, and wyth them Elisamah and Jehoram prestes. And they taught in Juda, and had the boke of the lawe of God with them, and went about thorowout al
C the cityes of Juda, and taught the people.

And the feare of the Lorde fell vpon all the kyngdomes of the landes ꝑ were rounde about Juda, & they fought not agaynst Jehosaphat, & some of ꝑ Philistines brought Jehosaphat gyftes & trybute syluer. And therto the Arabians brought hym catel: euen. vii. M. & vii. C. rams & vii. M. & vii. C. begotes. And so Jehosaphat prospered & grue vp on hye. And he buylt in Juda, castels & stronge cityes, & he had greate substaunce in the cityes of Juda, but the men of armes and strongest soudyers were in Jerusalem

C The. xviii. Chapter.

A And Jehosaphat had aboundaunce
Ki. xxii. a of ryches and honoure, & ioyned affynyte with Ahab. And *after certayn yeres he wēt downe to Ahab to Samaria. And Ahab slue many shepe & oxen for him, and for the people ꝑ he had with hym, and entreted hym to go vp wt him vn to Ramoth in Gilead. And Ahab kyng of Israel sayde to Jehosaphat kyng of Juda: wylt ꝑ go with me to Ramoth in Gilead? And he answered hym: I wyl be as ꝑ and my people shalbe as thyne, and we wyl go with the to the warre.

B And Jehosaphat sayde vnto the kyng of Israel: aske councel I pray the at the worde of the Lorde thys same daye. Therfore the kynge of Israell gathered together of prophetes. iiii. C. men, & saide vnto them: shal we go to Ramoth in Gilead to fyght, or shulde I cease? And they sayd: go vp, & God shall delyuer it into the kynges hande. But Jehosaphat sayde: is there yet here neuer a prophete more of ꝑ Lordes that we myght aske of hym? And the kynge of Israell sayd vnto Jehosaphat: there is yet one man, by whom we maye aske the Lord. But I hate him for he neuer prophecyeth me good, but alwaye euell, & the same is Michea the sonne of Jimla, and Jehosaphat sayde: let not the kyng saye so.

And the kynge of Israel called one of his chā C berlayns, & sayde, fetche hether quickly Michea the sonne of Jimla. And the kynge of Israell, & Jehosaphat kynge of Juda sate eyther of them on hys seate in theyr apparell, in a threshynge floure besyde the gate of Samaria, and all the prophetes prophecyed before them. And one zedekia the sonne of Chanana had made hym hornes of yron, and sayde: thus sayth the Lorde, wt these shalt thou ouerthrowe Syrya, vntyl they be brought to nought. And all ꝑ prophetes prophecyed euen so, sayenge: Go vp to Ramoth in Gilead, and it shall prosperere wyth the: for the Lord shal delyuer it into ꝑ hande of the kyng.

And ꝑ messenger ꝑ went to cal Michea spake D to hym, sayenge: beholde, the wordes of the prophetes speake good to ꝑ kynge wyth one assent, let thy wordes therfore be lyke one of theyrs, ꝑ thou speake that whiche is pleasaunt. And Michea sayde: as truly as ꝑ Lord lyueth: euē what my God sayth ꝑ wyl I speake. And whē he was come to the kynge, the kynge sayde vnto hym: Michea, shall we go to Ramoth in Gilead to fyght, or leaue of? And he sayde: go vp, & al shal be well: and they shall be delyuered into poure hande. And the kynge sayde to hym: So and so many tymes do I charge ꝑ, that ꝑ saye nothyng but the truth to me: in the name of the Lorde.

Then he sayde: I dyd se all them of Israel scattered in ꝑ mountayns, as shepe ꝑ haue no shepeherde. And the Lord saide: these haue no master let them returne euery man therfore to his house in peace. And the kyng of Israel sayde to Jehosaphat: dyd I not tell the, ꝑ he wold not prophecye good vnto me: but euell? But he sayde agayn therfore heare ye ꝑ worde of the Lorde. *I saw iii. re. xxiii. d Esay. vi. a. the Lorde syt vpon hys seate, & al the cōpany of heauen stode on hys ryght hande & on hys lefte. And the Lorde sayde: who shall deceaue Ahab kynge of Israel: ꝑ he maye go vp & be ouerthrowen at Ramoth in Gilead? And he said: one sayeth thys, another ꝑ. And there came out a spyrite & stode before ꝑ Lord & sayd: I wyl deceaue him E And ꝑ Lord sayde vnto hym: Wherein? And he sayde: I wyl go out, and be a lyenge spyrite in the mouth of all hys prophets. And the Lord sayde thou shalt deceaue hym: & shalt preuayle go out and do euen so. And now therfore beholde, *the iii. re. xxiii. d Job. xii. d. Lorde hath put a lyenge spyrite in ꝑ mouthes of Eze. xiiii. e all these thy Prophets, & the Lorde hath spoken euell agaynst the. And zedekia the sonne of Chanana went to, & smote Michea vpō the cheke: & sayd, by what way went ꝑ spyrite of ꝑ Lorde frō me, to speake wt the? And Michea said ꝑ shalt se the daye when ꝑ shalt go in from chābre to chābre, for to hyde thy selfe. And the kynge of Israel sayd: take ye Michea, & bryng hym to Amon the gouerner of ꝑ citye & to Joas ꝑ kynges sōne and ye shall saye, thus sayth the kyng, put thys felowe in the preson house, & fede hym wt breade F of affliccion & water of trouble vntyl I come agayne in peace. And Michea sayd: yf ꝑ come a-gayne in peace, then hath not the Lorde spoken to me. And he sayde herkē to ye people euery one of you. And so the kynge of Israel and Jehosaphat the kynge of Juda went vp to Ramoth in Gilead. And the kynge of Israel sayde vnto Jehosaphat: I must chaunge me, when I go to the batayle: but se that thou haue thyne owne apparel vpon the. And the kynge of Israel chaunged hym selfe, and they came to batayl. But ꝑ kyng of Siria had cōmaunded ꝑ captayns of the charets ꝑ were with him, sayinge: se ꝑ ye fyght not agaynst small or great, saue agaynst the kynge

G of Israel onely. And when the captaynes of the charettes sawe Jehosaphat, they sayde: it is the kynge of Israel, & therfore they cōpassed about hym to fyght. But Jehosaphat cryed out, & the Lorde helped him, & God chased them away frō hym. For it came to passe ꝑ when the captaynes of the charets perceyued ꝑ it was not the kynge of Israel, they turned backe agayne from hym. And a certayne man drewe a bowe with all his myght, & smote the kynge of Israel betwene the ioyntes of his habergin. And he saide to his charetman: turne thyne hande, that thou mayst carye me out of ꝑ hoste, for I am wounded. And ꝑ bataple ceassed that daye. Howbeit the kynge of Israel caused hys charette to stande styll agaynst the Sirians vntyll euen. And about the tyme of the sunne goyng downe, he dyed.

¶ After Jehosaphat was rebuked by the prophet Jehu, he called agayn the people to the honouryng of ꝑ Lorde.

AND Jehosaphat ꝑ king of Juda came home agayne in peace to Jerusalem.
And Jehu the son of Hanani the seare went out to mete him, & sayd to king Jehosaphat: Woldest ꝑ helpe the vngodly, & loue them that hate ꝑ Lorde? therfore is wrath come vpon ꝑ from before ꝑ Lorde. Neuertheles, there are some good actes foundin the, in ꝑ thou hast hewen downe ꝑ groues out of ꝑ lande and hast prepared thyne hert to seke god. And so Jehosaphat dwelt at Jerusalē: and turned and went out to ꝑ people from Beerseba to mouṫ E
B phraim, and brought them agayn vnto ꝑ Lorde God of theyr fathers. And he set Judges in the land throwout al ꝑ strong cityes of Juda, citye by citye: & sayde to the Judges: take hede what ye do, for ye execute not ꝑ iudgementes of man, but of God, whyche is w̄ you in the iudgement. Wherfore now, let the feare of ꝑ Lorde be vpon you and take hede, and be doing (the thing that pleaseth hym) for there is no vnryghteousnesse wyth the Lorde our God: *that he shoulde haue any respecte of persones, or take rewardes.

Moreouer in Jerusalem dyd Jehosaphat set
C of the Leuites, & of the prestes & of the auncyent fathers ouer Israel, in the iudgement & cause of the Lorde. And they returned agayne to Jerusalem. And he charged them sayeng: Thus shal ye do in the feare of the Lorde, w̄ the truth and a pure herte: what cause so euer come to you of your brethren ꝑ dwell in theyr cityes, betwene blonde & bloude, betwene lawe & cōmaundemēt betwene statutes & ordinaunces, ye shal warne them ꝑ they trespace not agaynst ꝑ Lorde, & so wrath come vpon you & on your brethrē. Thus do & ye shall not offende. And behold, Amarias D hye prest is amonge you in al matters of ꝑ Lord & Zebadia the son of Ismael, a ruler of ꝑ house of Juda, he is ouer such busynesses as concerne the kynge: there be offycers of ꝑ Leuites also before you. Take courage to you therfore, & be doyng manfully: & the Lorde shalbe w̄ such as be good.

¶ The meruelous victory that the Lorde gaue Jehosaphat kynge of Juda agaynst the Moabytes, and the chyldren of Ammon, and them of Seir.

AFter thys also, it fortuned that the chyldren of Moab & the children of Ammon and wyth them other of ꝑ Ammonites came agaynst Jehosaphat to battayle. And there came some ꝑ tolde Jehosaphat saying: there cometh a great multytude agaynst the from ꝑ other syde of the see, & out of Siria. And behold they be in Hasason Thamar, which is engadi. And Jehosaphat feared: and set hym selfe to seke ꝑ Lorde and proclaymed fastynge throwout all Juda. And they ꝑ were in Juda, gathered thē selues together to aske councel of ꝑ Lord. And they came out of all ꝑ cityes of Juda to make intercessyon to the Lorde. And Jehosaphat stode betwene the B congregacyō of Juda and Jerusalem in ꝑ house of the Lorde before the new court, & sayd: O Lorde God of our fathers, art not thou God in heuen, & raygnest not ꝑ on al the kyngdomes of the hethen? And in thyne hande is power & myghte, & there is no man ꝑ is able to withstande the. Art not ꝑ our God, which dydest cast out the inhabiters of this lande before thy people Israel, & gauest it to the sede of Abrahā thy louer for euer? And they dwelt therin, & haue buylt ꝑ a temple therin for thy name, sayenge: * Yf euell come vpon vs, as ꝑ swerde of iudgement, pestylence, or hunger, thē yf we stand before this house in thy presence, for thy name is in this house, & crye vnto the in our tribulacyon, heare thou and helpe. 2. Par. vi. e

let them of Israel go, whē they came out of the lande of Egipt: but they departed from them, & destroyed them not. Se, how they rewarde vs, to come for to cast vs out of thy possessiō, which thou hast geuē vs to enheret. O our God, wylt thou not iudge them? for we haue no myght agaynst this great cōpany ꝑ cōmeth agaynst vs neither wote we what to do: but our eyes be vnto the. And al Juda stode before the Lorde with theyr yonge ones, theyr wyues, & theyr chyldrē and there was Jehaziel the sōne of Zacharia the sonne of Banaia the sonne of Jehiel the sonne of Mathania, a Leuite of the sōnes of Asaph, and vpon hym came the spyrete of the Lorde, euen in the myds of the congregacion. And he sayde her- D ken all Juda, & ye enhabiters of Jerusalem, and thou kynge Jehosaphat: Thus sayth the Lorde vnto you: be not afrayde, nor faynte herted by reason of this great multytude: for the bataple is not youres, but Goddes. To morowe go ye downe agaynste them for they come vp at ziz, &

ye shall fynde them at the ende of ꝑ broke before the wyldernesse of Jeruel. Ye shall not nede to fyght in this battayle: but step forth and stande and behold the helpe of the Lorde which is with you: feare not, nor let youre hartes fayle you, O ye of Juda and of Jerusalem. To morowe goo out agaynst them, for ꝑ Lorde wylbe with you And Iehosaphat bowed his face to the earthe & all Juda and the enhabiters of Jerusalem fel before the Lorde, worshyppynge the Lorde. And the Leuites of the chyldren of the Cahathites, & of the chyldren of the Corathytes stode vp, to prayse the Lorde God of Israell: wyth a loude voyce on hye. And when they arose early in the mornynge, they gat them out vnto the wyldernesse of Thekoa. And as they went oute, Iehosaphat stode & sayd: heare me, O Juda, & ye enhabyters of Jerusalē. Put your trust in ꝑ Lorde your God, that ye maye be founde faythfull. Geue credence to hys prophetes, and so shall ye prosper. And he gaue the people coūcel, and set some to synge vnto the Lorde, & to prayse hym in the bewtye of holynes, and to go out before ꝑ armie, as they went, and to saye, prayse ꝑ Lord for his mercye lasteth euer. And what tyme as they began to laude and prayse, then the Lorde stered vp certayne of the chyldren of Ammon & Moab, wyych layde wayte for them that were of moūt Seir: which were come agaynst Juda. And they were ouerthrowen wyth strokes amonge them selues. For the chyldren of Ammon and Moab rose agaynst the inhabiters of moūt Seir. And they slewe and destroyed them: And when they had made an ende of the enhabyters of Seir, euerye one helped to destroye an other amonge them selues.

And when Juda came to the edge of ꝑ wyldernesse, they loked vnto the multitude. And beholde, they were dead carcases fallen to ꝑ earth, and none escaped. And whē Iehosaphat and his people came to take awaye the spoyle of them: they found amonge them aboundaunce of goodes, rayment & pleasaunt Jewels, wyche they toke for themselues, more then they coulde carye awaye: so that they were thre dayes in gatherynge of the spoyle, it was so muche. And the fourth daye they assembled in the valley of blessynge, for there they blessed the Lorde. And therfore they called the name of the same place, the valley of blessynge vnto thys daye. And so all the men of Juda and Jerusalem returned wyth Iehosaphat theyr head, for to go agayne to Jerusalem with gladnesse for the Lorde had made them to reioyce ouer theyr enemyes. And they came to Jerusalem with psalteries, and harpes and shawmes, euen vnto the house of the Lorde And the feare of God fell in the kyngdoms of al landes, when they hadde heard that the Lorde fought agaynst the enemyes of Israel. And so the realme of Iehosaphat was in tranquilytye: and his God gaue hym rest on euery syde.

And *Iehosaphat raygned vpon Juda, and iii.re.xxii.c was. xxxv. yeare olde when he began to raygne and raygned. xxv. yeare in Jerusalem, and hys mothers name was Asuba the doughter of Sil

Howbeit the hylaulters were not taken awaye, for ꝑ people had not yet prepared theyr hertes vnto the God of theyr fathers. The rest of ꝑ actes of Iehosaphat fyrst & last beholde they are wrytte amonge the sayenges of Jehu ꝑ sonne of Hanani which noted thē in ꝑ boke of ꝑ kynges of Israel

After this dyd Iehosaphat kynge of Juda ioyne hym selfe with Ahaziahu kynge of Israel whose mynde was to do wyckedly. He coupled hym selfe wyth hym, to make shyppes to go to Tharsis. And they made the shyppes in Ezion Gaber. And Elieser the sonne of Dodanah of Maresa prophecyed agaynst Iehosaphat, sayenge: because thou haste ioyned thy selfe wyth Ahaziahu, the Lorde hath broken thy workes. And the shyppes were broken, that they were not able to go to Tharsis.

The. xxi. Chapter.

Iehosaphat also *slepte wᵗ his fathers, and was buryed with his fathers in ꝑ citye of Dauid, and Iehoram hys sōne raygned in his steade, & he had brethrē which were the sons of Iehosaphat, Azaria, Iehiel, zacharia, Asaria, Michael, & Sephatiahu. All these were the sons of Iehosaphat kynge of Juda. And theyr father gaue them many great gyftes of gold & syluer & other specyal substaūce with stronge cityes in Juda: but the kyngdom gaue he to Iehoram, for he was the eldest. And Iehoram rose vp agaynst the kyngdome of his father, and preuayled, and *slue all his brethren wyth the swearde, & dyuerse of the Lordes of Israel. *Iehozā was. xxxii. yere olde when he began to raygne, & he raygned. viii. yere in Jerusalem. And he walked in the wayes of ꝑ kinges of Israel, lyke as dyd the house of Ahab, for he had ꝑ doughter of Ahab to wyfe, & he wroughte euel in the eyes of the Lorde. Howbeit, ꝑ Lorde wolde not destroye the house of Dauid, because of the *couenaunte that he had made wyth Dauid, as he promysed to geue a lyght to hym, and to hys sonnes for euer. *In his dayes ꝑ Edomites rebelled whē they were vnder ꝑ dominion of Juda, & made them selues a kynge. And Iehozā went forth wᵗ his Lordes, & all his charets were wyth hym: & he rose vp by nyght, & smote ꝑ Edomites, which cōpassed him in, & the captayns of the charets. But Edom rebelled styll, so ꝑ they wolde not be vnder ꝑ hande of Juda vnto thys daye. That same tyme also dyd Libna departe frō beyng vnder his hande because Iehozā had forsaken ꝑ Lord God of his fathers. Moreouer he made hylaulters in ꝑ cityes of Juda, & caused ꝑ inhabyters of Jerusalē to cōmyt fornicaciō, & prouoked Juda to Idolatry. And there came a wrytynge to hym from Elia ꝑ prophete sayeng Thus sayth ꝑ Lord god of Dauid thy father because ꝑ hast not walked ī ꝑ ways of Iehosaphat thy father, & in ꝑ ways of Asa king of Juda, but walkedest in ꝑ ways of ꝑ kiges of Israel, & hast made made Juda & the dwellers of Jerusalem to go a whorynge, lyke to the whoredome of ỹ house of Ahab, and hast slayne thy brethren, euen thy fathers house, whych were better then thou: beholde, wyth a great plage wyl the Lorde smyte thy kolke, thy childrē, thy wyues, & thy goodes. And thou shalt suffre great payne: euē a dysease of thy bowels vntyl thy guttes fall out by reason of thy sycknes, daye by daye.

D And so the Lorde stered vp agaynst Jehoiā the spyrete of the Philistines, and the Arabians ỹ were besyde the blacke mores. And they came vp into Juda, and wasted it, and caryed awaye all the substaunce that was founde in ỹ kynges house, and his sonnes, & his wyues: so that there was neuer a sonne lefte hym saue Jehohahas, whych was ỹ yongest amonge his sonnes. And after all these thynges, the Lorde smote hym in his bowelles with an vncurable disease. And it came to passe, that in processe of tyme, euē after the ende of two yeres, his guttes fell out in hys sycknes: & so he dyed of very euel dyseases. And they made no burnyng for hym lyke ỹ burnyng of hys fathers. When he beganne to raygne, he was. xxii. yeare olde, and raygned in Jerusalem viii. yeare, and lyued wretchedly: howbeit they buryed hym in ỹ cytie of Dauid: but not amōge the sepulchres of the kynges.

The. xxii. Chapter.

A Nd* the inhabyters of Jerusalem made Ahaziahu his yōge sonne king in hys stede. For the men of warre *that came with ỹ hoost of the Arabians, had slaine al his eldest sōnes And so Ahaziahu the sonne of Jehoiā kynge of Juda, was made kynge. Two and fourty yeare olde was he when he began to raygne, and he raigned one yere in Jerusalē. His mothers name was Athaliahu the doughter of Amri. And he walked also in the wayes of the house of Ahab for his mother (by her coūsel) entysed him to do wyckedly. Wherfore he dyd ỹ whych was euel in the syght of the Lorde, as dyd they that were of ỹ house of Ahab: for they were hys coūcelers after the death of hys father, to hys destruccion

And he walked after theyr councel, and went B wyth Jehoiā the sonne of Ahab kyng of Israel to fyght against Hazahel kyng of Siria at Ramoth in Gilead: and the Syriās smote Joram. And he returned to be healed in Jezrell, of the woūdes which were geuē hym at Rama, when he fought wyth Hazaell kynge of Siria. And Ahaziahu the sonne of Jehoram kynge of Juda went downe to se Jehoram the sonne of Ahab at Jezrel, bycause he was diseased. And it came of God, that Ahaziahu shuld be despysed for his commynge to Jehoram: for when he was come, he wente out wyth Jehoram agaynst Jehu the iiii.reg.ix.b sonne of Nimsi, *whom the Lorde had anoynted to destroye the house of Ahab.

And so it came to passe that when Jehu was executynge iustice vpō the house of Ahab & had founde the lordes of Juda and the sonnes of the brethren of Ahaziahu ỹ wayted on Ahaziahu he slue them. * And he sought Ahaziahu, & they iiii.reg.xi.e caught hym where he was hyd in Samaria, & brought hym to Jehu. And whē they had slayne hym, they buryed hym, bycause (sayd they) he is the sonne of Jehosaphat, which sought ỹ Lorde wyth all hys herte. And the house of Ahaziahu had no power to kepe styll the kyngdome.

But when Athaliahu the mother of Aha- D ziahu sawe that her sonne was deed, she arose & destroyed al the kinges sede in the kynred of the house of Juda. And Jehosabeth the doughter of the kynge toke Joas the sōne of Ahaziahu, and stale hym from amonge the kinges sonnes that were slayne, and put hym and his nurce in a prey up chambre. And so Jehosabeth the doughter of king Jehoram the wyfe of Jehoiada the preest, and the syster of Ahaziahu hyd hym from Athaliahu that he was not slayne. And so he was wt them hyd in the house of God syxe yeare. And Athaliahu raygned ouer the lande.

A Nd * in the seuēth yere Jehoiada A beyng bolde, toke the captaynes iiii.re.xi.d of hundredes, Azariahu the sonne of Jehoram, and Ismael ỹ sonne of Jehohanā, Azariahu ỹ sōne of Obed, Maasiahu the sonne of Adaiahu, & Elizaphat the sonne of zichri & made a bonde wyth them. And they went about in Juda, and gathered ỹ Leuites out of all the cyties of Juda, and the auncient fathers of Israel: and they came to Jerusalem. And all the congregacion made a bonde wyth the kynge in the house of God. And he sayd vnto them: beholde, the kynges sonne must raygne, *as the Lorde hath sayd 2.reg.xi.a of the chyldren of Dauid. ix.b ii.par.bi.c. biii.d.and

This is it therfore that ye shal do: The thyrd xxi.b parte of you shall (on the Sabboth) come to the B preestes, Leuites, & kepers of the porches. And an other thyrd parte shalbe by ỹ kynges house, and an other thyrde parte shall be at the gate of the foundacion, and all the people shall be in the *courtes of the house of the Lorde. But there ex.xxbiii.d. shall none come in to ỹ house of the Lorde, saue the preestes, and they that mynister vnto the Leuites. They shal go in, for they are holy: but all the people shal kepe the watch of the Lord. And the Leuites shall compasse the kynge rounde aboute, and euery man shall haue hys weapon in hys hande: and what other man so euer do the come in to ỹ house of the Lorde, he shalbe slayne and let them be wyth the kynge, when he commeth in, and when he goeth out.

And the Leuites and al Juda dyd accordyng ¶ to al thynges that Jehoiada the preest had commaūded, and toke euery mā hys men that came on the Sabboth, with them that wente out on the Sabboth daye, neyther dyd Jehoiada the preest let the companyes departe. And Jehoiada the preest delyuered to the captaynes of hundredes, speares, shyldes, and bucklers, that had pertayned to kynge Dauid, & were in the house

When Athaliahu herd the noyse of ẏ people runnynge and praysyng the kynge, she came to the people into the house of the Lorde. And she loked, and behold, the kyng stode in his place at the entryng in, and the lordes and the trompets were by the kynge, & all the people of the lande reioysed, blowinge with trompets, & dyd playe wyth instrumẽtes of musyke, & taught to synge and prayse. But Athaliahu rente her clothes, & sayd: treason, treason. And Jehoiada the preest wente out to the captaynes of hundredes that were gouerners of the hoost, & sayd vnto them: haue her out wythout the doze of the tẽple: and who so foloweth her, let hym be slayne with the swearde. For the preest sayd that they shulde not slaye her in the house of the Lorde. And they layde handes on her, tyl she was come to the entryng of the horsegate, besyde the kynges house and there they slue her.

D * And Jehoiada made a bonde bytwene him iiij.reg.xi.d and al the people, and ẏ kynge, that they shulde be the Lordes people. And al the people went to the house of Baal, and destroyed it, & brake hys alters and hys ymages, and slewe Mathan the preest of Baal, before the alters. And Jehoiada
i.par.xb.a put the offyces for the house of the Lorde vnder the hande of the preestes and Leuites, * as Da nu.xxviii.a uid had distributed them in ẏ house of the Lord, to offre burnt offynges vnto the Lorde, * as it is wrytten in the lawe of Moses, wyth reioysyng and syngynge, as it was ordeyned by Dauid. And he set porters by the gates of the house of the Lorde, that none whych was vncleane in any thynge shulde entre in.

And he toke the captaynes of hundredes, and all the nobles, and the gouernours of the people & al the folke of the lande, and caused the kynge to come downe out of the house of the Lord, and they came thorow the hye gate in to the kynges house, & set the kynge vpon the seate of ẏ kyngdome. And al the people of the lande reioysed, & the cytie was in tranquilitie, after that they had slayne Athaliahu wyth the swearde.

¶ Joas duryng the lyfe of Jehoiada kepeth the lawe: but after hys death he regardeth it not. He killeth Zachariah the prophete. Joas is killed of hys owne seruauntes: after hym raygneth Amasiahu.

xiij.reg.xi.d IOas was seuen yeare olde when he began to raygne, * & he raigned foure tye yere in Jerusalem. Hys mothers name also was Ziba of Beer Seba. And Joas did that which was right in the syght of the Lord, al the dayes of Jehoiada the preest. And Jehoiada toke hym two wyues, and he begat sonnes and doughters.

B And it chaunced after thys, that Joas was mynded to renne the house of the Lorde, and he gathered together the preestes and the Leuites and sayd to them: go out vnto the cyties of Juda, and gather of all Israel money to repayre ẏ house of your God, from yere to yeare, & se that ye haste the thynge: howbeit, the Leuites were slacke. And the kynge called Jehoiada, ẏ was the chefest, and sayd vnto hym: Why requyrest thou not of the Leuites to bryng in out of Juda & Jerusalẽ, * the collection of money, accordinge Exo.xxx.b to the cõmaundement of Moses the seruante of the Lorde: and the cõgregacion of Israel shulde offre it for the tabernacle of wytnesse. For wycked Athaliahu and her chyldren brake vp the house of God, and all the thynges that were dedicate for the house of the Lorde dyd they bestowe for Bealim.

And at the kynges commaundement * they ¶ iiij.re.xiid. made a chest, & set it wythout at the gate of the house of ẏ Lorde: & made proclamacion thorow Juda and Jerusalem, to bryng into the Lorde
of God set vpon Israel in the wylderneße. And the Lordes and all ẏ people reioysed & brought in, & cast into the chest, vntyll it was full. And it fortuned, ẏ at the same time they brought in the chest (vnto them whych were in the kynges busynes) by the hãde of the Leuites. And whẽ they sawe that there was muche money, the kynges scrybe (& one appoynted by the hye preest) came and emptyed the chest, and toke it, and carped it to hys place agayne: thus they dyd daye by day and gathered much money.

And the kynge and Jehoiada gaue it to such D as dyd the labour and worke in the house of the Lorde, and hyred masons and carpenters to repayre the house of the Lorde, and so dyd the artifycers in yron and brasse, to amende the house of the Lorde. And so the workemen wrought, and the worke amended thorow theyr handes: and they made the house of God as it oughte to be, and strengthed it. And when they had kynyshed it, they brought the rest of ẏ money before the kynge and Jehoiada, and there wyth were made vesselles for the house of the Lorde: euen vessels to mynister wythal, & to serue for burnt offerynges, chargers, & spones, vesselles of gold and syluer. And they offered burnt offerynges in the house of ẏ Lorde continually al the dayes of Jehoiada: But Jehoiada waxed olde, & dyed E full of dayes. For an hundred and thyrty yeare olde was he whẽ he dyed. And they buryed hym in the cytie of Dauid amonge the kynges, because he delte well wyth Israel, and wyth God and with hys house. And after ẏ death of Jehoiada, came the lordes of Juda, and made obeysaunce to the kynge. And the kynge herkened vnto them. And so they left the house of ẏ Lord God of theyr fathers, and serued groues and ydolles. And then came the wrath of God vpon Juda and Jerusalem, for thys theyr trespalles sake. And he sent prophetes to them, to bryng them agayne vnto the Lord. And they testifyed vnto them: But they wolde not heare.

And the spyrite of God came vpon Zacharye ria the sonne of Iehoiada the preest, which stode by the people, and sayd vnto them: Thus sayth God: why transgresse ye the commaundementes of the Lorde, that ye can not prospere? For because ye haue forsaken the Lord, he also hath mat.xxiii.d forsaken you. *And they conspyred against him and stoned hym wyth stones at the commaundement of the kynge: euen in the court of the house of the Lorde. And so Ioas the kyng remembred not the kyndnesse whych Iehoiada hys father had done to hym, but slue hys sonne.

G And when he dyed, he sayd: the Lorde loke vpon it, and requyre it. And when the yeare was out, it fortuned that the hoost of Syria came vp agaynst hym and they came against Iuda and Ierusalem, and destroyed all the Lordes of the people from amonge the people, and sent all the spoyle of them vnto the kynge of Damasco, for the Sirians came wyth a smal company of mē, and the Lorde delyuered a very great hoost into theyr hande, because they had forsaken ỹ Lorde God of theyr fathers. And moreouer, they serued Ioas accordynge to hys dedes.

iiii.re.xii.d left hym in great dyseases, and * hys owne seruauntes conspyred agaynst hym for the bloude of the children of Iehoiada the preest, & slue him on hys bed, & he dyed, and they buried him in the cytie of Dauid: but not in the sepulchres of the kynges. And these are they ỹ conspyred against hym: zebad the sonne of Simeathan Ammonite, and Iehosabad the sōne of Simrith a Moabite. And hys sonnes and the summe of ỹ tare that was raysed in hys tyme, and the repayring of the house of God: beholde, they are wrytten in the storye of the boke of the kinges. And Amaziahu hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

And as sone as he was satlet in the kyngdome, he slue his seruauntes, that had kylled the kynge hys father. But he slue not theyr chyldrē because it is wryttē thus in the lawe and boke of Moses, where the Lorde cōmaūded, sayeng:

Eze.xviii.e And Amaziahu gathered Iuda together, and
B made them captaynes ouer thousandes, & ouer hundredes, accordynge to the houses of theyr fathers, throwe out all Iuda and Ben Iamin. And he nombred them from twenty yere olde & aboue, and founde amonge them, thre hundred thousand chosen men, able to go to battayl and that coulde handle speare and shylde. He hyred also an hundred thousande fyghtynge stronge men out of Israel, for an hūdred talentes of syluer. And there came a man of God to hym, and sayd: O kinge, let not the armye of Israel come with the: for the Lord is not with Israel, nether with al ỹ house of Ephraim. But yf thou wylte nedes be kaythlesse, come on, & take the battayl in hande, and God shal make the fall before the enemye. For God hath power to helpe, and to cast downe. And Amaziahu sayde to the man of God: what shal we do then, for the hundred talentes whych I haue geuen for the hoofte of Israel? The man of God answered: the Lord is able to geue the muche more then they be.

And Amaziahu seuered them to ỹ army that C was come to hym out of Ephraim, to go home agayne. Wherfore they were excedynge wroth with Iuda, and returned home in greate anger. And Amaziahu toke herte, & caried out his peo

And other ten thousande dyd the chyldren of Iuda take alyue, and caryed them vnto the toppe of a rocke and cast them downe from the top of the rocke, that they all to burste: but the souldyers of the army whyeh Amaziahu sent awaye, that they shulde not go wyth hys people to batayle, fel vpon the cyties of Iuda from Samaria vnto Bethhorō and smote .iii. M. of them, and toke much spoyle

And it chaunced, after that Amaziahu was D come frome the slaughter of the Edomites, he brought the goddes of the chyldren of Seir, and set them vp to be his gods, and bowed hym selfe before them: and burned incense vnto them. Wherfore the Lorde was wroth with Amaziahu, and sent vnto hym a prophete, whyche sayd vnto hym: Why hast thou soughte ỹ gods of the people, whyche were not able to delyuer theyr owne people out of thy hande? And it chaunced that as the prophete talked with hym, the kyng sayd vnto hym: haue men made the of the kynges counsayle? cease, why wylt thou be beaten? And the prophete ceassed and sayd: I am sure ỹ God is mynded to destroye ỹ, bycause thou hast done thys, and agreest not vnto my counsayle.

E * Then Amaziahu kynge of Juda toke adiiii.Regum xiiii.b vyse, and sent to Ioas ỹ sonne of Iehoahaz the sonne of Iehu kynge of Israel, and sayde: come that we maye se eyther other. And Ioas kynge of Israel sent to Amaziahu kynge of Juda, sayenge: a thystle that is in Libanō sent to a Ceder tree of Libanon, sayeng: *gyue thy doughter to iiii.Regum xiiii.c my sonne to wyfe. And there came a wyld beast Iudi.ix.c of Libanon, and trode downe the thystle. iiii.ec.iiii.b

F Thou sayest that thou hast beaten the Edomites, and thine herte maketh the proude to glorifie thy selfe. Now therfore byde at home: why doste thou prouoke vnto euell, that thou mayst perysshe, both thou and Iuda wyth the.

But Amaziahu wolde not herken to hym: for it came of God, euen to deliuer them into the hāde of theyr enemyes, because they sought coū sayle at the goddes of Edom. And so Ioas the G kynge of Israel came vp: and they sawe eyther other, both he and Amaziahu kynge of Juda at Bethsames, whych is in Juda. And Juda was put to the worse before Israel, & they fled euery man to hys tent. And Ioas the kynge of Israel toke Amaziahu kyng of Juda ỹ son of Joahas the son of Johoahas of Bethsames: & brought hym to Jerusalem, and tare the wall of Jerusalem (from the gate of Ephraim vnto the gate ỹ was ouer agaynst it) foure hũdred cubites. And he toke awaye also al the golde and syluer, and all the Jewelles that were founde in the house of God with Obed Edom, and the treasures of the kynges house, and the yonge wardes, and returned to Samaria. And Amaziahu the son of Joas kynge of Juda lyued after ỹ death of Joas sonne of Jehoahaz kynge of Israel fyftene yere. The rest of the actes of Amaziahu fyrst & last, are they not wrytten in the boke of the kynges of Juda & Israel? And after the tyme that Amaziahu dyd tourne awaye from the Lorde, *ij.regum. xxi.k. they conspyred treason agaynst hym in Jerusalem: and whē he was fled to Lachis, they sent to Lachis after hym, and slue hym there: and brought hym vp with horses & buried him with hys fathers in the cytie of Juda. *Luke, i.d.

The. xxvi. Chapter.

A iiii.re.xb.a Then al the people of Juda toke Uzia whych was syxtene yeare olde, and made hym kynge in ỹ rowme of hys father Amaziahu. And he buylte Eloth, and brought it agayne to Juda after that the kynge was layd to slepe with hys fathers. Syxtene yeare olde was Uzia, whē he began to raygne, and he raygned. lii. yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name also was Jecholiah of Jerusalem. And he dyd ỹ whych was ryghte in the syght of the Lorde: accordynge to all, as iiij.re.xiii.b dyd hys father Amaziahu. And it came to passe that he sought God in the dayes of zachariahu (whych mayntayned the fear of God) & as lõge as he sought ỹ Lorde: god made him to prosper

B And he went to battayle agaynst ỹ Philistynes and brake downe the wall of Geth, and the wall of Jabne, and the wall of Asdod, and built cyties aboute Asdod, and amonge the Philistynes. And God holpe hym agaynst the Philistynes, and agaynst the Arabians, ỹ dwelt in Gurbaal and Hammehunim. And the Ammonites gaue trybute to Uzia, & hys name spred abrode euen to the entrynge in of Egipte: for he played the mā excedyngly. Moreouer, Uzia buylt towres in Jerusalem by the corner gate, and by the valley gate, and at the turnyng of the wall: and made them stronge. And he buylt towres in the wylderneße, and dygged many welles: For he had much cattel in the valleys & playnes, plowmen, and vyne pressers in the mountaynes, and in Charmel: for he loued husbandrye.

C And Uzia had an hoost of fyghtynge mē that went out to warre in the armye, accordynge to the nombre of theyr offyce vnder the hãde of Jeiel the scrybe, and Maaziahu the ruler, and vnder the hande of Hananiahu, whych was one of the kinges lordes. And the whole nombre of the auncient fathers, and of the mē of myght, were two. M. and syxe hundred: and vnder the hande of them was the army of the men of warre, euen thre hundred and seuen thousande, and fyue hundred that made warre wt the power of an army, helpynge the kynge agaynst the enemyes. And Uzia prouyded them thorowout all the hooste, shyldes, speares, helmettes, habergyns, bowes and slynges for to cast stones. And he made subtyll engyns in Jerusalem, whych he inuented & laid on the towres and corners, to shote arowes and great stones wythall. And hys name spred farre abrode, because he was helped so excellent lye, so that he became very myghtye.

But in hys strength, his herte arose to his de D struccion. For he transgressed agaynst the Lord his God, and went into the temple of the Lorde to burne cence vpon the aulter of incense. And Azariahu the preest went in after hym, & wyth hym foure score prestes of the Lorde, that were valyant men. And they stode by Uzia the kyng and sayd vnto hym: *it pertayneth not to the Nu.xviii.a Uzia to burne incense vnto the Lord, but to the preestes the childrē of Aaron, that are consecrated for to offer incense: Come therfore out of the Sanctuary for thou hast trespassed, and it is no worshyp to the before the Lorde God.

And Uzia was wroth, and had incense in his E hande to burne it: and so whyle he had indignacion agaynst the prestes, * the leprosye sprange *iiii.re.xb.a in hys forehead before the preestes in the house of the Lorde, euen besyde the incense aultare. And Azariahu ỹ chefe preest wyth all the other preestes loked vpon hym: and beholde, he was become a lepre in hys forehead, and they vexed him thēce. And he was fayne to go out, bycause the Lorde had smytten hym. And Uzia ỹ kinge continued a lepre vnto ỹ daye of hys death, and dwelte seuerall, in an house beynge a lepre, and shut out of the house of the Lorde. And Jotham his son had the gouernaunce of ỹ kynges house, and iudged the people of the lande. The rest of ỹ actes of Uzia fyrst and last, dyd Isaye the prophet the son of Amos wryte. And so Uzia slept with his fathers, & they buryed him with his fathers, in the felde of ỹ buryal which was besyde the sepulchres of ỹ kynges. For they sayd: he is a lepre. And Jothā hys son raygned in his stead

And he dyd ỹ which was ryght in the syght of the Lorde in al poyntes as dyd his father Uzia, saue ỹ he came not into the tẽple of ỹ Lord, and the people dyd yet wyckedly. He buylt the hye gate of ỹ temple B of the Lord, and on the wall (where the house of ordynaunce was) he buylt much. Moreouer, he buylt cyties in the mountaynes of Juda, and in the wood countrye he buylt castels and towres.

He fought with the kynge of the chyldren of C Ammon, and preuayled agaynst them. And the chyldren of Ammon gaue him the same yere an hundred

*Wherfore the Lord his God deliuered him into the hande of the kynge of ỹ Syriēs: which bet hym, and caryed awaye a great multytude of hys captyue, and brought them to Damascō And he was delyuered into the hande of ỹ kyng of Israel, which smote him with a great slaughter. And the chyldren of Israell toke prysoners of theyr brethren, two hundred thousande wemen, sonnes and doughters, and caryed awaye muche spoyle of them, & brought the spoyle to Samaria.

And do ye not lade your selues with synne, in the syght of the Lord your God: Nowheare me therfore, and delyuer the captaynes agayne, whyche ye haue taken of your brethren, for elles shall the greate wrathe of God be vpon you.

Wherfore certayne of the heades of the chyldren of Ephraim, as Azaria the sonne of Iehohanan, Berechiahu the sonne of Meshillemoth, and Jehezkiahu the sōne of Sallum, and Amasa the sonne of Hadlay, stode vp agaynste them that came from the warre, and sayd vnto them: bryng not in the captyues hyther. For where as we haue offended towarde God alreadye, ye entende to adde more to oure synnes & trespasse. For our trespasse is great alreadye, and there is a fearce wrath agaynst Israel. And vpon that, the men of armes left the captyues & the spoyle before the lordes and all the congregacion.

C And the men that were nowe rehearsed by name, rose vp and toke the prysoners, and with the spoyle clothed all that were naked amonge them, and arayed them, and shoed them, & gaue them to eate and to drynke, and anoynted them and caryed all that were feble of them vpon asses, and brought them to Jericho (the cytie of Paulmetrees) to theyr brethren: and then they returned to Samaria agayne.

*At that same tyme dyd kynge Ahaz sende vnto the kynges of Assur, to haue helpe of them And the Edomites came agayne, & slue the sōne of Juda, and caryed awaye captiues. And the Philistines enuaded the cyties in the lowe countrey, and towarde the South of Juda, and toke Bethsames, and Aialon, And Gederoth, & Socho, wyth the townes longyng therto, & Thimna wyth the townes of the same: Gimso, and ỹ townes therof, and dwelte there. For the Lorde brought Juda lowe, because of Ahaz kynge of Juda, whych made Juda naked, & transgressed sore agaynst the Lorde. And Thilgath Pilneser kynge of the Assirians came vpō hym and troubled him rather then strengthed him. For Ahaz toke away a porcion out of the house of ỹ Lorde and out of the kynges house, and out of the lordes houses, and gaue vnto the kynge of the Assyrians, and yet it helped hym not. And in the very tyme of hys tribulacyon dyd kynge Ahaz trespasse yet more agaynst the Lorde.

D For he offered vnto the goddes of them of Damasco, whyche bette hym, and he sayde: because the goddes of the kynges of Syria helpe them, therfore wyll I offer to them, ỹ they may helpe me also. But they were hys destruccion, and the destruccion of all Israell. And Ahaz gathered together the vessels of the house of God. and brake them, and *shutte vp the dores of the house of the Lorde, and made hym *aulters in euery corner of Jerusalem. And in al the cyties of Juda he made hylaultares, to burne incense vnto other goddes, and angred the Lorde God of hys fathers: The reste of hys actes, and hys workes fyrst and laste: beholde, they are wrytten in the boke of the kynges of Juda, and Israell. And Ahaz slepte wyth his fathers, and they buryed hym in the Cytie of Jerusalem: but brought hym not vnto the sepulchres of ỹ kynges of Israell. And Hezekia hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

¶ Hezekia otherwyse called Ezekias (or Jehizkiahu) restoreth vnto the Temple of the Lorde all the thynges that had not bene regarded of hys predecessours.

xxi. Regum. xviii. a

HEzekia began to raygne, when he was fyue and twentye yere olde, & raygned nyne and twentye yere in Jerusalem. And his mothers name was Abia the doughter of zachariahu. And he dyd that whyche was ryghte in the syght of the Lorde, in all poyntes as dyd Dauid hys father, * he opened the dores of the house of the Lorde (in the fyrst yeare and fyrst moneth of hys raygne) & repayred them. And he brought in the preestes and the Leuites, & gathered them together into the east strete: & sayd vnto them.

ii. Para. xxviii. b

Heare me ye Leuites, & nowe be sanctifyed and halowe the house of the Lorde God of your fathers, bryng fylthynesse out of the holy place For our fathers haue trespalled, and done euyl
B in the eyes of the Lorde our God, and haue forsaken hym: and turned awaye theyr faces from the habitacion of the Lorde, & turned theyr backes on it. And beside that, they haue shut vp ꝑ dores of the porche, and quenched ꝑ lampes, and haue nether burnt incense, nor offred burntoffe-rynges in the holy place vnto the God of Israel

Wherfore the wrath of the Lorde fell on Iuda and Jerusalem: and he hath brought them to trouble, to be wondred on, and to be hyssed at, euen as ye se wyth our eyes. For lo, oure fathers were ouerthrowen wyth the swearde, and oure sonnes, our doughters and our wyues were caryed away captiue for the same cause. And nowe it is in my herte, to make a couenaunt wyth the Lorde God of Israel: that he maye turne away hys heuy indignacion from vs. Nowe therfore xxix. a my sons, be not negligent: for the * Lorde hath chosen you to stande before hym, and for to minister and serue hym, and to burne incense.

C Then the Leuites arose: Mahath the sonne of Amasai, and Joel the sonne of Asariahu of ꝑ chyldrē of the Cahathites. And of the sonnes of Merari, Kis the sonne of Addi, and Asariahu ꝑ sonne of Jehaleiel. And of the sonnes of the Gersonites, Johah the sōne of Simma, & Eden the sonne of Joah. And of the sonnes of Elizaphan, Simri, and Jehiel. And of the sonnes of Asaph, zechariahu, and Mathaniahu. And of ꝑ sonnes of Heman, Jehiel, and Semei. And of ꝑ sonnes of Jeduthum, Semaia and Uziel. And they gathered theyr brethren, and purifyed them selues and came accordynge to the cōmaundemente of the kynge, and the wordes of the Lorde for to clense the house of the Lord. And ꝑ preestes went into the inner partes of the house of the Lord, to clense it: & broughte out all the vnclennesse that they founde in the temple of the Lorde, into the courte of the house of the Lorde.

D And ꝑ Leuites toke it, to cary it out into the broke Cedron. They beganne the fyrste daye of the fyrst moneth to purify, and the eyght day of the moneth came they to the porch of the Lorde: and pourged the house of ꝑ Lord in eyght dayes and in the syxtene daye of the fyrst moneth they made an ende. And they went in to Hezekia the kynge and sayd: we haue clensed al the house of the Lorde, the aulter of burnt offrynge, wyth al hys vessels, and the shewbreade table, wyth all hys apparell: and all the vessels whyche kynge Ahaz dyd cast aslyde when he raygned, & transgressed, them we haue prepared and sanctifyed: and behold, they are before ꝑ aulter of the Lord. And Hezekia the kyng rose early, and gathered the lordes of the cytie and went vp to the house of the Lorde. And they brought seuen oxen, seuen rammes, seuen shepe, and seuen hegotes, to be a synoffrynge for the kyngdome, for the sanctuary, and for Juda. And he commaunded the preestes, ꝑ sonnes of Aaron, to offer them on the aultare of the Lorde.

ceyued the bloude, & sprynkled it vpon ꝑ altare: lykewyse, when they had slayne the rams, they sprynkled the bloud vpon the aultare: they slue also the shepe, and they sprynkled the bloude vpon the aulter. And then they brought forth the hegotes for the synoffrynge before the kynge & the congregacyon, and put theyr handes vppon them. And ꝑ preestes slue them, and wt the bloude of them they clensed the aultare to make satisfaction for all Israel, for the kynge commaunded that the burnt offrynge and the synne offerynge shulde be made for all Israel.

And set the Leuites in the house of the Lorde F

dynge to the commaundement of Dauid, & Gad the kynges sear, and Nathan the prophete. For so was the cōmaundement of the Lord, thorow the hande of his prophetes. And ꝑ Leuites stode hauynge the instrumentes of Dauid, & the preestes beide the trompettes. And Hezekia cōmaunded to offre the burnt offeryng vpon the aultare And when the burnt offeryng began, the songe of the Lorde beganne also, and the trompettes, wyth ꝑ instrumentes that were ordeined by the hande of Dauid kynge of Israell. And all the congregacion worshypped, syngynge a songe & blowynge with the trompets, & al thys contynued, vntyll the burntoffryng was fynyshed.

And when they had made an ende of offryng the kynge and all that were presente wyth hym bowed them selues, and worshypped. And Hezekia the kynge and the lordes spake to the Leuites to prayse the Lorde wyth the wordes of Dauid, and of Asaph the sear. And ꝑ Leuites sange prayses wyth gladnes, & the other bowed them selues, and worshypped.

haue consecrate your hādes to the Lorde: go to therfore, and bryng in the sacrifyces & thankofferynges into the house of the Lord. And the cōgregacion brought in the sacrifyces, and thank offerynges and burnte offerynges, as many as were of free lyberal herte. And the nombre of the burntoffrynges which ꝑ congregacion brought was. lxx. oxen, an hundred rams, & two hundred shepe: which were al for the burnt offring of the Lord. And there were dedicated syxe hūdred oxen: and thre thousaude shepe. And the Preastes were to fewe to flaye all ꝑ burnt offrynges: but theyr brethren the Leuites dyd helpe them, tyll they had ended the worke: and vntyl the preestes were sanctifyed. For ꝑ Leuites were purer hertedto ted to be sanctifyed, then the prestes. And therto the burntoffrynges were many, with the fat of the peace offrynges and the drynkofferynges that belonge to the burntofferynge. And so the seruyce pertaynynge to the house of the Lorde, was fynyshed. And Hezekia reioyced and al the people, that God had made the folke so ready: for that the thynge was so soone done.

AND Hezekia sent to all Israell, and Juda, and wrote letters to Ephraim and Manasse, that they shoulde come to the house of the Lord at Jerusalem, and offer Passeouer vnto the Lorde God of Israel. And the kynge held a councell wyth his lordes and al the congregacion of Jerusalem *to kepe the feast of Passeouer in the seconde moneth. For they coulde not kepe it at that tyme: bycause the prestes were not sanctifyed sufficiently, neyther was the people gathered together to Jerusalem. And the thynge pleased the kynge, and all the congregacion. And they decreed that it shoulde be proclaymed thorowout all Israel from Bersabee to Dan, that they shulde come, and holde the feast of Passeouer vnto the Lorde God of Israell, at Jerusalem: for they had not done it of a greate season as they shulde haue done by the lawe.

So the postes went with letters of the hãde of the kynge, and of hys lordes thorowout all Israel and Juda: and at the cõmaundement of the kynge they sayd: Ye children of Israel, turne agayne vnto the Lorde God of Abraham, Isahac and Israeli, and let euery one returne to the remnaunt that are escaped you oute of the handes of the kynges of Assur. And be not ye lyke your fathers, and your brethren, which trespassed agaynste the Lorde God of theyr fathers: wherby gaue them vp to be destroyed as ye se.

B And nowe be not ye styffnecked lyke as were your fathers: but yelde your selues vnto the Lord and entre into his holy place, whych he hath sanctifyed for euer: and serue the Lorde your God, and the fearcenesse of hys wrathe shall turne awaye from you. For yf ye turne agayne vnto the Lorde, then shal your brethren and your childrẽ fynde compassion in the presence of them that toke them captyue, and they shall come agayne vnto thys lande, *for the Lord your God is gracyous and mercyfull, and wyl not turne awaye hys face from you yf ye conuerte vnto hym.

Er. xxxiiii. Jer. xxxi. b. pſ. xxxvi. c

And so the postes went from cytie to cytie in the lande of Ephraim and Manasse, euen vnto zabulon. But they laughed them to scorne, and mocked them. Neuertheless, yet dyuerse of Asser, Manasse, and of zabulõ submytted them selues, and came to Jerusalem. And the hande of God was in Juda, so that he gaue thẽ one herte to do the commaundement of the kynge & of the rulers, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde. And there assembled to Jerusalem much people and there was present a myghtye great congregacion, to holde the feast of swete breade in the seconde moneth. And they arose, & remoued the * aultares that were in Jerusalem. And all the vessels of incense dyd they away, and cast them into the broke Cedron. And they slue Passeouer the fourtenth daye of ỹ seconde moneth. And the prestes and Leuites whych were ashamed, sanctifyed them selues, and brought in the burntofferynges into the house of the Lorde. And they stode in theyr office after theyr maner, and accordynge to the lawe of Moses the man of God. And the Preestes sprynkled the bloude, whych they receyued by the hãdes of the Leuites. For there were many in ỹ congregacion ỹ were not sanctifyed: & the Leuites dyd slaye Passeouer for all that were not cleane, and that myght not execute the holy worke of the Lorde. For many of the people, and very many out of Ephraim, Manasse, Isakar and zabulon were not clensed and yet dyd eate Passeouer agaynst the lawe appoynted. Wherfore Hezekia prayed for them, & sayde: the good Lorde be mercyfull vnto them: For he set his hole herte, to seke the Lorde God, euẽ the God of hys fathers: but al the other dyd not so, accordynge to vnfayned holynesse. And the Lorde herde Hezekia, and healed the people And the chyldren of Israel that were present at Jerusalam, heide the feast of swete breade seuen dayes with great gladnes, and the Leuites, and the preestes prayed, and magnifyed the power of the Lorde, daye by daye, vpon instrumentes.

II. Para. xxxiii. b

D And Hezekia spake hertely vnto all the Leuytes that had vnderstandynge, and were of a good mynde towarde the Lorde. And they dyd eate thorowout that feast, seuen dayes longe, & offred peace offerynges, and thanked the Lord God of theyr fathers. And ỹ hole assemble toke counsayle, to do so other seuen dayes, and they helde those seuen dayes with gladnesse. For Hezekia kynge of Juda toke out (from amõge hys cattell) for the congregacion, a thousande põge oxen, and seuẽ thousande shepe. And the Lordes gaue out to the congregacion a thousand ponge oxen, and ten thousande shepe. And a great nombre of the preestes were sanctifyed.

And all the congregacion of Juda wyth the preastes and Leuites, and all the congregacion that came oute of Israell, & the straungers that came out of the lande of Israel, and that dwelte in Juda reioyced: and there was great gladnes in Jerusalem. For sens the tyme of Salomon the sonne of Dauid kynge of Israell, there was no suche ioye in Jerusalem. And the prestes and the Leuites arose, and blessed the people, & their voyce was herde of the Lorde, and theyr prayer came vp vnto heauen: hys holy dwellyng place

B And assone as the kynges commaundement came abrode, the chyldren of Israel brought aboundaunce of fyrst frutes, of corne, wyne, oyle, honye, and al maner of frutes of the felde, & the tythes of all maner of thynges, brought they in plenteously. And the chyldren of Israel & Juda ỹ dwelt in the cities of Juda, they also brought in the tythes of oxen and shepe, & other holy tythes whych were consecrate vnto ỹ Lord theyr God, they dyd offer, & brought them all by heapes. In the thyrde moneth they beganne to laye the hepes (in maner of a foundacion) and fynysshed them in the seuenth moneth. And whē Hezekia and the lordes came, and sawe the heapes they blessed the Lorde & hys people Israel. And Hezekia questioned wyth the prestes and the Leuites, concernynge the heapes. And Azaria the chefe prest of the house of Sadock, answered him and sayd: syns the people beganne to bryng the heue offerynges into the house of the Lorde: we also haue had ynough to eate, there remayned so muche: for the Lorde hath blessed hys people & this heape is left. And Hezekia bad prepare the chambers in the house of ỹ Lorde. And they dyd prepare them, and caryed in the fyrst frutes, the tythes, and the dedicate thynges faythfully.

C Ouer whych, Conaiahu the Leuite had the rule, and Semei hys brother nexte to hym. And Iehiel, Asariahu, Nathath, Asael, Jerimoth, Iosabad, Eliel, Jesmachiahu, Mahath & Banaiahu, were ouersees ordeyned by Chonamahu, & Semei hys brother was an officer of Hezekia the kynge, and Azaria was the ruler of the

And vnder his hãde were Eden, Maniamin, Jesua: Semetahu, Amariahu, and Sechaniahu in the cyties of the prestes apointed of theyr fydelite to geue to theyr brethren theyr porcions: aswel to ỹ small as to the great. Except that to the males ỹ were reckened from thre yere and aboue (among all ỹ went into the house of ỹ Lord) they shulde geue daye by daye, for theyr mynistracyon, and for theyr gyuyng attendaũce, and for theyr dyuerse wayetynges by course. And to ỹ prestes and Leuites thorowout the housholde of theyr fathers from twentye yeare and aboue, to wayte when theyr courses came.

And to the familyes of all theyr babes, wyues, sonnes, and doughters thorowe all the congregacion. For vpon the fydelitie of them were the holy thynges bestowed. And to the children of Aaron, the prestes whyche were in the feldes and suburbes of theyr cyties, cytie by cytie, the men (whose names were expressed afore) shulde geue porcions, euen to all the males amonge the preastes, and to all the Leuites, accordynge to theyr nombre. And of thys maner dyd Hezekia thorowout al Juda, & wrought it that is good, and right and true, before the Lorde hys God. And in all the workes that he beganne for the seruyce of the house of God, for the lawe and for the commaundementes, he sought hys God and that dyd he wyth all hys herte, and prospered. D

Knowe ye not what I and my fathers haue done vnto the people of all landes? Yf so be that they wil be diligent, and do all that I haue commaunded them in all the lawe and statutes, and ordinaunces by the hande of Moses. And so Manasse made Juda and the inhabiters of Jerusalem to erre, and to do worse then the heythen whome the Lord destroyed before the children of Israel. And the Lorde spake to Manasse and to his people, but they wolde not regarde.

¶ Wherfore, the Lorde brought vpon them the captaynes of the hoost of the kynge of the Assyrians, which toke Manasse in holde, and bound hym with chaynes, and caryed hym to Babylō. And when he was in tribulation, he besought the Lorde his God, and humbled hym selfe exceedyngly before the God of his fathers, and made intercession to hym: and God was entreated of hym, and herde his prayer, and brought hym agayne to Jerusalē into his kingdome. And then Manasse knewe that the Lorde was God.

After this he buylt a wall without the citie of Dauid, on the west syde of Gyon, in the valey as they come to the fysh gate, and round about Ophel, & brought it vp of a very great heyght, and put captaynes of warre in all the strong cyties of Juda. And he prepared the alter of the Lorde, and sacrifyced theron peaceoffrynges, & thankeoffrynges, and charged Juda to serue ỹ Lorde God of Israel. Neuertheles, the people dyd offre styll in the hylaulters, howbeit, vnto the Lorde theyr God onely.

D The rest of the actes of Manasse & his prayer vnto his God, and the wordes of the sears, and of them that spake to him in the name of ỹ Lord God of Israel, beholde, they are wrytten in the sayinges of ỹ kynges of Israel. And his prayer, and how that he was herde, and all his synnes, and his trespasse, and the places where he made hylaulters, and set vp groues and ymages (before he was mekened) beholde, they are wrytten amonge the sayinges of the sears. And Manasse slepte with his fathers, and they buryed hym in his owne house: And Amon his son raygned in his roume. Amon was two and twentye yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned two yeare in Jerusalem. But he dyd euyl in the syght of the Lorde, lyke as dyd Manasse his father, for Amon sacrifyced to all the kerued ymages, whiche Manasse his father had made and serued them, and submytted not hym selfe before the Lorde: as Manasse his father hadde mekened hym selfe. But Aman trespassed greatly. And his owne seruauntes cōspyred agaynst hym, and slewe hym in his owne house. But the people of the lande slue all them that had cōspyred agaynst kyng Amon. And ỹ same people of the land made Josia his son king in his roume.

And he dyd ỹ whiche was ryght in the syght of the Lorde, and walked in the wayes of Dauid hys father, and bowed neyther to the ryght hande nor the left. In the eyght yeare of his raygne (when he was yet a chylde) he began to seke after the God of Dauid his father. And in the twelueth yere he began to pourge Juda, and Jerusalem from hylaulters, groues, kerued ymages, and ymages of metall: and they brake downe the aulters of Baalim, euen in his presence: and other ymages, that were in greater honoure then they, he caused to be destroyed. And the groues, kerued ymages, and ymages of metall, he brake and made duste of them, and strawed it vpon the graues of them that had offered vnto them. And he burnt the bones of the preastes vpon the aulters of them, and cleansed Juda and Jerusalem. And euen so dyd he in the cytyes of Manasse, Ephraim, Symeon, vnto Nephthali. And in the wyldernesses of them, rounde aboute, he plucked asondre the aulters and the groues, and dyd beate them and stampe them to pouldre, and beate downe all the ymages thorowoute all the lande of Israel: and returned to Jerusalem agayne.

And they haue gathered togyther the moneye ꝑ was founde in the house of the Lorde, and haue delyuered into the hādes of ꝑ ouersears of the worke and to the handes of the workemen. And then Saphan the scrybe shewed the kynge, sayinge: Helkia the preaste hath gyuen me a booke, and Saphan red in it before the kynge.

E And it fortuned, that when the kynge had herd the wordes of the lawe, he tare his clothes and the kynge cōmaunded Helkia and Ahikam the sonne of Saphan, and Abidon the sonne of Micah, and Saphan the scrybe, and Asaia a seruaūt of the kynges, sayinge: go and enquyre of the Lorde for me, and for them that are lefte in Israel and Juda, concernyng the wordes of the booke that is founde. For great is the wrath of the Lord that is fallen vpon vs, bycause our fathers haue not kept the worde of the Lorde, to do after all that is wrytten in this booke.

And Helkia and they that the kynge had appoynted, went to Hulda a prophetesse the wyfe of Sallum, the sonne of Tokhath, the sonne of Hasra keper of the wardrope (for she dwelte in Jerusalem within the seconde wall) and so they communed with her. And he set the preistes in their offyces, and ayded them in the seruice of the house of the Lord, And he sayd vnto the Leuites (that taught al Israel and were sanctified vnto the Lord) put the holy arke in the house whiche Salomon the sonne of Dauid kyng of Israel dyd buylde, there shal no other burthen be layed vpō your shulders: But nowe serue the Lorde your God and his people Israel. B And Josia gaue to the people flockes of shepe and kyddes, all for passeouer, and for all ꝑ were present thyrty thousand by tale, & thre thousād oxen, & these were euen of the kynges substaūce And his lordes gaue wyllynglye both vnto the people and to the preistes, and vnto the Leuites. And so all the seruice of the Lord was prepared the same daye, to offre Passeouer, and to offre burntoffrynges vpon the aultare of the Lorde, accordynge to the commaundemente of kynge Josia.

And so the chyldren of Israel that were present offred Passeouer the same tyme, and kepte the feaste of swete breed seuen dayes, and there was no Passeouer lyke to that kepte in Israel, from the dayes of Samuel the prophet: neither dyd al the kynges of Israel holde suche a Passeouer feast as dyd Josia & the preastes & Leuytes and all Juda, & Israel that were present, & the inhabiters of Jerusalem. This Passeouer was holden in the. xviii. yere of the raygne of Josia.

D ii.re.xxiij.c * After this, when Josia had prepared the temple, Necho kyng of Egipt came vp to fyght agaynst Carcamis besyde Euphrates, and Josia went out agaynste hym: which sent messengers to hym, and sayd: what haue I to do with the thou kynge of Juda? Be not thou agaynste thy selfe this daye: for my warre is agaynst another house, and God bad me make haste. Leaue of therfore and medle not with God whiche is with me, lest he destroye the. Neuertheless, Josia wolde not turne his face from hym, but rather toke a duysle to fyght with hym, & herkened not vnto the wordes of Necho out of the mouth of God, and came to fyght in the valley of Magedo, and the shoters shot dartes at kynge Josia. And the kynge sayd to his seruauntes: carry me away, for I am sore wounded. His seruauntes therfore had hym out of that charet, and put him * (as a kyng) in an other charet that they had And when they had brought him to Jerusalem he dyed, and was buryed in the sepulchre of his zach.xii,a fathers. * And all Juda and Jerusalem mourned for Josia. And Jeremia lamẽted Josia, and all syngynge men and syngynge women mourned for Josia in theyr lamẽtacions to this daye, and made the same lamentaciõs an ordinaunce in Israel, and beholde, they be written in the lamentacyons. And the Lorde God of theyr fathers sent to ¶ them, by his messengers, rysynge vp by tymes, Jer.xxv.a and sendyng, for he had compassion on his people, and on his dwellynge place. C In the second yere of their comyng vnto the place of the house of God at Jerusalem in the second moneth began zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel, and Jesua the sonne of Josedec, and the remnaunt of their brethren the prestes and Lenites, & all they that were come out of the captiuitye vnto Jerusalem, & appoynted the Leuites from twenty yere olde and aboue, to se that the worke of the house of the Lorde went forwarde And Jesua stode with his sonnes and brethren: and Cadmiel with his sonnes, and the children of Juda, to forther the workmen of the house of God, euen the children of Henadab, with their children, and their brethren the Leuytes.

C The.iiij. Chapter:

A iii.Esd.v.g BUt *the aduersaries of Juda and Benjamin herde, that the children of the captyuitie buylded the temple vnto ỹ Lord God of Israel. And they cam to zorobabel, & to the princypall fathers, and sayd vnto them: We wyll buylde with you: for we seke the Lorde your God lyke as ye do. And we haue done sacrifyce vnto hym syns the tyme of iii.re.xvij.d Asorhadon the kynge of Assur *which brought vs vp hyther. And zorobabell, and Jesua, and the other auncient fathers of Israel, sayde vnto them: It can not be, that you and we togyther, shoulde buylde the house vnto our God: for we our selues wyll buylde alone vnto the Lord our God of Israel, *as Cyrus the kynge of Persia i.Esd.i.a hath commaunded vs.

And it came to passe, that the folke of the land hyndred the people of Juda, and troubled them as they were buyldyng, and hyred counsaylers agaynst them, to hyndre their deuyce, as longe as Cyrus the kynge of Persia lyued, vntyll the raygne of Darius kynge of Persia. And in the raygne of Ahasuerus (euen in the begynning of his raygne) wrote they vnto hym a complaynt agaynst the inhabiters of Juda and Jerusalem

And in the dayes of Artharxerses, wrote Mithridah Tabeel, & the other of his cōsell vnto Artaxerses the kyng of Persia w̄ fayre wordes. And the scrypture of the letter was wrytten in the Syriās speche, and interpretated in the language of the Sirians. Rehum the recorder, and Samsai the scribe wrote a letter from Jerusalē to Artharxerses the kynge: as it foloweth.

Then Rehum the recorder, and Samsai the B scrybe, and other of their companye of Dina, of Arphasath, of Tharpla, of Persia, of Arach, of Babylon, of Susan, of Deha, of Elan, & other of the people *whom the great and noble Asna- iii.re.xvij.d par brought ouer: and set in the cytyes of Samaria, and other, that are nowe on this syde the water. This is the coppe of the letter that they sent vnto kynge Artharxerses.

Thy seruauntes and the men that are now on this syde the water. Be it knowen vnto ỹ kyng that the Jewes which came vs from the to vs, are come vnto Jerusalem (a cytie seditious and frowarde) and buylde the same, and sette vp the walles thereof, and laye the foundactons. Be it knowen now also vnto the kyng, that yf this cytie be builded, and the walles therof made vp agayne, then shall not they gyue tolle, trybute, & custome, and the kynges profyte shall incurre dāmage. And now in the meane season we haue C destroyed the temple, and wolde no longer se the kynges dishonoure. Therfore sent we out also, and certifyed the kynge: that it maye be sought in the booke of the Chronycles of thy progenytours, and so shalt thou fynde in the boke of the Chronicles, and perceyue that this cytie is seditious and noysome vnto kynges & landes, and that they cause other also among them to rebell of olde, and for the same cause was this cytye destroyed. Therfore do we certifye the kyng, that yf this cytie be buylded agayne, and the walles thereof made vp: thou shalte hereafter haue no poszeyon on this syde the water.

Then sent ỹ kynge an answere vnto Rehum the recorder, & Samsai ỹ scribe, & to the other of D their cōpanions that dwelt in Samaria, & vnto the other that were beyond ỹ water, in Selan & Cheheth. The letter which he sent vnto vs, hath ben openly red before me, & I haue cōmaūded to make searche: & it is founde: ỹ this cytie of olde, hath made insurrection agaynste kynges, & that rebellion & sedition hath bene cōmytted therein. There haue ben myghtye kynges also at Jerusalem, whiche haue raygned ouer all countryes, beyonde the water: and tolle, trybute, & custome was gyuen vnto them: Gyue ye nowe therfore cōmaundement, that the same men be forbyddē and that the cytie be not buylded agayne, tyll I haue giuen an other cōmaundement. Take hede now that ye be not negligent to do this: for why shoulde the kynge haue harme therethorowe?

Now when the coppe of kynge Artharxerses lettre was red before Rehum and Samsai the scrybe, and their companyons, they went vp in all the haste to Jerusalem, vnto the Jewes, and forbade them with violence and power. Then ceassed the worke of the house of God at Jerusalem: and contynued so vnto the seconde yeare of Darius kynge of Persia.

THe prophetes Aggeus and zachary the sonne of Iddo prophecyed vnto the Jewewes that wer in Juda and Jerusalem, in the name of the God of Israel.

*Then gat vp zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel, and Jesua the sonne of Josedec, and began to buylde the house of God at Jerusalem: and with thē were the prophetes of God, which helped them. At ẏ same tyme came to them Tathnai, whiche was captayne on this syde the water, and Starbazani, & theyr companions, and sayd thus vnto them: Who hath commaunded you to buylde this house, and to make vp these walles? Then tolde we them the names of the men that made this buyldynge. But the eye of theyr God was vpon the elders of the Jewes, that they coulde not cause them to ceasse, tyl the matter was brought to Darius, and then they answered by letters there vnto.

B This is the coppye of the lettre, that Tahnai (whiche was captayne on this syde the water) and Starbazani, & the counsaylers of Apharsah (which were on this syde the water) sent vnto kyng Darius. And the matter that they sent vnto hym, was written thus within the letter: Unto Darius the kyng, al peace. Be it knowen vnto the kynge, that we went in to the lande of Jewrye, to the house of the great God, which is builded with mighty great stones, and beames are layed in the walles, and the worke goth fast forth, & prospereth in theyr handes. Then asked we the elders, & sayd vnto them as it foloweth: Who cōmaunded you to buylde this house: and to make vp the walles thereof? We asked theyr names also, that we myght certify the, & wryte the names of the men that were theyr rulers:

¶ But they answered vs with these worde, & sayd: We are the seruaūtes of hym that is God of heauen & erth, and buylde the house that was buylded many yeres ago, * which a great kyng of Israel buylded, & set vp. But after ẏ our father had prouoked ẏ God of heauē vnto wrath, * he gaue them ouer into the hand of Nabuchodonozor the king of Babilon, & of the Chaldees whiche brake downe this house, and caryed the people away captyue vnto Babylon.

i. Esdr. i. a * But in the fyrst yere of Cyrus the kynge of Babilon, the same kynge Cyrus gaue cōmaundement concernynge this house of God, that it shuld be buylded agayne. And ẏ vessels of gold and syluer of the house of God, which Nabuchodonozor toke out of the temple that was at Jerusalem, & brought them into the temple at Babilon, those dyd Cyrus the kynge take out of the

i. Esdr. i. d temple at Babylon, * and they were delyuered vnto one Sasbazar by name, whome he made captayne, & sayd vnto hym: Take these vessels and go thy way, and set them in the temple that is at Jerusalē, and let the house of God be buylded in his place. Then came the same Sasbazar and layed the foundacion of the house of God, whiche is at Jerusalem. Syns that tyme also vntyll now hath it ben in buylding, and yet is it not fynyshed. Yf it please the kynge nowe therfore let there be serche made in the kynges libraryre whiche is there at Babilon, whether it haue ben kynge Cyrus commaundement, that thys temple of God at Jerusalem shulde be buylded, and let hym sende vs the kynges mynde concernynge the same matter.

¶ At the commaundement of Darius kyng of Persia, after the temple was buylded and dedicate, the children of Israel kepe the feast of vnleuended bread.

THen cōmaunded kynge Darius, and they made searche in the library, euen in the place where they layed vp the iii. Esd. vi. e treasure at Babilō. * And there was founde in a coffre (in the place that is in the land of the Medes) a volume, and therin was it thus wrytten, & suche a memoriall: In the fyrst yere of kyng Cyrus, gaue the same king Cyrus commaundement concernynge the house of God at Jerusalē, that the same house shulde be buylded in the place where they offre the sacrifyces, and to ioyne the walles togyther of threscore cubytes heygth, and threscore cubytes breadth. Thre rowes of rought stones, & one rowe of tymbre, and the expences shall be gyuen of the kynges house. And let the golde and syluer vessell of the house of God, (whiche Nabuchodonozor toke out of the temple at Jerusalem and brought vnto Babylon) be restored, and broughte agayne vnto the temple at Jerusalem to theyr place in the house of God.
